60 BURGLARIES SINCE JUNE FIRST

The burglars know no fear and move up and down the districts of the city undetected.

Thus far two arrests have been made by the police, but the persons suspected were discharged.

Nine Week-End Burglaries

Over the week-end from October 7 to enine homes were entered and attempts were made to enter four other blaces. All of these were on Allison Hill, where the majority of robberies occurred within the last month.

Although the exact value of the plunder obtained by the thieves in their many marauds can not be accurately estimated, it is believed that the Jewelry, money, clothing and provisions stolen total hundreds of dollars.

Mayor Meals announced recently that when the budget for 1917 is turned in to City Council he will ask for thirty more patrolmen to be sent out on city districts so that the territories covered by each officer will be greatly reduced, increasing police protection.

Inefficient Men On Force?

Officials, however, have hinted at different times that political influence has been exercised to keep some of the men on the force whose work is inefficient. That the present force is too small is conceded by every official in the department, but several of the executives declared that adding thirty men will not do any good unless they are efficient and capable of serving as officers.

cers. Mayor Meals himself has gone out with the officers on burglar hunts when some of the night calls came in, but no arrests were made.

Several of the detectives, working on some of the robberies, have complained at times because reports of more recent raids were not received by them when the reports might have

Raid After Raid

The thieves, picking out any section of the city they choose to work in, have made raid after raid, and although seen on several occasions, they have escaped before neighbors or officers could interfere. Superintendent of Detectives Windsor and Chief of Police Wetzel both declare that at times the persons whose homes were entered could have given the police department more assistance by calling headquarters when they saw people acting suspiciously.

Detectives and uniformed officers have worked overtime and run down numerous clues without any results. Motorboat and auto rides to supposed hiding places of the burglars brought no returns, according to the police.

The latest raids were the most extensive in the city since the burglarles began in the early part of the summer. Begining in the West End early in June, the thieves visited a number of places, then suddenly switched to Allison Hill and began visits to houses, entering from three to five homes in one night.

The Loot

Most of the robberies have been committed, it is believed by the police, between midnight and 4 o'clock in the morning. Two victrolas, watches, chains, rings, lodge emblems, stickpins, flashlights, noseglasses, men's and women's clothing, provisions, dress patterns and money have been taken. In many of the burglaries valuable silverware and other expensive articles were missed or were not wanted by the thieves, who have so far successfully eluded all efforts on the part of the police to catch them.

Residents of suburban communities have requested Superintendent Windsor to assign men to watch certain streets and roads on which men were seen acting suspiciously. These requests were not taken seriously and the men were seen again, but no arrests made.

Statements have been made at police headquarters that the detective bureau knows the parties who, have been responsible for many of the robberies, but are "waiting to catch the offenders in the act." Just how long the public will wait for the police to get results and end the early morning visits is the question asked by persons whose homes have been entered.

Will Not Tell Number of Burglaries.

Will Not Tell Number of Burglaries
Superintendent of Detectives Windsor when asked for a record of the names and addresses of residences entered since the burglaries began declared, "I consider it a most unfair and unjust request to make to an official; to ask him for a list of places robbed, to be used to show incompetency in the police department. I will never willingly give anything from the official police complaint book if I believe it is to be used against the department.

"I can show from records of former administrations, that there have been robberies just as serious as the present ones, and more so, and no arrests made."

A Heart to Heart Talk With Mr. H. M. Eldridge, Jr., Head of the H. M. Eldridge's Music House

Four hundred thousand Railroad men compelled Congress to intervene in their behalf and rush 8-hour day legislation through. (THAT IS COLLECTIVE BARGAINING.)

pelled Congress to intervene in their behalf and rush S-hour day legislation through. (THAT IS COLLECTIVE BARGAINING.) Suppose each R. R. man called at the White House as it suited his convenience. Perhaps to-day, perhaps in five or ten years. Would Congress recognize the individuals? If each man made his own bargain would the results be as satisfactory? The answer is NO, most decidedly NO.

One hundred of the largest Piano Dealers in the United States and Canada went to the Piano manufacturers and stated their wants collectively. Each dealer standing shoulder to shoulder with the next. The specifications for the Pianos were a prime factor. "Each Piano Must Be High Grade." Buying five thousand Pianos collectively and paying the cash on the spot, was unheard of in the Piano business. We stood firm, there was no dissension. We went there for a purpose, and we achieved the greatest commercial coup in the world's history. The results are, the manufacturers have cash in advance for their goods and can take advantage of all cash discounts, which means Highest Quality at a Minimum Cost. The dealer buys the Pianos at any absolute minimum (SAVING ALL, CASH DISCOUNTS, TRAVELING MEN'S EXPENSES, MAGAZINE ADVERTISING, ETC.). The sum total being a better Piano delivered for less money than ever. THAT IS COLLECTIVE BARGAINING.

One hundred and fifty families in Harrisburg come here within a period of ten days and buy Pianos. Each family saves $100 to $125 and in some instances $200 on a Piano or Player Piano. The quality is unquestioned. The value is unquestioned, the purchaser is at least $100 ahead. We have sold a Piano and satisfied a customer, made a lifelong friend, will receive the undying thanks of the scores of families fortunate enough to gethere in time to buy one of these Pianos at this great saving. Happier homes, brighter faces, smiling and contented boys and girls, proud fathers and mothers, all the result of "COLLECTIVE BARGAINING."

Very truly yours,
