MAY BE NAMED AMBASSADOR

Berlin, Nov. 22, (via London).—It is reported with increasing probability that Gottlieb von Jagow, the minister of foreign affairs, may be appointed ambassador to Vienna to succeed the late Count von Tschirschky. The possibility has been discussed in diplomatic circles ever since the death of Tschirschky, particularly because it is known that Von Jagow accepted his ministerial post reluctantly and never intended to hold it permanently. The Tagblatt gave prominence to this report and declares that Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg's visit to army headquarters is connected with filling the Vienna position.

EVANGELISM IS CHURCH PROBLEM

slonary program. The solution of these problems depends on the rural church. We must get away from unrelated work and develop a big universal program. There are millions of foreigners here who are not getting a bit of Protestantism because you men are not aware of the needs and providing funds to carry on the big work. We cannot go on unless we get more funds. And each year many of the conferences are giving less."

Assail Ambitious Preachers. Assailing the country preachers who use rural charges as stepping stones to city churches, the Rev. C. N. McConnell, of Lakeville, Ohio, a "rural preacher, proud of every hayseed in his hair," told the laymen that the country church will never be a success unless men are sent there that can fill any pulpit, and go there to stay until they are dead.

"You can't send us to the rural church to punish us, and then, if we make good, pick the best of us for city charges," the rural pastor declared near the end of his address. Shortly after he began to speak the Rev. Mr. McConnell said that he noticed a few farmers in his audience. "Here's one," cried an old, gray-haired, gray-bearded man sitting near the front. "Give it to us, please," he cried, encouraging the Rev. Mr. McConnell in his forceful arraignment of church work and the need in rural districts.

"Our minister" wrote me for a solution of the rural problem and enclosed a two-cent stamp. A two-cent stamp won't solve it. We won't solve it to-day, or in this generation. One of our big problems is providing recreation. The devil is doing that and charging 10 cents admission. It is wrong for any minister to preach recreation, unless he is doing something to provide clean, wholesome amusement for the people in his community. We must reckon with the social life of it will reckon with us. Closely following the initiative of the Rev. Mr. McConnell were the pointed sentences shot at the hearers by the Rev. Mr. Miner, of Columbus, Ohio, another rural preacher, who has been doing things in community work. He said, in part: "Churches will die out if we wait for educated ministers fitted for our work. We must take men now and educate them at once that the church needs the presentation of mighty deeds."

"What we need is to teach a number of so-called Christians Christianity," he shouted. "Some Christians have a hard job taking Christ along with them from Philadelphia to Atlantic City." Before the Rev. Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, in charge of city mission work in Pittsburgh, was introduced, the committee resolutions reported.

The Resolutions. The first of four resolutions adopted to-day urged all churches and people to contribute generously for the support of the hundreds of thousands of destitute people in Armenia. Another resolution was adopted protesting against the spirit of militarism and the greed for material gain that brought on the European war and appeals for new loyalty of devotion to the Prince of Peace and His Kingdom, the real brotherhood of man.

Support of the conference was accorded to the National Association of Druggists in the movement to establish by legislation one day's rest in every week. A fourth resolution urges resident bishops, district superintendents and pastors of local churches to take up the work of bringing the cold, negligent and worldly members to surrender themselves to God and to become actual Christians.

The Rev. Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, secretary of the conference, reported the department of cities of the M. E. Board of Home Missions and Church Extension Work, and also in charge of mission work in Pittsburgh, was the last speaker of the morning, his address being on "The Conquest of the City."

In the first part of his talk to the men he told them of the attacks on Christianity and declared that in this day of practical things the world is challenging the church to "show what it can do." He told the men to organize big city unions of Methodist men and to begin comprehensive surveys to overcome social maladies, poverty, crime, racial troubles and religious indifference.

Speakers this afternoon dwelt on the work of "The Efficient Church," and following the trend of the morning talks, told the men how to aid in such work. The program was addressed by the following: Dr. A. E. Piper, of Wilkes-Barre; Dr. Edgar Blake of Chicago; Harry W. Dunlap, Pittsburgh; Dr. J. E. Doughty, Chicago; John T. Stone, Baltimore; and the Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reiser of New York. Justice Emory A. Walling presided.

To-night the big convention will close with Bishop Hamilton presiding, and addresses by Fred B. Fisher, national secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Society, on "The Price of Victory," and Bishop W. F. McDowell, of Washington, on "Will We Accept the Challenge?"

Mott Held Up. Prayers were offered last evening by the big gathering of men when they learned that John R. Mott, secretary of the International Y. M. C. A. and a member of President Wilson's commission on the Mexican situation, could not be here to address the laymen. A telegram was received and read: "Mott cannot leave Atlantic City. Commission matters at a crisis."

Advocate Prohibition. The big feature of the evening session, however, was the adoption of a resolution putting the Methodist men on record advocating prohibition both State-wide and national; the approval of Governor Brumbaugh's efforts for local option; and denying allegiance to any political party which places the interest of the brewery, the distillery and the saloon above the welfare of humanity.

MAURICE and FLORENCE WALTON (Famous Players)

fare of humanity. The entire resolution as drawn up and adopted is as follows: We Methodist Men, assembled in State convention in the city of Harrisburg, representing more than 450,000 Methodists, many of whom are voters and not on of whom is without influence, realize that a crisis in the political, social and the religious history of the State is at hand. Events past and the growth of the inevitable conflict between the forces of righteousness and the champions of evil impress us with a vivid sense of our obligations to God and our neighbors.

Therefore, We place ourselves upon record as firmly advocating the principle of prohibition for the State and nation. We urge Senate and Representatives at Washington to support, by voice and vote, the proposed constitutional amendment for abolishing the manufacture and sale of intoxicants within the jurisdiction of the United States.

In the meantime, we cordially approve the strenuous efforts of Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh to secure the enactment of the county local option law. We solemnly declare our abhorrence of the cowardice or the selfishness which makes it possible for the brewers and distillers and the retailers of intoxicating liquors to dictate party candidates and party policies in this Imperial Commonwealth and, in the fear of God and love of our fellow-men, we recognize our obligation to no political party which places the interests of the brewery, the distillery and the saloon above the welfare of humanity and the best interests of the State. Here we stand; we cannot do otherwise.

Dr. Bertram M. Tipple, of Rome, Italy, told the men of the situation in Europe at the present time and that after the war, regardless of which side may win, Democracy will be a certainty. More government by the people will inevitably result, he declared. S. Earl Taylor, secretary of the M. E. foreign missionary society, took the many delegates "Around the World With a Missionary Campaign." In his talk he made a strong plea for bigger missionary work and showed many views of the need for adequate support in foreign countries.

Dr. Clarence T. Wilson, secretary of the temperance board of the Methodist church, told the men yesterday afternoon in an address on "Making America Dry," that this country will be dry within five years and that most of the world will be dry by that time. He also declared that the last president has been elected without expressing himself on the temperance question.

The other temperance speaker of the afternoon was the Rev. Dr. E. J. Moore, assistant superintendent of the National Anti-Saloon League. He said that Pennsylvania was the blackest and wettest State in the union, not because the people were the wettest, but because the laws of the State regarding the sale of liquor had not been changed since 1887, while every other State has made at least a few changes within the last fifteen years.

INDUSTRIES SPENDING BIG SUMS ON SAFETY

Bureau of Mediation, read a paper on conciliation at the opening, having been accorded the opportunity because of an urgent call for his services up the state. Following him, J. H. Herbert, superintendent of the safety department of the Cambria Steel Company, presented the accident problem in steel works and told how his company had organized to cut down casualties and to take care of those who happen to be injured in the course of their employment. The same problem as it relates to the electric companies was set forth in a paper by Joseph B. McCall, president of the Philadelphia Electric Company, and by James S. Meade, an electrical worker from Philadelphia. The electrical service calls for rapid and specialized care and the papers were heard with much interest.

The closing address was by George T. Fonda, the safety engineer of the Bethlehem Steel Company, well known here as one of the experts and who presented the employer's duty in accident prevention. His talk was illustrated by pictures showing the splendid first aid organization at the parent plant, the competitions and the athletic field for the demonstrations. He gave some concrete illustrations of the way first aid training and inculcation of safety ideas had saved lives.

Opposes Compulsory Arbitration. Patrick Gilday, chief of the Bureau of Mediation and Arbitration of the Department of Labor and Industry, discussed the arbitration of labor disputes before the fourth Annual Welfare and Efficiency Conference this morning. Mr. Gilday declared that compulsory arbitration is never the solution of labor disputes. "For quite a number of years," he said, "there have been various attempts to enact laws providing for compulsory arbitration of labor disputes. The effort has been to use the police power of the State to compel both employing corporations and their employees to continue their activities regardless of any differences they may have as to wages or conditions of labor. There are two fundamental troubles with this plan. In the first place every man feels that his labor is his own property and none, not even the State, can force him to part with it, for that would be involuntary servitude, or slavery. Therefore, a law compelling a man to work, to every man who is not a criminal or a convict, would be extremely repugnant. The employer is in a position of commanding advantage. He hires the man and pays the wages; he also establishes the working conditions. He has the right to hire and discharge and to regulate the work of his employees and to discriminate against any employees who are not amenable to any new regulations or working conditions he may wish to introduce. Compulsory arbitration, therefore, amounts to an effort to compel the worker to labor whether he wishes or not. It establishes involuntary servitude, prohibited by the thirteenth amendment to the United States Constitution, and abridges the freedom of contract and is in violation of all principles of liberty, freedom and the right of happiness, and is class legislation of the most vicious character. It cannot and will not eliminate strikes.

He declared there is no known method of tying the hands of labor except by laws and restrictions on both sides as may come from a mutual agreement in which the principle of collective bargaining is recognized and the employer on the one side and the employees on the other, under the terms of which each respects the rights of the other and a method of giving a peace of mind and a measure of opinion is provided. Under the collective bargain or trade agreement both sides mutually agree on some plan to settle any dispute that arises. The employer and the worker working under this plan and where the letter and spirit of the agreement is respected, employers and employees give a peace of mind and a measure of opinion in these industries. The advocate of trade agreement is the man who opposes strikes and is the workman's best friend and public benefactor. Mr. Gilday declared that in all industries where unions are not recognized a labor department, critical of everything touching the interests of the public, should be established.

"When wage earners organize to strike and undertake to enforce their demands upon their employer without regard to his rights they may gain for a time, but they are bound to lose in the end. Likewise when the employer undertakes to handle the labor question by suppressing the rights of the workers and enforcing arbitrary agreements in design, he too, may succeed for a time, but he will fail in the end."

Will Not Recommend. The conference decided by a vote of 57 to 54 that it would not recommend any legislation to the general assembly, this action being taken after a prolonged discussion or the proposed bill to make it a misdemeanor for railroad rights of way a misdemeanor. In the course of the discussion which was precipitated when L. F. Foree, president of the Delaware and Hudson railroad, offered the report of the committee named at the accident prevention conference last Spring. He favored recommending such an action. Immediately the labor representatives got into action as such an act would prevent picketing and at the same time make men liable to arrest when doing an honest job. This action was repelled that extreme construction was being placed upon it. Then Commissioner Jackson and others got into the discussion and the standpoint of the public was argued. Finally the suggestion was made that the matter be referred to the Public Service Commission which was done.

The point that men who could not be motormen were permitted to operate automobiles merely by applying for a State license was made by S. B. Hare, claim agent of the Altoona railroad. His paper attracted much attention especially when he advocated inquiry into the qualifications of the applicants for motor vehicle licenses. In creating moving pictures on safety subjects were presented in the afternoon and evening. The Rev. Dr. S. S. Marquis, head of the remarkable educational bureau of the Ford Motor Company, spoke last night.

Those new "Bran Foods"—a new one is born every week—a recognition of the need of food laxatives instead of drug laxatives. The problem of presenting bran to the human stomach in combination with a nutritious, easily digested food was solved twenty years ago by the invention of Shredded Wheat Biscuit, the food that supplies all the body-building material in the whole wheat grain in a digestible form, combined with bran which is Nature's laxative. WORRY IS A DISEASE

The disorder which causes its victims to worry whether they have anything to worry about or not is neurasthenia. Neurasthenia is entirely distinct from hysteria although the patient may have both diseases at the same time. Neurasthenia often results from some nervous shock, such as the loss of a near relative, business reverses, or some severe overstrain on the nervous system. The patient is usually pale, shrunken, the blood is thin, and the first thing to do is to build up the blood because anything that builds up the general health helps to correct the neurasthenic condition. Rest and a good tonic is the very best treatment in most cases. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an ideal tonic for this condition because they are non-alcoholic and neurasthenic patients should avoid alcoholic stimulants. The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., has published a little book on nervous disorders that contains a chapter on neurasthenia, in which the symptoms are fully described and the correct treatment given. The booklet is free on request. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by your own druggist or will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50.
