WHARTON MEN ATTEND SMOKER

Study Club Gives Guests Delightful Evening; Addresses by Prominent Speakers

The Wharton Study Club last evening gave a smoker at their rooms 213 Walnut street, having as their invited guests the entire membership of the Wharton Extension School, a number of professors from the University of Pennsylvania, and several of the local life members. So many guests assembled in the club rooms that even the standing capacity was taxed to the utmost.

The president of the club, Joseph W. Kline was toastmaster, Joe has ways all his own of introducing speakers, especially when the speaker doesn't have the least idea he is going to be called on for a talk.

S. S. Huebner, insurance lecturer of the University of Pennsylvania spoke twice, once of the splendid work being done by the club, and later speaking of the endowment policy as a practical means of providing a permanent home for the Wharton club. L. C. Williams, deputy forest commissioner, gave a short address on the opportunities of the University of Pennsylvania.

Peter Fisher, introduced as the oldest member of the school, told of the inestimable benefit he had obtained by association with the younger men, their plans, ideals and purposes.

Class president, John Bowman, '19; Lee Hale, '18, and William Hoy, '17; spoke of the plans their respective classes had outlined for the future.

Norman J. Rintz, secretary of the club; Ira Cargill, James Fitzpatrick and T. J. S. Kishpaugh, told interesting stories.

Wendell P. Raine Speaks

Wendell P. Raine, a Harrisburg boy, to whom much of the credit for the establishing of a branch in this city is due, outlined the discouragement the organizers had met within the first year, in comparison with the splendid support the movement now has from all of Harrisburg's business men.

Joseph Kline, as only political Joe can speak, told of the humble start of the club, when a few charter members had gathered in a barely furnished room, and with only a flickering candle for light, had drawn up the plans for the club. He then gave his visions of the Wharton club of the future, owning its own home, and rivaling any club in the city, and the practical plans whereby that vision might be realized.

CHARITY REPORT SHOWS GOOD WORK

Harrisburg Benevolent Association Has Successful Year; Summer Garden Feature

The annual report of the Harrisburg Benevolent Association for the year ending October 31, is being distributed in printed form to members and subscribers to the fund. This association which was organized in 1879 and is the legatee of the John C. Brua fund of $1,000, and one-tenth of the A. R. Shellenberger fund, has been doing good work among the worthy poor. The executors of the estate of Mrs. Sarah J. Haly also makes large contributions annually. Other contributors include private citizens, churches and local organizations. For the past eight years the Associated Aid Societies and predecessors have acted as agent for the Harrisburg Benevolent Association. The directors are: President, G. W. Rely; vice-president, Mrs. L. A. Forney; secretary, Donald McCormick; treasurer, C. A. Kunkel; John S. Spicer, H. B. McCrimick, Miss H. Pollock, W. A. Zollinger, H. C. Denning, Mrs. W. E. Bailey, W. M. Donaldson, John Oenslager, Jr., and Mrs. M. W. Jacobs.

Summer Gardens

An added feature that has been a success and which is under the direction of John P. Guyer is the summer garden proposition. During last summer 140 families made use of 144 lots. They have grown in most instances and several report having sold their products. Gardens were under daily inspection of John L. Price and Leroy Howard. The expense of the gardens totalled $444.39, and the estimated value of the crops raised is $3,000. Mr. Guyer reports that social season the garden workers this year was limited, due almost entirely to the increased prosperity the country is enjoying. As in the other seasons the plan of meeting workers as persons interested in garden work, instead of almsgiver and receivers, was followed.

Contributing to the success of the work were O. M. Copelin, C. W. Lynch, William Jennings and James McCormick, who gave free use of land; John Yates and Miss Rachael F. Staples, social service work.

Secretary Yates Reports

John Yates, secretary of the Associated Aid Societies makes the following report:

"During the past year the Associated Aid Societies has been aided by public officials, churches, charitable individuals and the poor themselves to help themselves in 564 families, 194 helpless men and women and 230 helpless children. While it is true that in a number of cases no material relief was found necessary, yet over 2000 cases of the first necessity and the severe type of sport's relief, such as food, clothing, lodging, etc., were secured.

The stewardship of the funds of the Harrisburg Benevolent Association has enabled the Associated Aid Societies to do these necessary things and to do them promptly and adequately.

Contributions of money should be sent to Charles A. Kunkel at the Mechanics Trust Co., and good use is made of clothing and supplies sent to the Associated Aid Societies at 5 North Market Square, where all applicants for relief should be referred.

C. W. Smith of 2426 North Sixth street has returned from Philadelphia where he underwent a serious operation. Mr. Smith will return for another operation after the holidays.

H. A. Bitner who is identified with the New Idea Hosiery Company will spend the week-end at his home in Greencastle, Pa.

Peggy Alerts Christmas Chat

Perhaps you are that type of girl—but whatever your type, you will find at Astrich's, Fourth and Market streets, all the different kinds of sweaters which help femininity to achieve that "altogether charming" appearance, for besides the severe type of sport's sweater they offer many more feminine styles, belted and semitrimmed.
