PA. EXTOLLED BY FOUR GOVERNORS

[Continued From First Page] achieved. No man, no faction, no party was in the ascendant last night. It was a gathering to extol the State which has well-nigh one-twelfth of the population of the nation and whose wealth in resources and men are imperial. Four governors, all native sons of Pennsylvania, sang her praises, and four other speakers, men of high station, paid tribute. In many respects the dinner was a remarkable affair. The decorations were evergreens from the State's forests, spruce, fir, hemlock and pine, used so lavishly that the dinner seemed served in the woods. American flags were set at many places about the room and the blue and gold banner of the commonwealth hung over the toastmaster's table. Golden chrysanthemums grown in Pennsylvania were the table decorations and the ices were served in keystone-shaped and gold. Over 500 covers were laid and "Pennsylvania" was sung with vigor under the leadership of Lieutenant-Governor Frank B. McClain. Two of the State's living ex-Governors, Edwin S. Stuart and John K. Tener, were present, and Mr. Tener, who moved about the banquet hall greeting friends, was welcomed everywhere. Mr. Stuart received his friends at his table and recalled days in Harrisburg. During the evening many of the guests at the banquet hall, which was held in another part of the hotel, came in for the speeches.

"Foremost Pennsylvania" Secretary of the Commonwealth Cyrus E. Woods, president of the society, was toastmaster and seated at his table were the Governors of Pennsylvania, Delaware, Massachusetts and New Jersey. The wives of the governors and Mrs. Woods sat with them and the guests at the banquet hall were accompanied by many guests. Mr. Woods sounded the keynote of the dinner in his welcoming speech. It was "Foremost Pennsylvania," and he urged the men and women of national importance redounding to the glory of the State from Colonial times. Governor Brumbaugh, in responding for Pennsylvania, said it was really responsible for the first unification of interest of the Colonies, for its men brought about the Albany conference, and three Pennsylvanians, Weiser, Croghan and Montour, were the only ones able to converse with the Five Nations and to make the aborigines understand the aims of the Colonies. The Governor's remarks were based upon some studies he had made during the summer and he held the close interest of the whole dinner party by his recital of the statecraft of the Pennsylvanians of early days.

Come and See the State "But, I cannot tell to-night the story, so rich and so wonderful, of our State," said he. "But I do want you all to know it and to love its mountains and its rivers, its towns and its people. You Philadelphians come out into your State and see and appreciate its scenery. It is a State as splendid in its natural gifts as any on earth." Governor Samuel W. McClain, of Massachusetts, lauded the State of his birth and said Massachusetts, the State of his own, had always been found by its side in times of national trial. Industrial commonwealths, they had much in common, and the Bay State rejoiced in the fact of being of the Keystone. "Grateful, indeed, are we for the part Pennsylvania has taken in national life and confident are we of what she will do in the future," said he.

Governor Charles W. Miller, of Delaware, another native son, was introduced as the ruler of counties which had gotten away from Pennsylvania and spoke on their community of interests. He ironcladly urged a protective tariff as the greatest need of the country and urged all to quit finding fault and get it. Governor-elect Walter Edge, of New Jersey, who began life in Philadelphia, made a strictly business speech. Humorously referring to himself as one who had imitated Washington and crossed the Delaware, he said his conception of the aim of government was to give every citizen a dividend of health and happiness with the least overhead expense and no lost motion. Mr. Ryan's Enquiry Public Service Commissioner Michael J. Ryan made a brilliant oration on Pennsylvania, rich in historical information and abounding in patriotic thought. Mr. Ryan, twitting the Governor of Delaware, said Thomas McKean had been Governor of that State and Pennsylvania and that the Governors of the other States should remember that it was the Philadelphia Congressman Fitzsimmons who first proposed the protective tariff. Congressman George W. Graham, of Philadelphia, called for Pennsylvanians to honor their past by helping their country in its present crisis. He was most eloquent in his address upon the national significance of the Keystone State in American affairs. "Pennsylvania has given sun-crowned men to the nation in its times of trial," said he. "May she respond in the future as in the past and then she will have a halo of glory unequalled in the pages of our history." Lieutenant-Governor Frank B. McClain closed the speeches with a response to the toast of "The Ladies," in which he said the office-holding men had best vote the entrance of women into the halls of Congress and the displacement of 150 male officials in the Sunflower State by women who got more votes than the men.

The dinner committee consisted of Commissioner John S. Rilling, chairman, Mr. McClain, State Treasurer Robert K. Young, Superintendent John C. Grooms and Mr. Woods, ex officio, Archibald B. Millar acting as secretary.

You'll never get the light you want till you start using the really refined kerosene called ATLANTIC Rayolight KEROSENE. Its smooth, mellow rays make reading a delight. Costs no more than the ordinary kind. Ask for it by name.

Not Cold Enough To Start the Furnace—

yet too chilly to be without any heat at all. A draughty, damp house spells DANGER. Don't take chances with colds and grippe. There's safety in a Perfection Oil Heater. It is easily carried to any room in the house—just the heat you want where you need it most. In the coldest winter weather, too, you'll find use for a Perfection Oil Heater—in that corner where the kiddies like to play, in the bedroom, bathroom or den.

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATERS

are easy to operate. There is never any smoke, soot, ashes or nasty odor. It burns the most economical of fuels—kerosene—but to get best results, you should always use Atlantic Rayolight Oil. A large gallon tank makes constant refilling unnecessary.

Ask your dealer to show you Perfection Oil Heaters. They are all attractive in appearance and moderate in price—$3.50 to $5.00.
