

SCENES FROM WILLIAM PENN HIGHWAY LINK DEDICATION

GOVERNOR WANTS GREAT ROAD BILL

use of all of the revenue from automobile licenses for road maintenance. The Governor came out flatfooted for this appropriation and when the crowd had cheered he said that it was "up to the legislators" to find the money. "We need that money for development of our highways and the general assembly is the body that must get it. You people go home and work for the election of legislators pledged to do right by the roads and we will soon have a great system," said he.

The Governor's speech struck home in the crowd of 4,000 persons which had gathered at Oakland Park to hear him and after the meeting many persons pledged their support to him in his plan for a highway appropriation.

A Notable Road

The road opened yesterday is 42-244 feet long and sixteen feet wide for its eight miles between Bethlehem and Easton. It is built of reinforced concrete on specifications prepared by the State, the cost, which was $200,000, being borne by the cement manufacturing companies which donated the cement to the State, and the Commonwealth which did the work and got the road. Over 40,000 barrels of cement were used and the road is said to be a model of its kind.

A statement issued regarding it yesterday said: "Concrete highways, such as this one, are designed not only to meet traffic conditions of all kinds in all seasons, but also to include another economy. This is the extremely low maintenance cost. The average maintenance on concrete roads, taking the country over, does not exceed thirty dollars a mile a year. The thorough and efficient manner in which this Easton-Allentown road has been built should put at the head of this economic class. No road in this section of Pennsylvania is subjected to traffic of all types so excessive as is this one and there is belief generally that this highway will become an object lesson of great practical value, not only to this State, but also to other sections of the country."

The road now extends from Easton to Bethlehem and an extension from Bethlehem to Allentown will be built next year. The road was formally dedicated at Bethlehem and by the Governor and G. A. Viehman, of New Brunswick, chairman of the New Jersey Chamber of Commerce, and representative of Governor Miller. They were assisted by the high school band of Little Misses Montague and Ray, of Easton, while Miss Elizabeth Traill Green, of Easton, smashed a bottle of champagne and christened the highway. Then while the crack Bethlehem Steel band played Governor Brumbaugh shoveled off some dirt with a silver shovel used in a similar ceremony in Illinois by Governor Dunne.

Thousands Gathered It was great highway occasion for Eastern Pennsylvania. Between 4,000 and 5,000 persons traveled over the extension in 942 automobiles. People attended the "doings" from all over this State, New Jersey and New York. Special trains were run from this city, Philadelphia, Scranton and New York, the Juniata valley, Blair county men, Cambria counties and Pittsburghers joining the trains here. On arrival at Easton automobiles were provided for all comers, those for the Governor and officials being gally captioned, while National State, Allentown and Bethlehem flags were flown. Easton and most of Bethlehem took the day off and a good part of Allentown helped, while many poured over the bridge from Philadelphia and other Jersey towns. The parade was the biggest automobile demonstration ever held in that part of the State and there was a double line of automobiles for miles on the new "concrete link." The road was inspected by road authorities from three States and most of the counties and no end of questions asked. Ed. C. Shimer, one of the field marshals, in describing it said it was "dustless, rustless and cussless."

Speeches Celebrate Event So many people crowded into the pavilion to hear the speeches that part of the floor gave way. William Jennings of this city, president of the William Penn Highway Association, called the meeting a high type of citizen. The Governor in his remarks told how he and the steel magnate had been raised within a few miles of each other and of long friendship, which he was proud to review. After the Governor's address Mr. Schwab had one of those stirring "short talks" which he has made in roads and in his native State. Mr. Viehman then spoke and was followed by Congressman H. J. Steele, of Easton, who with Col. Harry C. Trexler, of Allentown, is mainly responsible for the new "link"; and Chief Engineer W. D. Uhler, of the State Highway department, and by E. V. Stern, New York highway engineer.

Mr. Schwab in closing thanked the donors of the material, the Governor for what the State had done and Mr. Jennings for the work of the William Penn Highway Association. In the serving of the big luncheon in the grove J. K. Everhart, a retired miller and farmer of Newport, jumped into the midst of the situation and assisted in serving the tons of sandwiches and coffee and apples which were provided for the occasion. He was one of the busiest men between Easton and Bethlehem.

HIGHER RENTS MERE BUGABOO

on the same basis that the increased cost of running coal must be borne by the capitalist consumer. Certainly not burdensome. "But," went on the physician, "there is certainly nothing to the argument that has been put forward as to increases in rents of from a dollar to three dollars per month. That's absurd. If there is any increase, it is surely not burdensome, and in fact I see no reason at present for any increase at all. "Now we surely need additional high school facilities. That goes without saying. But I don't see that it is going to add an additional load upon the consumer."

The Supply and Demand "In the Spring I've no doubt that there will be some readjustment in the rentals, but if this be the case, it will not be because of the passage of the high school law. It will be due to the problem of supply and demand. The demand for houses that rent for $2 to $15 cannot be filled. The house that rents for $40 and $45 is not scarce. It is the house for the working man, Harrisburg, that is a serious problem there. There is not enough to supply the ever-increasing demand.

"Anti-high school educationalists consider as a threat the statement of the school authorities that special taxation may be necessary to provide increased school facilities if the loan doesn't pass. What have you to say of that?" "No Threat. "Why, that is a threat. It's a serious problem which the school authorities must face. If they don't do something, the State will compel them to do it. We have had that illustrated in the sewage disposal problem. We eventually must pay that bill after all, you know."

"Would not special taxation really mean an increase in rentals?" "Not a Sympathizer. "Why, certainly, and that would naturally come at once. As I said before, the increased cost will naturally fall upon the ultimate consumer, and if the mill rate is boosted by a special raise, of course the man who rents his house will feel the effect and he'll feel it at once. "The passage of the school law will not, so far as I can see, mean any immediate and appreciable raise in rentals. That is one of the errors I believe that has been stated in the pamphlet that has been spread broadcast by those who oppose the loan. And that, by the way," concluded Dr. Conzager smilingly, "is why I declined to subscribe to a fund to publish and distribute that pamphlet."

Hear of Loan at Parent-Teachers' Association; All Rotarians Urged to Work

Several hundred voters and other interested taxpayers last evening heard all about the proposed high school loan at a meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association in the school building. Scores of questions as to probable cost, the needs of the schools, taxation, etc., were put to the Rev. Farland, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee, which is boosting the loan. And they were all answered.

Harrisburg's Rotarians were all peripatetically urged in a letter from the Rotarian school committee to boost personally for the passage of the loan on Tuesday. Incidentally, the Rotarians' attention is called to the importance of lending moral support to the movement by turning out in mass to the big student parade to-morrow afternoon. Personal work at the polls on Tuesday is urged.

they obtained from one of the men under arrest, sets forth that the stationery, the dynamite and the powder was to have been blown up to-day and the station at City Hall later. Several of the prisoners, according to the police, appeared at a powder factory at Kenilworth, N. J., yesterday, purchased 50 sticks of dynamite, 100 fuming caps and 100 feet of fuse. Detectives were watching at the factory at Kenilworth, a former subway guard, the investigation of the explosion last month. Two sticks of dynamite found in Central Park at that time bore the name of Kenil company as the maker. James A. Murna, a former subway guard, and Thomas J. McGuire, a chauffeur of Caldwell, N. J., visited Kenil yesterday and purchased the explosive to have been used in to-day's explosion, according to the police, and Murna and James J. Herlihy, a former elevated railway guard, it is charged, purchased the dynamite in Kenil on October 23. Murna, McGuire and Herlihy are under arrest, together with George Pollok, a former elevated guard, Lawrence Kulle, a former subway guard, and Benjamin Harrison, a former elevated guard. All of these men except McGuire, the police say, are members of a district local of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees. Police Captain Tunney of the bomb squad, said evidence had been uncovered that funds to finance an explosion came from the union and that other arrests would be made. The executive committee of the district body plotted in a Harlem assembly hall, the alleged confession said, one speaker stating that dynamite methods had been used successfully during strikes in Albany, Buffalo and Philadelphia. The committee voted $50 and this money the police declare, was used for the purchase of the explosives. Harrison is the local's secretary, and Murna its general secretary, the police asserted. Smart Autumn Suits at $15 Surely they'd be more appreciated. They are far better than the average $15.00 Suits, but just because they are $15.00 is why some unjustly class them with the rest. If it's your vanity that doesn't permit you to spend as little as $15.00 for these fine garments, forget the price. Tell your friends the Suit you have on is $20.00. You would have to pay that price downtown anyhow. Robinson's "Up-to-date Department Store" Third and Broad Streets. DECLARE "AMERICA EFFICIENT" MEANS "AMERICA SOBER" Columbus, O., Nov. 2.—J.
