REFEREE BEST JUDGE SAYS SCOTT

Compensation Decision Which Will Probably Have a Wide Bearing Is Given

Holding that the referee was in a position to consider and judge the quality, character and weight of testimony offered the State Compensation Board in an opinion by Commissioner John A. Scott dismisses the appeal in the claim of Palma Caccavale, Pittsburgh, against the Reliance Steel Casting Co., of that city. In the claim it was alleged that the claimant's husband died from results of a cut on his finger received while working for the company. Mr. Scott decides that it is a medical question and that produced by the claimant was uncertain and failed to show convincingly any causal relation between the cut and the gangrene which later developed at the elbow. The position of Referee Christley is upheld.

In an opinion by Chairman Harry A. Mackey the Pennsylvania Railroad is relieved of costs in a claim against it by Thomas E. Keefe, Brownsville. The disability for which he claimed compensation was found not to be due to any injury received while working for the company. The chairman says that the record fails to disclose any special reason why there should be any unusual disposition of the costs and relieves the company which he says had been "called upon to meet a claim unfounded in fact and based upon alleged injuries for which it would be responsible if such injuries really had been suffered in the course of the defendant's business."

The Board will meet in Pittsburgh on September 25.

NEWS OF STEELTON

BAD STRETCHES BEING REPAIRED

Wood Preserving Company Fulfills Contract to Keep Street in Repair

Steelton's main thoroughfare at present is undergoing extensive repairs. The United States Wood Preserving Company has a force of sixteen men working on the street. When the wooden blocks were laid, a little less than ten years ago, the company guaranteed the blocks to last ten years. The street did not hold out and now the company is fulfilling its contract. It was only after a summer's effort by borough officials that the work was started. When the company was first consulted the borough was refused consideration. Council authorized the highway committee to purchase blocks and proceed with the work. At this stage Nelson P. Lewis, of New York, the borough's consulting engineer on the block paving, demanded that the company fulfill its agreement. The work has been in operation for several weeks. The east-bound street car track has been completed from the upper end of the borough to Walnut street. The work will be completed in several weeks.

ANOTHER TIE LINE IN SERVICE

Telephone Connections Between Steelton and Bethlehem Plants Are Doubled

The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania completed on Saturday, October 7, another telephone circuit—known as a tie line—between the Bethlehem Steel Company's South Bethlehem private branch exchange switchboard and its Steelton private branch exchange switchboard. The first circuit was completed last March and since that time the telephone traffic between the two big plants has increased to such an extent that a second circuit was necessary. Each circuit, which is of copper wire, covers 104 miles and is strung on 4,152 poles, routed from the Bethlehem Steel Company's private branch exchange switchboard through the Bell company's Bethlehem exchange to Steelton, Reading, Lebanon, Harrisburg and Steelton. These circuits enable the steel company to conduct the affairs of the two plants as though they were located on the same ground and from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. are not idle a minute at a time.

Girard Says Nice Things About Quincy Bent

Some nice things are said of Quincy Bent, manager of the Steelton plant of the Bethlehem Steel Company, by "Girard" in the Philadelphia Ledger to-day. Read what he said: "Speaking of Quincy Bent, who has gone to Steelton to manage the big steel mill, Charles M. Schwab said, 'Mr. Bent is worth more than the plant itself.' " "You may think that a high estimate to place upon the value of a modest-looking man whom hundreds of you have often seen in Chestnut street. But Mr. Bent evidently knows what he is talking about. " "Take his own case. It would be as easy as breaking an egg or one of the Ten Commandments for Bethlehem Steel to build a new mill for five million dollars. Nevertheless, Bethlehem plus such a mill would be worth ten millions less without Mr. Schwab than Bethlehem to-day with Mr. Schwab and minus the new mill. " "Five millions would raise a fine structure and equip it with machinery, but it couldn't earn a quarter as much for the stockholders as Mr. Schwab's genius earns for them."
