GOV. GIVES IMPULSE TO EXTENSION PLANS

portant obligation resting upon the city to co-operate in every way with the State officials in adopting the best character of treatment so that the property of the city impinging upon the Capitol grounds will harmonize with that of the State. Governor Brumbaugh and State Treasurer Young, both of whom discussed the matter in a broad way, declared that the State wants to do everything to bring about an arrangement which will give the best results for the city and the Commonwealth. In order that this may be accomplished it is their opinion and that also of Auditor General Powell, whose views were expressed in a letter, that nothing should be done by one side or the other which will in any way impair the general scheme of treatment.

State Street Main Approach

After a very thorough discussion of the whole problem by members of the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings, the Capitol Park and the City Planning Commissions, it was agreed that the main entrance to the city from the east should be over State street and that either a subway or an ornamental viaduct should be provided at the Pennsylvania Railroad; that the streets surrounding the Capitol grounds should be widened in width; that full consideration should be given the matter of proper rights of way for the street railway lines so as not to interfere with the general landscape plan. It was also stated by Governor Brumbaugh that the Commonwealth through its proper officials would resist before the Public Service Commission any grant for the Walnut street bridge. The Governor emphatically declared that so long as he was Governor no appropriation for the widening of any street to be used as an approach to a bridge in Walnut street would be approved.

Subway or Viaduct

As to whether a viaduct or subway is more desirable at the State street crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad was a matter which it was agreed should be studied by the distinguished landscape architects who will be employed by the State and city to suggest the proper treatment. All present at the conference believed that this was a question of serious thought. It is expected that the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings will immediately choose one of several distinguished landscape designers to collaborate with Warren H. Manning, the city's landscape adviser, in the working out of the several problems involved in the reforming of the lines of Capitol Park from the railroad to Third street and from Walnut to North.

Governor Brumbaugh has requested the City Planning Commission to submit to the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings as soon as possible all data relating to the traffic upon the streets bounding the State grounds. This for the purpose of making a proper recommendation to the Legislature as to the widening of these streets.

The interchange of views respecting the various phases of the problem was very interesting and all present expressed gratification that the first important step had been taken which will lead to the final solution of the collaborative work now worked out in connection with the park treatment. Governor Brumbaugh expressed the hope that the Pennsylvania Railroad and all the other railroad interests of the city would co-operate in a plan for a great union station at Walnut street so that this station and the approaches thereto as well as the viaduct or subway at State street might be worked out in some harmonious scheme of treatment that would embrace the utilitarian as well as the artistic requirements.

Samuel B. Rambo, Superintendent of Public Grounds and Buildings, stated that the topographical survey recently made by students of State College and upon which a report was in preparation had been sent by express, but had not arrived in time for the conference. It will be used as a basis for a study of the whole matter by the two landscape designers representing the city and the State.

Things will move rapidly in planning this important section of the city so that it may be in effect a part of the local park system.
