PAY SCHEDULES AGAINST WILSON

Willcox Shows Figures in Charging He "Juggled" With the Facts

Washington, D. C.—President Wilson completely ignores the facts in the railway controversy in defense of the Adamson eight-hour bill, according to a statement issued by Chairman Willcox, of the Republican National Committee. Mr. Willcox says:

"President Wilson absolutely ignores the question at issue between the railway employees and their employers when he attempts to defend the railway wage-increasing bill. In his efforts to create the impression that the men were starving to curtail their hours of labor and that what is popularly known as 'the eight-hour day' was involved he ignores the facts. The men were seeking higher wages, not shorter hours. It was not a question of the eight-hour day, and it is hard to believe that Mr. Wilson does not know that."

"Mr. Wilson said to his audience at Shadow Lawn on September 23: 'And so I asked the privilege of consulting with them (the representatives of the railroads and their employees). Before I consulted with them I of course made myself acquainted with the points of the controversy and I learned that they were simple indeed; that the men demanded an eight-hour day, and that in order to make the eight-hour day work, they demanded that the railroads pay them one half more for over time than they paid them for the time in the regular day, and that beyond the eight-hours than they paid for the time within the eight hours they demanded that they be paid for overtime'."

"In this paragraph Mr. Wilson says he acquainted himself with points at controversy and then says the men demanded 'an eight-hour day,' and that the railroads pay them one half more for overtime than they paid them for time in the regular day. Now, I say that the men demanded nothing of the kind. They did not demand an eight-hour day and they did not demand one-half more for time in excess of eight hours, that is clearly the impression Mr. Wilson would convey but it is not a true impression."

"The men did not demand an eight-hour day because they were willing to work ten, twelve, fourteen or even sixteen hours a day and to accept pro rata for the time in excess of eight hours, provided the speed basis they asked was conceded. The man who now receives forty cents an hour under the demands of the brotherhoods for ten hours, pay for eight hours time would receive fifty cents instead of forty cents an hour or four dollars for an eight-hour day instead of for a ten-hour day. But according to their demand if any man worked sixteen hours, the legal maximum time, and ran 200 miles in that time his pay would amount to only eight dollars or fifty cents an hour for the entire sixteen hours. The railroads would not be compelled to pay time and a half or 'punitive overtime' for a single hour."

"Operation of 'Overtime Allowance'"
"The demand for overtime, with which Mr. Wilson juggles in his effort to mislead the public into the impression that it was for an eight-hour day with punitive overtime, operates only when the men are unable to make the agreed speed. The employee is paid there time or mileage, whichever is most profitable to him. If he cannot make the agreed speed the road must pay punitive overtime, not for the time he works in excess of eight hours, but for the time in excess of what he would have worked had the agreed speed been maintained. For instance, the man who works sixteen hours and makes 175 miles, instead of 200 would be entitled to pay at the regular rate for fourteen hours, that being the time required to run seventy-five miles at the agreed speed limit of 12 1/2 miles an hour, and for time and a half for the remaining two hours. The compensation of a man earning fifty cents an hour, therefore, and making a 175-mile trip in sixteen hours would be fourteen hours at fifty cents an hour, seven dollars, plus two hours overtime at seventy-five cents an hour, $1.50 or $8.50 in all. As Mr. Wilson states it his pay would be eight hours at fifty cents, four dollars, plus eight hours overtime at time and a half (seventy-five) cents, six dollars, making a total compensation for sixteen hours of ten dollars. Of course, Mr. Wilson's statement is untrue, and the difference is material."

"If the men had demanded an eight-hour day, with time and one-half or punitive overtime for all time in excess of eight hours, there might be some excuse for Mr. Wilson's effort to create the impression that the popularly known as 'the eight-hour day' was involved. But that is not what the men demanded, and it is inexplicable that Mr. Wilson can believe it was."

To Quickly Remove Ugly Hairs From Face

(Beauty Notes)
Beauty-destroying hairs are soon banished from the skin with the aid of a delatone paste, made by mixing some water with a little plain powdered delatone. This is spread upon the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed to remove the remaining delatone. This simple treatment banishes every trace of hair and leaves the skin without a blemish. Caution should be used to be certain that it is delatone you buy.

and a half service, for every hour of work beyond the eight."

"This was a bold statement of fact, as I have shown. And further along Mr. Wilson was compelled, in order to get the legislation he demanded of Congress, to codify his first statement. When he came to make his recommendations of legislation he said:

"Second, the establishment of an eight-hour day as a legal basis alike of work and of wages, etc."
"It was that eight-hour day he made the basis of wages on which the brotherhoods insisted. Certainly Congress appreciated that, for it passed a bill which made the eight-hour day the basis of wages and compelled the railroads to pay their men ten hours' wages for eight hours' work and pro rata for all additional time, and which he informed himself to the satisfaction of the men in no way operate to curtail the hours of labor, and the brotherhood presidents were satisfied and called off the dog."

"The men asked for no time-and-a-half pay as long as they made twelve and one-half miles an hour, irrespective of how long they worked. And it is in the face of this fact that Mr. Wilson seeks to make the public believe that the men were trying to limit their working day to eight hours and asking excess pay for all the time in excess of eight hours."

"Mr. Wilson Misstated the Facts"
"Mr. Wilson misstated the fact in his first message to Congress and he misstated them again at Shadow Lawn. Under the schedule demanded by the railroad men in their original demand, mind you, a trainman who worked ten hours and made 125 miles would get no punitive overtime. He could be worked twelve hours and if he made 150 miles there would be no punitive overtime due him. He could be worked fourteen hours, and if he made 175 miles there would be no punitive overtime due him. He could, however, as I said, be worked sixteen hours and if he made 200 miles there would be no punitive overtime due him, punitive overtime being the 'one-half more for overtime' to which Mr. Wilson refers."

"President Wilson misstated the facts in the first paragraph of his message to Congress on this subject. He said then:

"I have come to ask your assistance in dealing with a very grave situation which has arisen out of the demand of the employees of the railroads engaged in freight train service that they be granted an eight-hour working day, safeguarded by payment for an hour

House No. 13, Elephant on Hands of Young Pair

London, Nov. 3. — No. 13, king of superstitious signs, has caused the institution of an action in the Westminster county court, a young married couple being the defendants.
It all came about this way: The man and his wife looked over some new houses in a new street and decided they would like to live in one of the dwellings. They talked to owners of the property and everything was rosy until they came around a week later to feast their eyes on their prospective home. Ah! No. 13 stared them from its resting place over the front door.
Shivering with fear, they said "Nay!" and left the premises. They later received notice of the suit begun by the solicitors because, it was alleged, they stopped negotiations for taking the house on mortgage.

Settlement of Differences by Law and Not Force Only Way to Secure Lasting Peace

Paris, Nov. 3. — A lasting international peace can be made possible only by the foundation of a society of nations whose guiding principle shall be the settlement of differences by law and not by force, declares a resolution adopted by the Congress of the League of Rights of Man in session here.

Lancaster County Faces Pumpkinless Thanksgiving

Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 3. — The Thanksgiving dinner may be minus the pumpkin pie if the housewife is dependent solely upon the Lancaster county supply.
The cow pumpkin is scarce this season and many cornfields haven't any. Local hospitals rely on donation day bringing them a big supply for the winter, but this year the number was comparatively small.

BOMBARD PORT

Rome, via Paris, Nov. 3.—An Italian dirigible airship on the night of November 1, says an official statement, dropped 17 bombs on fortifications and warships in the roadstead of San Pietro in Schero bay. The dirigible returned without being hit in spite of an intense fire from the Austrian coast batteries. San Pietro is a town on the island of Braza, the largest of the Dalmatian islands in the Adriatic sea, about 110 miles southeast of Trieste.

FIVE MINUTES! NO INDIGESTION NO GAS OR ANY STOMACH MISERY

Don't Suffer! Here's the quickest, surest relief known for Dyspepsia, Sourness, Heartburn or an Upset Stomach — Try it!

Wonder what upset your stomach— which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; your head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested foods; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Diapepsin and in five minutes you will wonder what became of the indigestion and distaste.
Millions of men and women to-day know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps the stomach regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.
If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is astonishing. Please don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.
