WEASEL NOTE IS SAID TO EXIST

Republicans Reported to Be in Possession of Convincing Data

New York, Nov. 2. — President Wilson's "denial" has merely fanned the flames in the controversy over the softening of the second Lustania note to Germany. The flareback has had these developments:

A copy of the mollifying note or "postscript," as it has sometimes been called, is said to be in existence. Pressure is being exerted to compel President Wilson to disclose all the facts as his "denial" is pronounced evasive. Republican leaders here are in possession of data, it is believed which will place the President in an embarrassing position if he fails to reveal all.

Senator Lodge, in another speech, declares that Wilson's denial is merely in form and not in substance because the "softening" was embodied in the arbitration proposal, which the President admits he considered but rejected.

Former Secretary of War Gar-tration proposal, which the President admits he considered but rejected.

Former Secretary of War Garrison declines absolutely to go to the assistance of the President. He remains silent. So does Secretary Lansing.

A review of the record in the Lusitania case shows that Bryan publicly announced after resigning that the second note had been "very much softened" as the result of an "important change."

Bomb Is Held Back
Former Secretary of War Garrison has become the central figure in the controversy which has arisen over the charge originally brought by Senator Lodge that the President had temporarily approved of a separate note supplemental to the second Lusitania note designed to appease the feelings of Germany.

Refusing to accept the denial issued by the President of the recolly the recollection.

note designed to appease the feelings of Germany.

Refusing to accept the denial issued by the President as meeting the real charge—that such a supplemental note had been indorsed by the President and was upon the point of transmission when it was stopped — the Republican campaign managers yesterday called upon the President to make public the whole transaction and intimated very strongly that Mr. Garrison was in possession of facts that would instantly clear up the matter, provided the President should insist upon standing upon his denial.

What is more, it was made evident last night that the Republicans are in possession of information themselves which, it is intimated, will make it impossible for the details regarding what went on in Washington at the critical time to remain long in obscurity.

Note May Be Produced

Mr. Wilson's denial, instead of disposing of the matter, has merely made more insistent the demand that those, in possession of the facts divulge them. That some one is in possession of the actual note alleged to have received Mr. Wilson's approval was rumored in political circles yesterday. This note, it is believed, will be produced before the end of the campaign.

Market Reflects Strong Sentiment For Hughes

Growing confidence in Wall street that Mr. Hughes would be elected next Tuesday resulted in a vigorous advance in prices yesterday. United States Steel and all other active shares moved up from two to more than four points. From the Stock Exchange floor it was reported that no Wilson money was in sight, and that ten to six was being offered on Hughes.

Traders were quick to take advantage of the decided swing in sentiment, and prices were bid up briskly, the close finding stocks at the day's best level. The action of the market was taken to mean that a Republican victory would insure still higher levels, while the re-election of Wilson would have the opposite effect.

COST OF DYES BEFORE THE WAR Headliner at Majestic The dyes used on this side of the water cost the consumer between thirty and forty millions of dollars in nor-mal times. This sum does not measure the total value of the industry, beure the total value of the industry, because in addition to the dyes produced there are many drugs and chemicals obtained as by-products of the manufacturer which swell the total to probably fifty millions annually.

The fact that dye plants may also be used with but little change for the manufacturer of explosives is in line with the generally felt need for preparedness, and finally there is the important features of the establishment of our manufacturing self dependence.—P. R. Moses, in the Engineering Magazine for October.

A MELLOW FLAVOR THAT LASTS

Chew "American Navy" and Get Real Tobacco Taste

HIGH QUALITY, BIG VALUE

All the enjoyment and satisfaction of tobacco is in the taste. The only way to taste tobacco is to chew it. And the form of chew that gives you the most taste is the plug form.

Compare a sweet, juicy chew of American Navy plug with a chew of the best "scrap" tobacco. Right away you'll see how much more tasty and enjoyable is American Navy.

American Navy is made entirely of whole leaf—the same leaf that is used in making good cigars—and the sweet, savory juices that nature puts into the leaf are pressed evenly through the whole plug, so that every chew of American Navy fills you plumb full of tasty satisfaction. And that choice flavor of American Navy lasts. Get a 5c or 10c cut of American Navy from your dealer and try it. That will convince you
