

HIGHER RENTS MERE BUGABOO OWNER STATES

Dr. John Oenslager, One of City's Biggest Landlords, Pooh-poohs

INCREASE NEGLIGIBLE However, if Direct Taxation Is Necessary, Renter Will Be "Soaked"

Higher rent possibilities as an argument against the passage next Tuesday of the high school loan was depreciated to-day as a mere bugaboo by Dr. John Oenslager, one of the city's biggest owners of tenant properties.

The Need of the Loan Finally, Dr. Oenslager emphasized the necessity for providing increased high school facilities.

Dr. Oenslager talked on the loan and the incident problem of increased taxation and its results in answer to some questions on the subject proffered by a Telegraph reporter.

The Ultimate Consumer "Why, to my mind, the increase in rents, if there be any increase necessary, will be negligible," he replied.

ASSAILS WILSON FOR FAILURE TO CUT LIVING COST

Hughes Makes Tariff His Theme and Cites Broken Promises

ENDING CAMPAIGN TOUR G. O. P. Nominee Has Spoken in Thirty-Three States in Four Trips

Hudson, N. Y., Nov. 3. — In his speech here to-day Charles E. Hughes made the tariff his chief theme and assailed the Democratic party for its failure to reduce the high cost of living.

"I think they were just as eloquent in promises four years ago as they are to-day," Mr. Hughes said. "As I look back to the statements that were made at that time, I cannot see how any one could have said anything more eloquently, more persuasively than was said at that time with respect to what was going to be done for American labor and American business."

Reduced Chances of Earning "The usual companion, however, has become more and more robust, and seems to thrive on a Democratic administration. And it is mounting higher and higher and taller and taller when we consider the promises in relation to present promises, we wonder whether they are going to do any better with respect to the future than they did in these recent years with respect to this highly important matter. While they did not reduce the cost of living they were eminently successful in reducing the chances of making a living. They did not promise that they promised quite the contrary; they had a wonderful program; they were going to reduce the cost of living; they were going to provide for the expenses of the government through their tariff system; they were going to increase the opportunities for business and they were going to have a more robust and more vigorous people."

Opportunities Vanished "Well they had not had a chance to do it for a great many years. They proceeded to do it with very extraordinary results. In the first place they had a tariff that did not produce revenue. We had a great falling off in revenue through a tariff for revenue. We had a great increase of imports and so in time of peace which now they emphasize, forgetting the little wars we have had in the past, we had a great increase in revenue through a tariff for revenue. We had a great increase in revenue through a tariff for revenue. We had a great increase in revenue through a tariff for revenue."

Mr. Hughes will end his travels as a presidential candidate to-day. He left Albany at 8:15 o'clock this morning for New York, spending the day campaigning down the Hudson river valley. To-day's journey was the windup of four campaign trips which have carried him approximately 25,000 miles through 22 States. He started August 5 from New York and spent virtually two and one-half months on the road, not counting the three brief periods of rest that have punctuated his campaign. During his campaign he has visited the chief cities of every northern and southern State, except Vermont, has been through the Middle West four times and has appeared in every Western and Northwestern State.
