WATCH FOR "CIVILIZATION"

Jesse James' Pistol Found by Farmer

Joplin, Mo., Nov. 20.—The famous "man killer" revolver used by Jesse James, the bandit, in his depredations in Missouri and adjoining States following the Civil War, is believed to have been found.

The latest discovery of the weapon is reported by P. H. Hazel, who lives seven miles southeast of Carthage. He says he unearthed the firearm September 2 on a farm two and a half miles south of Duenweg.

According to Hazel, a rabbit that had taken refuge under the hearthstone of what at one time had been a dwelling, had led to the discovery of the weapon. While attempting to dig the rabbit from its hiding place, Hazel discovered an iron rod protruding from one corner of the hearthstone. Believing it might have been placed there to mark the hiding place of some treasure, Hazel dug it up, but found only a large ball of pitch on the other end.
He investigated his find upon arriving at his home. Upon breaking it open he found one of the revolvers supposed to have been used by the outlaw. The weapon was so badly rusted as to make it of no value as a firearm, but beneath the coat of rust could be discerned the name of Jesse James carved on the weapon.

Girl in Trousers Arrested as Hobo

Elkhart, Ind., Nov. 20.—A handsome looking "boy" hopped off a freight train in Elkhart the other day. The police took the "boy" in custody and later found the "boy" was a schoolteacher and stenographer of the Cleveland Y. W. C. A. She had left Wednesday night to beat her way to Los Angeles, where her younger brother is ill in a hospital. The police telegraphed the Cleveland Y. W. C. A. and clothing and money were forwarded. The police refused to give her name.

Pauline Frederick, universally recognized as one of the most sensational actresses of the silent drama, will at the Regent Pauline Frederick will make her appearance in "Ashes of Embers" to-day and to-morrow at the Regent.
In this production Miss Frederick takes the parts of two beautiful sisters, exactly opposite to each other in character and disposition, one of them the butterfly and the other the saint. The story of "Ashes of Embers" is briefly, that of a very pitilessly selfish girl, who is relentless in her demands for money, despite the fact that her own sister, who is the family drudge, scarcely has enough to keep body and soul together. Laura finally steals money from the cash drawer over which her sister Agnes presides in the department store, in order to get a dress with which to dazzle a millionaire. Agnes goes to jail, but Laura wins the millionaire, who soon wakes up to the fact that he is being used merely as a private purse by his wife, who has promptly transferred her affections to a young architect from whom she had temporarily disentangled herself in order to ensnare the gentleman of the money bags. The rest of the story deals with the return of Agnes from jail and the dramatic complexities, which involve Laura, the millionaire, the architect, and the lawyer who is engaged to handle her husband's divorce action.
