QUINCE AND ORANGE PRESERVE

Pare, halve and core the quinces and to each quart allow one orange. Slice the oranges, then weigh both the quinces and the oranges, and for each pound of raw fruit allow one pound of sugar. Put it into a steamer, the quinces first and later the oranges, and cook until tender or until the fruit can be pierced with a straw. In the meantime cover with water the cores and skins of the quinces, boil slowly three-quarters of an hour, strain, add the sugar and boil for a few minutes longer. Drop the fruit into the hot syrup and allow to simmer over a very moder-

PEAR AND QUINCE PRESERVE

To three quarts of ripe quinces allow one pint of firm pears. Peel and cut both fruits in pieces. Cover the quinces with boiling water and cook for half an hour; then add the pears. For each pint of liquor add half a pint of sugar and simmer until the fruit is tender and the syrup thick. Seal while hot as for any other preserved fruit.
