TO TRAIN FLYERS FOR U. S. ARMY

War Department Plans Forming Reserve Corps of Aeronauts

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—With a view to increasing the number of aviators in the United States who could be called out in the event of war, the Signal Corps of the War Department, it became known to-day is now drafting plans whereby physically desirable applicants may become trained aeronauts at the expense of the government.

borhood of 2,700 enlisted men, including noncommissioned officers.

Tests For Applicants
Applicants for training as officers of aviation must pass the same physical tests as are now applied to officers of the regular army and must be between the ages of 21 and 27. In the mental test the applicant will be required to establish the fact that he has "the equivalent of a college education."

The candidate must state in writing that if he passes his aviation test after being taught at the expense of the government he will become an officer in the aviation reserve corps. Then the examining board will recommend that the applicant be designated as an aviation student. He will be sent either to an army aviation school or a private aviation school approved by the officer in charge of the aviation section. When he has been taught to fly he will be commissioned second lieutenant.

It is the intention to organize reserve aero squadrons in various parts of the country.

The enlisted reserve corps calls for fifty-four master sign electricians, 190 first class sergeants, 281 sergeants, 543 corporals, 1,381 privates, first class and 276 privates. These men will be expected to attend to the motors of the aeroplanes.

An officer in the reserve corps will be commissioned for five years, after which he may be recommended in the same or higher grades for successive periods of five years.

TELL INTERESTING ANECDOTE ABOUT JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY
Herbert R. Hyman is responsible for the following anecdote of the late James Whitcomb Riley, quoted in the Indianapolis Star.

"Mr. Riley was sitting in his car," says Mr. Hyman, "in the shade of one of the trees that border University Square, watching the Lamb Club parade, two or three years ago. In it marched many of the most notable members of that organization, actors, writers and the like. Suddenly the poet's eyes lighted up and he asked, 'I wonder if Irvin Cobb's with them? He's the greatest writer in America to-day. He's going to be greater than any humorist we've ever had. He's got a lower lip like Lincoln, and a humor like Lincoln, and a tenderness about all he says like Lincoln. He's the funniest man I ever read.'"

S.S.S. For The Blood

This wonderful medicine has properties that remove the impurities and poisons from the blood and make it fresh and pure. New Plant For Hershey Creamery Co. Will Cost $50,000; Permit Today

Within the next few days work will be started by Contractor Joseph W. Pomraning on the new two-story concrete and steel plant of the Hershey Creamery Company that is to replace the present structure at Cameron and Kitting streets. The proposed plant will be 82 by 170 feet and will be equipped with all modern conveniences and will be fireproof. The structure as the Hershey company has planned it will be modeled along the most modern sanitary lines in order to conform with the requirements of the State. Joseph W. Pomraning is the contractor and he will begin work within a few days. The permit, which was taken out to-day, calls for a $50,000 structure. Other permits issued to-day totaled the day's totals to close to $70,000.

The Harrisburg Rendering and Hide Company got permission to build an addition to its plant at Walnut and Cameron streets at a cost of $420,000. Robert M. Shope will build three small frame houses in the rear of 1250-54-56 Market street at a cost of $600, and Devine & Yungel, shoe manufacturers, will erect an addition to the plant at Juniper and Apricot streets at a cost of $7,500.

THIRD CLASS CITY PLANS AND LOANS

Interesting Contests in Pennsylvania Municipalities Held Yesterday

In addition to the keen national contest and the parade-like election of the State Republican ticket, Pennsylvania indulged in some of the most spirited congressional, state senatorial and legislative contests known in many years and also had some exciting third class city and loan elections.

Shamokin and Warren voted down the propositions to become third class cities by decisive votes, but Butler carried it and will become a third class city with a population of 23,000.

The following are apparent congressional winners, stars indicating present members:

- 1—William S. Vare, Rep.

Arabia Torpedoed and Sunk Without Warning
London, Nov. 8.—The Peninsular and Oriental liner Arabia received no warning from the submarine which sank her in the Mediterranean on Monday, according to a statement issued this morning by the Admiralty. All the 437 passengers including 169 women and children and all the crew with the exception of two engineers, who were killed by the explosion, were saved by vessels which went to the rescue.

MAMMA-IN-LAW IS JOY-KILLER

Sometimes It's His Mother; Sometimes It's Hers Who Is to Blame

By DOROTHY DIX
This is the fourth commandment of matrimony:

THOU SHALT NOT ABIDE IN THE HOUSE WITH THY IN-LAWS, FOR THEREIN LIVETH TROUBLE AND DISSENSION.

According to the statistics compiled by the Court of Domestic Relations, the mother-in-law is the one most potent source of domestic discord, and the first aid to divorce.

Sometimes it is the wife's mother who breaks up a home. Sometimes it is the husband's mother, but the consensus of experience shows that either lady is a trouble breeder, and that any household is due to run up the storm signal when she arrives in it.

Of course this should not be thus. Every mother should cherish her newly acquired child as her own, and every bride and groom should love and honor their new mother. Only they don't. There seems to be some sinister psychic influence that makes the mere fact of people becoming in-laws to each other bring out all the latent meanness and cussedness in their nature as hot poltice brings out the measles.

Women who are tender and kind and sympathetic to all the rest of the world are guilty of incredible cruelty to their mother-in-law and daughter-in-law. Generous women who deny themselves new hats to send dannel petticoats to the Hottentots begrudge their old mothers-in-law a bite to eat and a seat by the fireside. Noble women, who would scorn doing any other sort of underhanded action, condescend to snoop and spy on their daughters-in-law and sons-in-law, and to staring open letters and listening at keyholes.

Men who are the pink of courtesy and chivalry to all other women in the world show a brutal disregard of even the common courtesies of life to their mothers-in-law.

And so it goes, and so it always will go as long as human nature is in its present unregenerate state, for the in-law proposition crystallizes into concrete form our three most pronounced weaknesses. These are tyranny, jealousy and selfishness, and they get in their perfect work when we are brought into intimate contact with our in-laws.

Jealousy One Cause
There is, to begin with, the bitter struggle between the bumptious young husband or wife and the concealed old woman about how the house shall be run and who shall run it. Then there is the unending jealousy of husband and wife of the other's mother, and the bitter jealousy of the mother who has seen her place in a child's affection taken by another, and an idealized son or daughter going blithely off with a stranger and actually being happy with him or her.

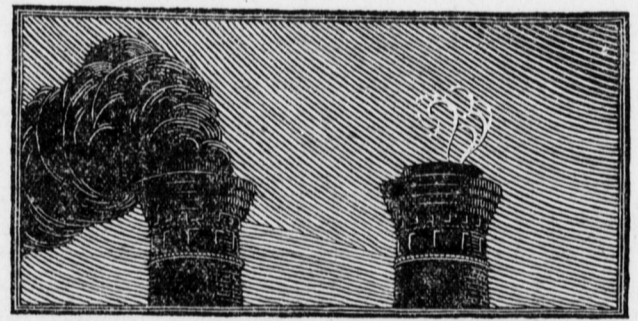

Above all there is selfishness, the selfishness of the man who feels that he has a right to monopolize his wife's every thought and interest; the selfishness of the wife who feels herself defrauded if her husband gives a dollar of his money or an hour of his time to the mother who bore him, and the selfishness of the mother, who believes that her son-in-law should work himself to death to supply her daughter with luxuries, but that her son's wife should be contented to be merely a domestic slave and not ask for any gew-gaws.

Should Start Alone
It is especially important that a bride and groom should start housekeeping alone, without the presence of any third party. The first year of married life is inevitably a time of adjustment, in which there is bound to be much friction. If left to themselves, a young couple will fight their differences out to a finish. Then the bride will weep, and the bridegroom will scold, and they will kiss the ax to the foundation of a home when she feels it her duty to call her son's attention continually to his wife's faults, or when she hurries suspicion in a young wife's breast by boasting on how strange it is that her husband didn't come home to dinner some night, and wondering if his pretty stenographer had anything to do with it.

Therefore lay well to heart the fourth commandment of matrimony: THOU SHALT NOT ABIDE IN THE HOUSE WITH THY IN-LAWS, FOR THEREIN LIVETH TROUBLE AND DISSENSION, for in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred domestic felicity increases, in direct ratio to the distance from your in-laws.

The fifth commandment of matrimony is Thou Shalt Not Make of Thyself the One-Who-Must-Be-Obeyed, For, Verily, Few There Be Who Love Their Jailor. Dorothy Dix will write about it in this paper soon.

Waste! Modern economy demands all of the power of the fuel and all of the "drive" of the gasoline

Because of mechanical betterments, coal which yesterday went to the mine dumps is today driving the machinery of production and transportation—for gases once wasted are now consumed.

More energy is extracted—by the help of science—from every pound of coal.

It's because of Twin-six motor refinements that the Packard demonstrates its unusual ability to handle low-gravity gasoline—to transform a sluggish vapor into hot, lean, lively gas and return utmost mileage in all weathers and on all roads.

More energy is now extracted—by the Twin-six—from every gallon of gasoline.

Let us make clear to you all that this means in motor car economy—and in your personal economy. The time and the place are yours to name.

Packard prices are $2,865 and $3,265 at Detroit—for the 2-25 and 2-35 open cars.
