PERSONAL AND SOCIAL NEWS The Behning in the Manhattan Opera House

Arrangements were completed this week between the Behning Piano Company and Alexander Kahn of the Managing and Producing Company, Inc., whereby the Behning grand will be the official piano for the Sunday night concerts to be given during the season 1916-17 at the Manhattan Opera House, New York. The Managing and Producing Company has made arrangements to give forty Sunday night concerts at this famous opera house, the first one taking place Sunday, September 10. At this concert there will be an orchestra of seventy men under the direction of Chevalier Oscar Speriscu, who directed the popular concerts of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra during the season which has just finished. The soloists for that even-ing will be Leo Ornstein, pianist; Mme. Baron Fonariova, the Russian artist who recently arrived in this country, and Louis Siegel, the American vio-linist and protege of Eugen Ysaye.

This is a big showing for the BEHNING. The line can be seen on exhibition at chauffeur, and his love is not yet un-der control, according to testimony before Judge Graham. Mrs. Gerhard, who is suing for a divorce, was before the court with a request to have her husband restrain-ed from visiting her. She said he loved her so much he made her life a burden, so she separated from him. She obtained a position as a maid. Her husband stood in front of the place where she was employed all night in the hope of catching a glimpse of her. Her employers did not like him to stand their all night, so they discharged her. His employ-ers discharged him because he ne-glected his work to watch before his wife, but he would try to curb his de-sire to see her.
