

Youth, Adult and Aged

Three generations have tested Peruna and pronounced it a reliable family tonic. It's useful because it meets the demands of the youth for a strength builder, the adult for conserving strength, and the aged for a healthful invigoration. It allays inflammation of the mucous membranes, dispels the inflammation we call catarrh, and aids digestion. It helps rid the system of colds and coughs, and builds up the strength to resist grip, as well as helping remarkably in convalescence.

Nearly Fifty Years

have passed since Peruna was introduced to the public. The original formula has been bettered somewhat as experience has shown the way, but it remains the same remedy that has accomplished so much for the health of the people.

It may be obtained in tablet form or in liquid—both made after the same formula, the tablets omitting the solvent, and it is ready to do for you what it did for your father and his father.

Mary Roberts Rinehart's Thrilling Mystery of "The Curve of the Catenary"

"The plate," he repeated. "I developed it last night, and it's very clear. I'd like to know how you got it, Mr. Gray, if it's not a secret. Not flying these days, are you?"

"The camera belongs to a friend. I'd like to see the plate," he said. He went for it, and I examined the thing. I don't know anything about cameras, except snapshot affairs, but even to me it looked odd. It was very light, and it had an arrangement of springs and things I'd never seen before. Yes, the spring I'd got from the policeman looked as if it might belong to it. I couldn't be certain, of course.

"Who brought it in?" I asked when the dealer returned.

"He wouldn't give his name. Said he'd dropped it, and wanted it repaired. When I saw that the lens was missing I asked some questions. They made him uneasy. I don't think he'll come back."

He showed me how to hold the plate to the light, and I made it out at last.

It was a view, taken from above, of the city at night.

"I'll make a print of it, and you can read it better," he said. "Tell your friend for me that I'd like to see him at work some time. Photography is my pleasure as well as my business. Where was this taken from?"

"From an upper window of Boisseau's," I said, at a hazard.

He smiled.

"Not telling, I see!" he said. "I should say that camera was about two thousand feet above the ground. Maybe more."

You begin to get it, don't you? Would you believe that I did? I did not. I knew I found the camera that had fallen on old Boisseau's awning and either bounced off and been picked up from the pavement, or had been found on top of it by one of those awning crew. It was pretty certain that old Mr. Hazeltine had been some place where he had no business to be, taking that picture. But what was there about all that to make a girl faint? There's nothing mysterious or criminal about a camera.

I'd get so mixed up by that time that if the Mater's pearls had dropped out of the thing I'd have been only mildly surprised.

You see it was like this. If the old man had only been taking pictures and lost the camera, why should the little girl say she couldn't even think of it?

What was it that Martin said was out of the way? How the mischief was Martin tied up in the affair anyhow? And what was safe at 2 o'clock that was dangerous at 11?

Like an Open Book For Young Mothers!

Most women look upon becoming a mother, for the first time, as something full of unknown mysteries; a gony and pain; a time of distressing days and months. These are misguided conclusions. "Mother's Friend," used daily before confinement, will prove its great value as an ally to those distressing pains and assist nature in doing its work with ease and comfort. Get "Mother's Friend" at your druggist.

ALLENTOWN CITY GETS ARMS COAT

Col. Trexler Presents Hand-some Shield and Accompanying Flags to His City

Colonel Harry C. Trexler, quartermaster general of Pennsylvania, presented to the City Council of Allentown a municipal coat-of-arms and accompanying emblems, to be used with the American flag on City Hall, two official silk city flags, containing the coat-of-arms, two silk American flags, official city pennants, and civilian or merchant flag.

The gift is the outgrowth of months of thought and consultation with the foremost experts in America. The coat-of-arms was painted under the direction of Harrison Fisher. Before the design was selected Mayor Reichenbach and the Council consulted the Chicago Bureau of Municipal Flags and corresponded with the authorities of sixty American cities.

In accepting the gift the Council adopted an ordinance prescribing the use of the flags. The coat-of-arms was immediately placed in the custody of the Lehigh County Historical Society, which will place it in Trout Hall, the oldest building in Allentown, which is being restored for the use of this organization.

Lincoln Highway President Is Reviewing Work Done

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 10.—Henry B. Joy, president of the Lincoln Highway Association, is now in Western Utah, having joined Field Secretary Ostermann in Salt Lake City for an inspection of this section of the route of the transcontinental road. The Lincoln Highway Association is giving particular attention to the improvement of this part of the route, where the long mileage across the sparsely inhabited country presents a problem of road improvement demanding the most careful consideration.

During the present year the field secretary has spent much of his time on this western section of the Lincoln Highway route and in company with the local representatives of the association has made a most careful survey of the situation and thoroughly acquainted himself with every foot of the ground. Sample grades have been thrown up for test purposes and the field has been covered by the most experienced road engineers in the interests of the association.

President Joy will review the work done and gain first-hand information concerning the ways and means of best covering this important development, which is of decided importance to the whole country as a big step in the promotion of the good roads cause.

Philadelphia and State Welcome First Troops Home

Philadelphia, Oct. 10.—Philadelphia joyfully welcomed home from Texas her First Regiment of Infantry, National Guard of the United States, yesterday.

In the words of Governor Brumbaugh, it was an auspicious homecoming, this return of the First, and though the guardsmen had been in no actual warfare, the occasion savored of that patriotism which greeted the returning militiamen of '98.

The parade was brief, as parades go. It reached and passed City Hall before 11 o'clock and was from then to its conclusion it was a steady tramp over spongy asphalt to the dinner ready in Convention Hall.

At the regiment's army Governor Brumbaugh, Mayor Smith and member of the councilman committee dropped out of the line to review the youths fresh from the sun and sand of a Texas desert.

It was later, at the Convention Hall, as a sort of appetizer to the meal, that the chief executives of state and city gave their official welcome, and Colonel Charles C. Allen, commander of the First, reported that in the four months' absence he had not lost a man.

As for the men themselves, they left Philadelphia in June as average city-bred youths, young men drawn from every walk of professional, business and industrial life.

They came back yesterday tanned and hardened, bigger chested, broader visioned, a little sterner, but in the opinion of regular army officers trained and equipped soldiers, "as good as any on the Mexican border, barring none."
