

OF INTEREST TO THE WOMEN

"THEIR MARRIED LIFE"

Copyright by International News Service

"Warren, are you really going with me?" Helen said delightedly.

"Of course I am. You speak as though I had never done anything for you in my life. Seems to me that I can remember a few things I have done to please you." And Warren smiled his good-natured smile.

"You have, you old dear, but I just didn't think about your being able to take the time."

"Well, it's different at the end of the week. It won't mean more than a morning or so off, and I guess I can spare it."

This conversation took place a couple of days before Helen had planned to go to Cleveland to get Winifred. She had thought that it would be necessary to take the trip alone, and when Warren suggested going with her she could hardly believe her ears.

The trip always meant a night train, a hurried meeting with her mother in Cleveland and then the trip back with Winifred. It was a pleasure jaunt when Warren could be with her, but Helen had grown to refrain from bothering him. She hated to be the type of woman who fostered her relatives upon her husband.

The day that Helen had chosen to go to Cleveland dawned bright and cold. Helen, with the excitement of taking a trip, was in a good mood. Her blood, had never been so happy. From the moment that she had sprung out of bed her nerves had been keyed up to a high pitch of excitement, and during the morning Mary spoke to her more than once about it.

"You'd better look out, Mrs. Curtis," she said, reproachfully, "it's bad luck to be too happy. I've heard that. Why, Mary, I'm not superstitious," Helen had laughed back, and Mary had said nothing more, but her head had wagged mysteriously, as though the will of the gods was not to be treated lightly.

Helen in Fine Spirits Warren came home in good spirits. The bags were packed. Helen wore her new suit, with a little satin finished sailor hat. She had never looked better than when she descended with Warren in the elevator, her fur coat over her arm and a new veil crushing her soft hair down on her cheeks.

Everything pleased Helen; it just did not seem as if anything could possibly go wrong. Warren had secured a section on the right side of the train. The car was not crowded, she was conscious that she had never looked better, and she was going to see her baby in a few hours. Her cup of happiness was filled to the brim, and woman like, she could not see a cloud in the sky while matters were so beautifully smooth.

"I have a little surprise for you," Warren said as they began to steam out of the station.

"For me, dear? Oh, I do hope it is something nice."

"Of course it is something nice. I've been planning to surprise you ever since I said I would make the trip."

"But what is it, Warren? Oh, please tell me." And Helen put out her hand impulsively, as she did when she was deeply moved.

"Your mother and I have been having a nice little correspondence of late," Warren returned teasingly.

"You have? What about?"

"I won't tease you," Warren returned. "We're not going to Cleveland this time; that's why I wouldn't let you see the tickets. We're going right on through to make the folks a little visit."

"All the way to Glenville?" Helen questioned incredulously.

"All the way. I haven't paid a visit to the folks in a good long while now."

Warren tried to speak casually, but he knew very well that Helen's eyes were brimming over with tears, and he squeezed the hand that she had laid on his and said lightly:

"You make it embarrassing for a man to do anything for you. I actually feel as though I have been neglecting you."

Helen could hardly realize that Warren had planned this for her. She had no power to add to Warren's comfort and pleasure. How wonderful it was to have him think and plan for her pleasure this way. As they were passing down the aisle on their way to the dining car the train gave a lurch and Helen was forced to cling to one of the seats for a moment's support. A young couple had boarded the train just ahead of them in New York and Helen had noticed the girl particularly, she was so very pretty.

Now Helen was conscious of a pair of bright brown eyes under a red velvet hat that closely fitted over masses of dark hair. The youth with her looked devoted. Helen imagined that they were the wedding trip and she smiled a little. A book that the girl had been holding fell to the floor and Warren bent to pick it up. The girl smiled up at him that softened her eyes in her large eyes.

The whole thing took but a moment, but the time was sufficient to make a difference in Warren's attitude.

"Take my arm," he said brusquely, "if you can't stand more steadily on your feet."

And Helen felt queerly hurt, as though an outside element had crept in to mar in some subtle manner the happiness she had been so confident would stay.

(Watch for the next instalment of this intensely interesting series.)

COMBINATION SUIT IN FINE NAINSOOK

Careful Attention to Fitting Underwear Shows in Outside Garments

By MAY MANTON

8808 (With Basting Line and Added Seam Allowance) Combination Corset Cover and Drawers, 36 to 46 bust.

For the medium size will be needed, 2 1/2 yards of material 36 or 44 inches wide with 4 1/2 yards of embroidery and 3 yards of beading for the drawers.

The pattern No. 8808 is cut in size: from 36 to 46 inches bust measure, and the embroidery pattern No. 784 is made in one size. They will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of 15 cents for each.

Letter List

LIST OF LETTERS REMAINING IN THE Post Office, at Harrisburg, Pa., for the week ending October 28, 1916:

Ladies' List — E. B. Allan (D. L.), Pauline Bretz, Mrs. Lillian Brown, Mrs. J. C. Bryson, Miss Josephine Buller, Marie Carols, Miss Clara Carroll, Mrs. Mary C. Cooper, Miss M. C. Daley, Mrs. Ella W. Daniels, Mrs. H. J. Deane, Mrs. E. J. Dodge, Belle Evans (D. L.), Mrs. Bertha Hadlock, Mrs. George Harman, Mrs. Ella Keller, Miss Anna M. Krueger, Miss Anne Laucks, Miss Maud Patterson, Mrs. Georgia Presser, Mrs. H. A. Miller, Mrs. Jen. Morstine, Mrs. M. E. Miss (D. L.), Sarah Neater, Mrs. H. A. William L. Richardson, John Schuster, Mrs. W. Shoemaker, Mrs. Geo. Smith, Mrs. Mamie Smith, Mrs. Jennie Sweney, Miss Pauline Thorne, Mrs. H. B. Troskie, Miss Lillian Wagner, Mrs. Mrs. Hattie Winn, Miss M. Zimmerman, Gentlemen's List — Giulio Albani, D. Arnold, Willie Bank, Alfred Bardell, Wm. Beales, Frank Beard, D. C. Boyden, Clyde Boyer, J. F. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carper, Earl Chalmers, Robert Chinn, P. H. Clement, James Cluff, W. S. Conklin, L. Curtis, Everett Dean, Everett Dean (2), Eugene A. Deming, Henry Dis Rosin, Chas. Fink, C. C. Fitch, R. V. Funk, Harry Graesman, A. K. Gardner, C. A. Garland, W. M. Garrett (2), R. H. Geib, Raymond Gordon, J. H. Graham, Sam. Graham (D. L.), Rev. J. H. Green, E. W. Grubb, Jas. E. Hancock, John H. Hiler, J. Hilton, John D. Hoover, John W. Houck (D. L.), P. C. Hiver, Owen B. E. King, John Koch, Rose Kramer, Dr. H. R. Kreiter, S. W. Kuhnert, Jack Layman, James Lenis, H. H. Lingie, Wm. E. Lloyd, Earl Long, C. Crafton Marshall, Morris Motley, Rev. H. B. McConnell, B. D. McPherson, Adam Metcovich (D. L.), Arthur Morant, Hoover Mumma, Willis Munson, Mr. and Mrs. Houston Newman, William Page, Jack Richards (2), Benjamin Schwarz (2), Irvin Sellmages, Geo. Smith, Edward Sheaffer (D. L.), Major C. P. Stamm, Chester Steinman, Charlie Swords, Adam VII, John Watson, W. S. Warner, Matt Whalen, Numan Whitman, Leroy Williams, Sam. Williams, Poth Yozzel, Col. Samuel P. Yown.

Firms — American Horse Shoe Co., Empire Art Institute (2), Excelsior Oak Extract Co., Hoffman & Compton (2), Moskowitz & Herbach, Rembrandt Art School.

Foreign — Santo Pietrobono. Persons should invariably have their mail matter addressed to their street and number, thereby insuring prompt delivery by the carriers.

FRANK C. SITES, Postmaster.

STATE'S FEEDS ARE REPORTED UPON

Some of the Cattle Feeds Are Not as State Chemists Would Like to Have Them

Judging from the samples examined, the character of the feeding stuffs which were sold in Pennsylvania during 1915 was normal, although there is room for improvement in a number of brands, says Dr. J. W. Kellogg, chief chemist of the State Department of Agriculture, in his annual report covering last year. An improvement in the method of stating guarantees was noted over the condition observed during previous years in certain classes of feeds, although there was a slight increase in the number of deficiencies where the protein was 1 per cent. or more and the fat one-half of 1 per cent. or more below the minimum guarantee. The larger proportion of the deficiencies occurred in the cottonseed meals, molasses dairy feeds and poultry feeds, and the greatest number of variations noted, where the list of ingredients identified by microscopical examinations as compared with those claimed, was in the case of the poultry feeds.

Of the total number of proprietary and miscellaneous mixed feeds numbering 778, 32.52 per cent. of the samples examined showed a variation in the ingredients found as compared with those claimed. The presence of traces and small amounts of whole weed seeds was noted in 33 samples of the molasses dairy feeds and in 94 samples of the poultry feeds. In 18 samples of the latter class of foods whole weed seeds occurred in large amounts, indicating that the poultry foods are not as clean in this respect as they should be. From this data it is plainly evident there is need for improvement and more care in stating properly the list of ingredients in mixed feeds as well as freeing these feeds from weed seeds. In a number of samples of molasses horse, stock and mule feeds the content of moisture appeared excessive, running as high as 20 per cent.

A large number of the feeds sold in the State were guaranteed with "sliding guarantees," or with minimum and maximum guarantees for protein, fat and fiber, which, in many cases, ranged several per cent. between the lower and higher figures. The results of the analysis of the samples received showed that the higher guarantees were not, as a rule, maintained, and, therefore, it is also evident that this method of guaranteeing is unsatisfactory.

The department has taken the position that "sliding guarantees" are use and misleading and contrary to the requirements of the feeding stuffs law and accordingly has issued notices to the trade to this effect. It is hoped that in the future only single and correct guarantees will be used, thus more truly indicating what the feeds will run upon analysis.

During the year covered there were 523 registrations for feeding stuffs received from manufacturers and importers, including 2,056 brands and kinds of feeds being sold in the State. Of this number of feeds 1,352 were those having proprietary or distinctive brand names and the remaining number included for the most part well-known byproducts feeds not having distinctive brand names. Registrations were also received from a number of dealers listing feeds already or subsequently listed in registrations submitted by the original producers. The names of these manufacturers and importers, together with the names and brands of the feeds registered, are included in this report.

The number of special samples sent to the department for analysis by manufacturers, importers, dealers and purchasers located in the state was 225.

Soda crackers are a most nourishing flour food — Uneeda Biscuit are the most nourishing of soda crackers. Use them at meals for their food value. Eat them between meals because they are ever crisp and good. At all grocers.

THEDA BARA DIRECTION WILLIAM FOX

THEDA BARA, appearing at the Colonial Theater To-day in William Fox's special seven-reel production of Shakespeare's immortal love story, "Romeo and Juliet."

AMUSEMENTS REVIEW OF MAJESTIC BILL

First Half Filled With Variety Which Gives a Clever Bill

The first half of this week's bill at the Majestic ought to prove thoroughly entertaining for the most discerning vaudeville critic. Large audiences greeted each performance on the opening day and apparently went away well pleased with the bill. Gordon and Kinley, in a comedy dancing novelty, opened the show and put across some extremely difficult acrobatic dancing. DeWitt, billed as "The Abbreviated Comedian" (he can't possibly be over forty inches tall), bubbles over with catchy songs and funny little dances, and gets a generous hand from the house. Headlining the bill for the first half, is the Moanala Sextet, presenting an Hawaiian Musical Melange, and featuring "Uke-le-le" which is much in evidence, but is not overdone. The troupe gets the maximum of melody out of every musical instrument introduced in the act, and there are many. This act closes with the native dance done to real Hawaiian music—the one that made "Old Bill Bailey" famous.

Lander Bros., a lobe and a traveling bill salesman, put on some clever chatter, catchy songs and a recitation or two, each one funnier than the other. The incessant applause brings the act out of the wings several times. Gordon and Day, a trick bicycle act, give one of the funniest of its kind on the road. The act is done by one of the handsomest women and the homeliest man in vaudeville—an odd combination, but a winner.

MAX ROBERTSON. ORPHEUM — Friday evening, November 3—Mme. Gaski. Coming soon—"Fair and Warmer." MAJESTIC—"Vaudeville." COLONIAL—"Romeo and Juliet." GRAND—"Caprice of the Mountains." REGENT—"Each Pearl a Tear." VICTORIA—"The Lawless Law." The present season finds Mme. Gaski at the pinnacle toward which she has moved steadily and surely since the beginning of her public career—the acknowledged queen of lyric and dramatic song. Re-engaged for the Metropolitan Opera House to sing the great Wagnerian roles—and an increasing number of Italian roles which each season furnish fresh evidence of her art's constant growth. The prima donna's beautiful voice and radiant presence make such occasions the not events of each season.

Mme. Gaski appears but once in this city when she presents the opening number of the Friday Evening Musical Course at the Orpheum, upon November 3.

Judging from the reception accorded the opening two subjects of his new series of travelogues, just begun in Chicago and Milwaukee, Burton Holmes Scores Another Success. "struck a winner" in his choice of subjects for the coming season.

His first two topics, "Canada—Coast to Coast" and "The Canadian Rockies," have attracted the largest audiences he has had in several seasons, while the advance sale for the remaining three subjects, "Imperial Britain," "The German Fatherland" and "LaBelle France," is many times as large as last year. Mr. Holmes will begin his series of travelogues here about the middle of November.

One feminine admirer of Fannie Ward the beautiful photodramatic actress, have a great treat in store for them when they see "Each Pearl a Tear," now being shown at the Regent.

In this production Miss Ward wears many beautiful gowns and her famous string of pearls.

People who are of the opinion that Theda Bara can only portray vampire parts on the motion picture screen, will be surprised if they take advantage of their last opportunity to-day to see "Romeo and Juliet" at the Colonial.

Says Maggie the Cook

"It ain't only what's in what they eats—it's what they gets out of it that counts. Give 'em a food for breakfast, I says, that has a lot in it. And let that lot be such that their insides can take it all up, easy-like. Give 'em sweet and demure in this kind of part as she is wicked in "vampire" roles, and every one that had the pleasure of seeing the play yesterday were high in their praise of both her and Mr. Hilliard's work. Harry Hilliard, who takes the part of "Romeo," is exceptionally good looking and is a clever actor. The picture is produced in magnificent style and is far superior to the ordinary five-act dramas. Wednesday and Thursday, William Fox will present June Caprice, who will be remembered from her initial appearance here in "Caprice of the Mountains," in a new six-part feature, "Little Miss Happiness." A picture that overflows with the quaint humor and spirit of the old-time vaudeville with the innocent girl who passed her days among the daisies. The thirteenth episode of "The Grip of Evil" will be on the same program.

Cream of Barley The Energy Food

WRIGLEY'S

Latest

Lasting and sweet Delicious to meet

Don't forget

WRIGLEY'S after every meal

JF 2