Gifts For Youngsters in Big Jack Horner Pie

Mrs. Karl E. Richards entertained eleven little playmates of her daughter, Katharine Elizabeth Richards, this afternoon at her home, 1822 Park street, in celebration of "Betty's" fourth birthday. From 3 to 5 o'clock the children enjoyed various amusements and when refreshment time came there was a great Jack Horner ple in the center of the table to draw gifts from. Decorations of pink and white made the house most atfractive and each child received a favor in the same colors.

and each child received a lavor in the same colors.

Miss Florence Carroll and Miss Katharine Etter helped Mrs. Richards give a good time to the small folks, who included Mary Elizabeth Seidel, Marjorie and Betty Irwin, Dorothy Jacobs, Esther Arnold, Ruth Byler, Caroline Mumper, Elizabeth Fahnestock, Billy Spong, Gordon Fahnestock, Joseph Peters and Betty Richards.

AUTUMN PARTIES | THIRD ELOPEMENT AT THE AQUEDUCT IN BASEBALL TEAM

The Bowman and Herman Cot- Three Cousins Take Matrimontages Headquarters For ial Route to Happiness Within a Few Months

While the scenery along the Juniata river at Aqueduct is always interesting and attractive, it is particularly so in the late autumn when the trees are covered with their Fall colors and covered with their Fall colors and the frost is on the pumpkins.

But it is not only the foliage and the river and the scenic attractions which draw so many Harrisburgers to Aqueduct from early Spring to late Autumn; there are other magnets, and among these may be named the salmon fishing, the hunting and the seasonal feasting. Many prominent business men are good cooks on occasion and these find the Autumn stag parties at the Aqueduct cottages irresistible. Two such parties spent the last week-end along this famous stretch of the Juniata.

At the Rowman cottage are greater

Juniata.

At the Bowman cottage, as guests of the retiring president of the Chamber of Commerce, J. William Bowman, were several gentlemen who constitute during the Summer the Friday lunch club at the Harrisburg Club. They were George Reinoehl, Joseph H. Wallazz, Paul Johnston, Flavel R. Wright, W. S. Baldwin, Henderson Glibert, Paul Hooker, H. H. Bowman and the host, J. William Bowman. That all had the time of their lives goes without saying and a certain noted eating place in New York supplied the pig knuckles and sauerkraut for the big dinner of the outing.
