Feminity Like Us to Say Nice Things to It Except When They Hurt

(By Beatrice Fairfax)

Do women want a meed of flat-tery and compliments offered them

Do women want a meed of flat-tery and compliments offered them as tribute — or do they desire the finer tribute of honest, simple, and, if need be, bitter, truth? Does the feminine want even its medicine sugar-coated, or is it will-ing to swallow a bitter dose if that will prove curative? On the attitude of, the individual woman toward these questions de-pends whether she is to have true friends as she goes through life or whether she can hope for nothing better than acquaintances with wo-men and flirtations with men. The truth isn't always pleasant; how can if be? Life itself is far too bitter and grim a reality to make that possible. But the truth is curative. The people who tell it to you have taken the trouble to study you, to look at you squarely and fairly as an individual worthy their attention and interest, and to try to figure out what is for your good and advantage. None of us can stand off and got a perspective on ourselves. All of us have unsuspected weakness and peculiarities, and little mental twists and turns which make us repellant to some and charming to others. But, unfortunately, our weakness may make us repet those whom most we desire to attract. Then what can be more valuable than a friendship which tells us honestly and loyally where lie

I am writing to you for some ad-vice and shall appreciate your kind-ness. I am nineteen years old and I am enployed as a typist by a large mail order fmm. In October I made the acquaintance of a sentleman fifty years of age, al-though he looks much younger. He is a well educated gentleman, has his own business, and is in all respects a perfect gentleman. He has asked to call at my home and meet my parents, and has also invited me to go out with him, provid-ing my parents consent. What I wish to know is, do you think this gentleman is too old for me to go out with? Can you possibly imagine yourself happy as the wife of a man who is in all probability older than your father? Surely your tastes and inclin-ations are altogether different since you are practically two generations apart. It would be unfair to both of you for you to permit this friendship to go far for it might only result in pahn and unhappiness for both of you.
