

King and Queen of Rumania May Flee to Russia

KING AND QUEEN OF RUMANIA

Another throne is tottering as a result of the war. If the Rumanians and Russians do not stop the advance of General von Mackensen and his Austro-German-Bulgarian-Turkish troops, another royal pair will be forced to flee their capital into exile on foreign soil adding one more to the number of deposed royal houses.

ALL KINDS OF MEN FROM ALL PARTS OF EARTH TOOK PART IN MOST DRAMATIC BATTLE OF WAR

British Front in France, Sept. 20.—The most dramatic and picturesque battle of the British army in all its two years in France was fought on September 15. Here is the story of how all kinds of men from the ends of the earth took part in this mighty conflict.

In the same dressing station this week the correspondent of the Associated Press has seen Canadians, New Zealanders, English, Scotch, Irish, New Foundlanders and Americans. These were some of the men of many countries who took part in the now historic battle and with them there went into action those armored motor cars, called "tanks," which are to the credit of a quiet officer of engineers.

Many Americans in Fight The correspondent went over the ground which Canadians had taken up to the edge of the village of Courcellette. Later they stormed the village. He met Canadians who came from Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. But when he asked some of them what part of Canada they hailed from, they replied: "The same country as you do—the United States."

showed the correspondent the Canadian objective. They gained their first objective in an uninterrupted dash, absolutely on time. There was the trench which the "Byng boys" held on the morning of the fifteenth, as the correspondent saw it to-day. Behind it and ahead of it shell craters were so thick that you could step from one to another. Having taken their objective their part was finished but General Byng decided, despite the complicated time table methods of a modern offensive, that he could go further. The commanders of British corps of all kinds, from cockneys to the clerks, stocks brokers and farm hands of the new army, made the decision. So they worked in conjunction as everything in these big moves must be co-operation and team play.

They Got There When the word was given the Canadians started for Courcellette which they were ordered to take. Now the village had been "less crumpled" than any yet captured. There were some rafters of roofs still in position. Through these streets to their new objective, marked on their map, when these fighters of the new world, including men from as far South as New Orleans as well as men from Nova Scotia and Vancouver, they were determined to get there and make good and they got there.

Among those who "made good" say those who are supposed to know the facts of the battle of French Canadians the kind of men you see in times of peace working their farms in Quebec or bending over the benches of a factory in New England. At one place the attackers were held up for a time by a strongly fortified post which bristled with machine guns. "Well," as one officer said, "we did not have to tell the men what to do. They started the work man to man, moving around it, and got in."

Called "Tank" Offensive Among the men marching back from the front line after relief was a tall soldier with high cheek bones, red skin, ebony hair and expressionless features. He was an American of the States type. "The German is some fighter," said one Canadian. To conclude the story, "and he has been learning the game for a long time, but on this occasion we had him going."

cheered them as at some points things were not going so well as at others. The battalion whose luck failed them in this drive on the six-mile British front were driven back by the cunningly arranged enfilading fire of machine guns in strong points which neither the artillery nor tank could conquer. As the wounded from these baffled battalions came hobbling down the shell-swept road they were cheered by the news of successes at other points.

Keep On Going There was a spectacular moment when, some time after the battle had opened, word ran down the line that the "guards were going in." The guards are the crack regiments of the British regular army and are steeped in the old aristocratic traditions. When they came to the offensive they must show others the way through although the body of a peer's son is not less vulnerable to bullets than that of a cockney. When they "went over the lid," as the slang phrase is for mounting the parapet of the trench for a charge, it was the supreme moment for the guards to live up to their traditions. They were to reach a cer-
