BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which was messy and troublesome. Now, days, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

Psychology to Aid Alleged Parricide

PROF. HUGO MUNSTERBERG.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 6.—The effect psychology may have on the testimony of witnesses in criminal cases which come to trial long after the acts alleged will be described in court here by Professor Hugo Munsterberg, of Harvard University, in the trial of Albert J. Roper, of Boston, charged with the murder of his father, Albert Roper, of Tewksbury. William H. Wilson, of Lowell, senior counsel for the defense made this announcement in explanation of the daily presence in the courtroom of Professor Munsterberg, who is director of the psychological laboratory at Harvard.

"This case is going to be one of the most interesting in years from a psychological point of view," said Mr. Wilson, "especially in its bearing on the attempt to build up criminal cases months after an event has occurred. Witnesses are asked to recall specific incidents from the daily routine of one day out of hundreds of days alike. I believe the phase of the case affecting mental suggestion will develop facts of permanent scientific value."

The elder Roper was killed and robbed near his greenhouse in Tewksbury on the night of March 1.

You cannot get away from merchandise in the consideration of a store. All standards of service, value-giving and satisfaction fail if the goods are not good, if the merchandise is not better at a given prices than the public can find elsewhere.

Our search for superiority is never ending and we have not found during our long experience, any merchandise which equals in point of value that which we offer in

This store is the result of greater-value-giving in these clothes at these prices. Harrisburg has always demanded the best the land affords. Harrisburg has never stooped to purchase inferiority at any price, and yet the men of this city are both value-hunters and greater value-getters.

We claim superiority for our merchandise. We claim to sell better suits at a given price than anyone else anywhere. We claim that service in this store is as nearly perfect as human intelligence and effort can make it. We claim that in our showing of KUPPENHEIMER Clothes there is fabric value, fashion authority and a better fit than you can find even in the finest tailor shops.

We take the position that with our regular models, our special styles for stout, short, slim or tall and forwards, "DOUTRICHS" are entitled to your patronage because we have so provided for your comfort and satisfaction so as to deserve it.
