WHO IS CIGARET?

WHO IS CIGARET? Cigaret, splendid vagabond of John Roland's "The Six-Pointed Cross in the Dust," is one of the most hnconven-tional heroes introduced to us in many a long day. Yet this modern knight of fellows down on their luck by their own fault seems to have been inspired by a living man. Dr. Roland's fore-word explains the wayfarers who tramp the highways and frequent the hedges of the Central Europe he knows well-mostly journeymen see-ing the world, failures, and driftwood, little men who have found life too big for them. "But there are others still; big men, who have found ordinary life too big in con arrow. And of these was, or still is, the man about whom this story has been written. We called him 'Cigaret.' Just why, I never knew. And it was said that he was an Archduke of the Austrian House of Hapsburg. Why we said this I know quite well. And this story will bear me out. But whether Archduke of a sreat imperial house, or merely the Clearet whom we all knew and loved, he was, as my story shows him, always a loyal gentleman and a devoted friend."

Stockholm, Sweden, Nov. 8.—(Cor-respondence of the Associated Press.) —One thing after another has disap-peared so gradually from German markets since the war began that the very existence of certain luxuries and some things that were once considered necessities, has been forgotten. It was the experience of a correspondent of the Associated Source So things that were once considered necessities, has been forgotten. It was the experience of a correspondent, of the Associated Press who had been in Berlin since the war began, and for many years before, to find, upon his arrival in Stockholm, the butcher shop and grocery windows filled with foodstuffs he had seen scarcely a sug-sestion of in Germany for many months, and the restaurant bills of fare also served as pleasant reminders of ante-bellum days when the Ger-man restaurants, as much as those of any country, were prepared to sup-ply a great variety of the foods. Germany is not starving, and there is no fear there that it will, but the people are doing without far more things than they realize, having be-come so gradually accustomed to the loss or curtailment of certain edibles. Bacom-which the correspondent had not seen in Germany for months—is plentiful here, of course; butter, lard and olive oil, seen in the grocery shops offered a really irrosistible appeal to one who had scarcely known them for so long. There were different cuts of pork: the correspondent had had a small portion of pork twice in three months. He found many kinds of bread, while the only kinds he re-cently knew were rye mixed with po-tatoes and wheat mixed with rye. There was real coffee, which one can-not obtain even in the best hotels or millionaires' homes in Germany. The taste of French-fried potatoes was almost a new thing, for no Ger-man household has enough fat to per-mit indulging in this luxry. disappeared in the first weeks of the war. On this food, if it can be obtained, one cannot starve, but 'the poorer people, who either get nothing but potatoes and bread or 'who do not know how to make the most of what they do get, complain of the monotony of the fare and that they are con-tinually hungry. A number of women of this class, some weeks ago, made a small demonstration in front of the eity hall of one of the municipalities of Greater Berlin, declaring that they were hungry. "You shall not be al-lowed to starve (verhungern)," said the mayor, "but you will have to be hungry (hungern)." This is undoubtedly the spirit ani-mating all but an insignificant num-ber of Germans. They are satisfied that they will not starve, and they are willing to make the sacrifice for the Fatherland implied in the mayor's words. And they are the better able to make this sacrifice because, as has been illustrated, they do not realize just how great it is.

Peterson Bros. Dear Sirs: I was af-flicted with what the doctors said were Varicose Ulcers, and up until about fivo weeks ago I have been treating them for about a year and five months. While all the treatments that were preser...ed to me by several doctors I received little benefit, and they kept spreading and gave me much distress and caused me to quit my work. I was induced by a brother brake-man to try Peterson's Ointment, and after I had used two boxes I saw the wonderful results. You can tell sur-fering ones troubled with ugly, painful and horrid ulcers that your Ointment is a cure for them when everything else fails, as I have tried about evrything. Thanking you many times over, I am.
