HIS CREDITORS FORGET LOSSES

Thompson Back on Feet; 40,000 Coke Ovens Going Full Blast. Uniontown, Pa., Nov. 10.—Old Fayette county, panic-stricken twenty months ago by the failure of Josiah V. Thompson and his associates, who had cornered the virgin coal fields of Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, has forgotten her troubles. It's the story of many cities in the land which were "down and out." War orders for belligerents have made business better in Fayette county than ever before in its history. There is more money in the Uniontown banks than ever before, and the people have money to spend and are spending it without complaint, with the cost of living almost doubled in the twenty months.

ward of $2,000,000 will be brought from New York into this section to be distributed in Fayette, Washington, Greene and Allegheny counties and to the contiguous territory in West Virginia. The Thompson creditors' committee has promised that every cent of the taxes due on the Thompson properties and every cent of interest due on secured claims will be paid on that date. There has been one thing asked of the secured creditors of Mr. Thompson—that they extend their mortgages and notes for three years. An agreement has been made to each secured creditor from the offices of Samuel Untermyer, in New York, together with a letter in which the secured creditors are asked to extend their claims for three years upon the condition that the taxes and interest shall be paid not later than December 9. Many Sign Agreements. More than half of the secured creditors of Mr. Thompson have signed these agreements and filed them with the creditors' committee. A great majority of the others, it is said, have informed the members of the committee of their readiness to sign the agreements as soon as they can be negotiated. Announcement here that the interest and taxes are to be paid within the next few weeks has been the most cheering news to the thousands of creditors of the coal man since his receivership was announced, January 19, 1915. Sale of a large acreage of coal is expected to be announced within a short time, those who are in a position to know say. It is positively known that negotiations are being carried on in New York for the sale of a great part of the Thompson holdings, but no details have been given out. Under the deal has been entirely closed. It is not expected that any word will be received here regarding it. Briefly, the plan of the creditors' committee is this: To sell the Thompson holdings, when a sale is made, all of the secured liens on the property sold will be paid. The balance will be placed in a fund for the unsecured creditors and dividends upon their claims will be paid from time to time until they are all paid off. Under the agreement with the unsecured creditors' committee, its secretary, George W. Scroggins, of New York and Cincinnati, and counsel, are to receive nothing until the last unsecured creditor is paid in full. To Pay Interest on Taxes. The creditors' committee has raised in New York from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000 with which to pay the taxes and interest on the Thompson properties and secured claims. Receiverships which were appointed for many of the associates of Mr. Thompson, following the closing of the First National Bank twenty months ago, have enabled these individuals to readjust their affairs. A number of them now have little to worry about. The coal and coke business has been better than ever was dreamed of. The heavens which two years ago were black with gloom are now radiant with the flames from 40,000 coke ovens. The steamers are bidding high for coke and the merchant operators are having a hard time to fill the orders. Several thousand miners and coke workers, mostly foreigners, were hit when they lost their savings when the First National Bank, Thompson's "honor roll" institution closed. They likewise have forgotten their troubles. They are making more money than they ever did before; they are buying real estate, have bank accounts and are driving automobiles. Hundreds of foreigners who were starving when the Thompson bank closed now drive to Uniontown on Saturday nights with their families in automobiles to do their shopping. Next month in the United States Court Mr. Thompson is expected to be called to face charges which have been preferred against him by the Federal authorities. He was indicted in the Federal Court early last Spring in Pittsburgh, and later at Erie another indictment was returned by the grand jury against him. The legality of these indictments, however, has never been settled, the question having been raised in Erie by Federal Judge C. P. Orr, when the presentment was made by the grand jury. Thompson Mingles With Creditors. Mr. Thompson has enjoyed a pleasant summer. He has spent his time among his old friends and neighbors, the farmers of Greene, Fayette and Washington counties, his creditors. He has assisted them in their work, and what feeling there was in this section against him when the bank closed has entirely disappeared. A member of the Thompson creditors' committee told a correspondent that there is every indication that Mr. Thompson's affairs will be speedily settled. It has been less than a year since the idea of a creditors' committee was conceived. There is every indication that the failure was spent in looking for aid. Financial assistance was denied, then Samuel Untermyer was interested in a reorganization of the work. He has been busy on it since last December. The anniversary of the reorganization, its first birthday, is to be celebrated by the payment of taxes and interest. There are no pessimists in Fayette county any more. Everybody is too busy making money to even think of twenty months ago, and if the war in Europe continues another year Uniontown may again boast of the distinction of "having more millionaires than any other city of the size in the United States." SET TREES WHEN WORK'S SLACK. Forest planting may be undertaken with success both Spring and autumn; in the former when the frost is just out of the ground, in the latter season just before it is likely to come in. Wood lot work is practicable at any time, but because of the plentiful and cheaper supply of labor, and a lack of foliage which makes the operation easier, it is something that may be profitably reserved until Fall of winter months, advises Gordon Dorrance of the Maryland State Board of Forestry, in an article in Farm and Home on co-operation between State forestry boards and the farmer. It has not been easy in the past for the individual in most States to receive practical encouragement in woodlands, prevention and control of soil erosion and other wastes, protection of water supply and farm buildings and regulation of grazing to get the maximum of harm in wood lots; or to secure standard, low-priced forest trees on terms making possible such work. In recent years appropriations under the federal Smith-Lever law have made available in any State which will co-operate some such wood lot work as that carried on by Maryland and Pennsylvania. The practical value of this partakes of the nature of a practical field demonstration rather than of the complete transaction which this article records. FARM AND BANK WORK TOGETHER. About $20,000 worth of exceptionally good dairy cattle have been brought into Marinette county, Wisconsin, as a result of our plan of practical co-operation between banker and farmer in the purchase of cattle, says Howard I. Wood in Farm and Home. I don't know of anything ever done in any locality which has had a more marked effect in building up dairy farming and improving dairy herds. The bankers put up a fund of $25,000 to start with. Farmers wishing good dairy cattle did not have to make any initial payment, but were required to show that they could take care of a valuable cow. When they purchased they gave bankable securities, such as chattel mortgage or secured note, the time being from three to five years to complete payment. Monthly installments and quarterly payments were provided for also and payments could be made at any of the eleven banks in the country. Interest was charged at 6 per cent. Two years ago one carload of cattle was purchased at a time. At present they are bringing in four and five carloads at a time. This move has enlarged our county in a farming way more than anyone can conceive. Several months after the failure was spent in looking for aid. Financial assistance was denied, then

BELGIAN HARE MEAT IS IN DEMAND. Thousands of Belgian hares are raised in this vicinity every year and shipped to market, mostly to New York city, writes C. L. Hunt in Farm and Home. The business has grown so in the past two years that it is hard to believe so much progress possible. It has been demonstrated time and again that Belgian hares can be made to weigh six pounds when four months old and at a cost of from three to six cents a pound. They sell on the market at 21 cents a pound and it costs four cents a pound to market, which leaves 17 cents net, surely a good point. The lowest I have ever known them to sell for was 15 cents, and taking out the four cents still leaves us 11 cents net, or as much as we ever get for poultry. There is a demand, far from being supplied, for breeding does of the best quality at from $2.50 for utility stock and $5 and up according to quality, for pedigree stock. Belgian hare meat, unlike the wild hares, is good throughout the year and is declared by scientific men to be far superior to the more common meat. The fact that many sanatoriums are using hare meat almost exclusively is evidence that our scientific men are correct on this particular point. We know that there is much more clear profit in the Belgian hare business than there is in poultry, and we know also that people are beginning to find out the real value and low cost of the Belgian hare and that the demand will grow until the business will equal the poultry business if it does not exceed it. KEEN JOHNNY. Johnny stood beside his mother's green she made her selection from the green grocer's cart, and the latter told the boy to take a handful of nuts, but the child shook his head. "Don't you like nuts?" asked the green grocer. "Yes," replied Johnny. "Then go ahead and take some." Johnny hesitated, whereupon the green grocer put a generous handful in the boy's cap. After the man had driven on the mother asked: "Why didn't you take the nuts when he told you?" Johnny winked as he said: "Cause his hand was bigger'n mine."—Chicago Herald.
