

WHY SOME GIRLS LACK ADMIRERS

Young Woman Who Seems Overanxious to Please Repels Men

By Dorothy Dix

I get hundreds of letters from girls asking me what they can do to make themselves admired by men.

No one in the world is wise enough specifically to answer this question, and give any guaranteed rules for attracting the capricious masculine fancy, which, like the wind, bloweth where it listeth; and no one can tell when, or why, or where it listeth.

Why some girls attract the admiration of men and others are passed over: why some women are born to be belles, and others are foredoomed to be wallflowers, is one of the feminine mysteries that have puzzled every generation of women from Mother Eve down.

Some say that beauty is the magnet that draws men. But this is not invariably the case, for pretty girls are often left disconsolate, while homely girls have men flocking after them.

Money will occasionally buy a husband, but it will not buy a girl beau if she has no other attractions than wealth.

Social position will not give her popularity, nor will fine clothes make her sought after, for we have all seen society girls sitting alone at summer resorts, solitary and alone, on trunks of Paris clothes, while the girl who was a mere nobody, with only a few shabby frocks, had to divide her admirers up in squads and run them on schedule time.

Now I do more than any other woman, can give a girl any reliable recipe for winning the admiration of men. But I can tell her why a great many girls are not admired.

In the first place, the girl who desires to be admired by men generally falls into two stools. She is overanxious, or else she is too inaccessible and coy.

She either runs after men too much or runs from them too fast, and both plans are fatal.

A girl should never forget that, in theory at least, man is the pursuer and woman the pursued. This is not always true, but the girl's success depends on keeping up the delusion and making the man think that he is chasing her down.

Nothing disgusts a man more than for a woman to throw herself at his head. It gives him the feeling of being taken in and over-reached, and so, no matter how much a girl desires a man's attentions, she should go warily and stealthily about seeking them.

Many a girl has broken off a promising love affair by calling up a man over the telephone during business hours and by her insistence on his coming to see her.

A man likes to feel that he is a free agent in such matters, and that he can come or not as he pleases, and nothing makes a girl more unpopular than to get the reputation of being a grabber who never lets a man go once she gets her clutches upon him.

U. S. STEEL IS TRADING CENTER

Related Industrials and More Speculative Equipment Variably Higher

New York, Oct. 21. — Interest in today's strong and active opening centered largely around United States Steel which monopolized the trading to a greater extent than before.

Steel's first transaction embraced 25,000 shares at 120 to 119 1/2, with numerous subsequent sales of 1,000 to 7,500 shares at 120 1/2 to 120 3/4, the latter quotation being within one-fourth of its high record.

Related Industrials and the more speculative equipments and war issues were variably higher. General Motors rose 11 points to the new record of 800 and unprecedented prices were registered by Cuba Cane, American Beet and Cuban-American sugars, the latter rising 7 points to 225.

Coppers, Petroleum, Central Leather and other active specialties rose more moderately. Rails displayed a strong undertone.

Thrilling Mystery of Historical Exercises Draw Thousands From All Over East

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 21.—Two hundredth anniversary of the removal of the Yale College—then the collegiate school for the little New Haven College, from Saybrook to New Haven, was observed by the University and the city of New Haven to-day.

The story of the founding of the school, its existence through the revolutionary period, its part in affairs prior to the Civil War, its more recent growth as an institution of learning and Yale of to-day, was told in pageantry.

The Yale bowl with its accommodations for nearly 60,000 persons was the setting, while upon the green turf more than 2,000 persons took part in the episodes and incidents depicting college life.

The pageant had been arranged at a cost of about $30,000 and drew here thousands of Yale alumni from all over the East.

The historical exercises were held in Battel Chapel with a sermon by President Arthur T. Hadley, of the University, and an historical address by Professor Willison Walker.

To-night the city provided a promenade concert and an illumination of the central green.

WEST SHORE NEWS

Result of Election of Sabbath School Officers

Le Moyne, Pa., Oct. 21. — Mrs. R. W. Sawyer, secretary of the Lower East Side Sabbath School Association, officially announced the election of officers at the annual convention in Camp Hill on Thursday as follows:

to tell me how that bracelet came into your possession?"

"He made a bolt then and there, but he fetched up against me, outside the door. He retreated, and I followed him in and closed the door."

"Go on, Sis," I said. "You're doing nobly."

"I think, even then, he'd have made another try for the door, but he was still lame."

"He staid up the situation and faced us both sullenly."

"You see," Sis said, "a very splendid gentleman, who is quite innocent, has been taking the blame for all this. We happened not to know that."

"That's all. There were some facts, such as the bracelet, that wouldn't fit in."

"How do you know I gave Lottie the bracelet?"

"It was quite simple," said Sis sweetly. "I asked her this morning. You see, she didn't know how you came by it. She didn't think it was genuine, and she thought she hadn't the remotest idea she was getting you into trouble."

Say, I was uncomfortable. He wasn't a bad type, quite a gentleman, to look at, and I hate to see people cornered.
