TRADING NOT AFFECTED
 New York, Nov. 28. — The warning of the Federal Reserve Board in the matter of English treasury bills was apparently without influence on trading at the opening of the Stock Exchange to-day. In no important instance were stocks lower than a fraction, while some, including representative rails, were actually higher. Dealings were moderate and without unsettlement in any quarter.

CHANGE CABINET TIME
 Washington, D. C., Nov. 28. — President Wilson changed a long-time custom to-day, when he decided that for the present the meeting hour of his Cabinet hereafter would be 2:30 p. m. instead of 11 a. m., every Tuesday and Friday. This change was decided upon as the President will have his mornings on these days free for other engagements.

STATE'S EGGS ARE GROWING SCARCE

But Few Will Be Left in the Cold Storage Plants by the Holidays

Pennsylvania has almost 8,000,000 dozen less eggs than it had a year ago, hundreds of thousands of pounds less

MORE RHEUMATISM THAN EVER BEFORE

Clergymen, Lawyers, Brokers, Mechanics and Merchants Stricken
 Our old friend Rheumatism is having its inning this year, and few words of caution from one who knows all about it may not be amiss.
 Wear rubbers in damp weather; keep your feet dry; drink plenty of lemonade, and avoid strong alcoholic drinks.
 If rheumatism gets you, or sciatica, and you have sharp twinges, gnawing pain or swollen joints or muscles, you can get rid of all agony in just a few days by taking one-half teaspoonful of Rheuma once a day.
 All druggists know about Rheuma; it's harmless, yet powerful; cheap, yet sure; and a 50-cent bottle will last a long time. Ask H. C. Kennedy or any druggist.

of beef and other meats and about the same amount of butter in storage as in the week before last Thanksgiving, according to the statisticians of the State's Department of Agriculture. The amount of poultry is also less by many thousands of pounds.
 There are fully 3,000,000 dozens of eggs in cold storage warehouses in Philadelphia which will have to come out of the warehouses before the Christmas holidays if they are to be sold in Pennsylvania, while in Allegheny county warehouses there are probably 2,000,000 dozens which must also come out in December. There are less than 6,000,000 dozen eggs in storage in the whole State.
 The stock of eggs in storage in Philadelphia has been reduced 50 per cent, since the report made on October 1 to the State by the cold storage people. This was the last report made and since that time there have been immense withdrawals and the eggs are coming out of storage earlier, it is said at the Capitol.
 It was denied at the Department of Agriculture that there was any shortage in potatoes. Farmers are said to be holding back for better prices, but the crop is not much short what it was last year. However, when Central Pennsylvania farmers are getting $1.75 a bushel it is admittedly a temptation to hold back.
 No investigation of the egg or potato or general food situation in the State is contemplated by the Dairy and Food Commissioner's office and no cold storage men have been here trying to head it off.

PHONOGRAPH RECORDS ARE PLAYED AUTOMATICALLY
 Application for patent rights has been made by an eastern inventor who has designed a phonograph that is capable of playing several disk records in succession without requiring the attention of an operator. The machine also will select special records and render them, or reproduce a single one as many times as desired. Another feature of the apparatus is that records of different sizes with starting and ending grooves of various diameters can be employed. Small regulating knobs permit an operator to omit, repeat, or stop the rendition of any particular selection. Furthermore, it is possible to set the machine to stop automatically after playing any record. The instrument is described in the December Popular Mechanics Magazine.

A Sure Way to End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.
 By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.
 You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.—Advertisement.

WHAT "MOTHER" REALLY MEANS

In the Trenches One Gets the Real Impression of the Soldier's Home-Love

By DOROTHY DIX
 Very many years ago a man with a brain of a philosopher and the soul of a poet said, "I care not who makes the laws of a people, if I may make their songs."
 The passing of time has changed many things, but it has not changed that eternal truth. It is not the dry-as-dust laws that mould the character of a people and determine their actions at the critical moments. It is the songs they sing.
 It is "God Save the King," that brings every Englishman, the world over, to his feet, with a thrill of pride and country and of race running like wine through his veins. It is the "Marseillaise" that sends the Frenchman out to glory or the grave. It is the stately song "Dieu et mon droit" to which the German soldier marches forward to lay down his life for the Fatherland.
 And the simpler songs—"The songs that, like the rain, like the rain from the clouds in summer, like tears from the eyelids start," as Longfellow beautifully puts—who can measure their power? Who knows how often they have saved the world from the reaches down and into the dark pools of some lost soul and turns its waters sweet again?
 Who can guess how many a time the words of an old hymn, sung by a careless voice in the street, have saved the feet of wayward men and women in the downward path? Who can even imagine how many wanderers have turned back, like the prodigal of old, to their father's house because another wanderer wrote "Home, Sweet Home?"
 Among our most precious possessions are these simple songs, the songs whose appeal is to our hearts, and that make us better men and women every time we sing them, every time we hear them. And to this rosary of songs a new bead has just been added in a little ballad called "Mother." It is just a musical trifle with a haunting tune to it, and some simple words that tell what our mothers mean to us.
 Most of us are self-conscious and shy and deadly afraid of sentiment, and not good at putting our feelings into words anyway, but all the same we have our ideal of what is good and true, and noble and beautiful, and its name is "Mother."
 That's why we all, as well as we can, hum, or whistle, or sing, spelling out with the hero of the song:
 "M is for the million things she gave me,
 O means only that she's growing old;
 T is for the tears she shed to save me,
 H is for her heart of purest gold;
 E is for her eyes with love-light shining,
 Put them all together they spell MOTHER, a word that means the world to me."
 The "Mother" song has taken the town. They are singing it on the stage; they are playing it in the cabarets; youths and maidens are warbling it in the parlors; people are whistling it in the street. It is the hymn of love, the hymn of gratitude and appreciation, and no one hears it but has for the moment, at least, a little choking remembrance of a mother, and a mother's selfish love and devotion.
 And somehow when you see a song like this sweep the country—a song that is pure and good, and whose appeal is to what is best and tenderest in us, it warms your faith to human nature.
 It shows, after all, that the salacious-minded are few in this country at least, and the sound-hearted many, for a thousand ribald songs will die of insatiation among the hard-boiled decadents who care for such unsavory morsels, while a sweet and clean and wholesome ballad, such as "Mother" is becomes a full-throated chorus from the multitude.
 Publishers and theatrical managers are always telling us that the greatest gamble on earth is gambling on public taste, because no one can tell what is going to hit the public fancy. Perhaps the reason of this is because they have not sensed the fact that the one best bet is that the public always likes the genuine thing, the moral thing, the thing that teaches us a good lesson and inspires a noble sentiment.
 It is plays like "Rip Van Winkle," and the "Old Homestead," and "Shore Acres," and "Hazel Kirk," and "The Four Relations" that people flock to see year after year, while off-colored problem plays and sex dramas, and malodorous French farces are put on the stage, fail, are taken off, and forgotten.
 And it's the Home Sweet Home songs and the M-o-t-h-e-r songs that plumb down into the wells of sentiment "where the living waters are," the songs that sweep the heart strings, the songs full of truth and tenderness that lift us up above the sordidness of everyday life that will always be the popular songs in American homes.
 Well may the wise man of old have said, "Let me write the songs of a people," and among these songs he might well wished to have written "Mother."

VALUABLE PRODUCTS FROM CHERRY PITS

Sixteen hundred tons of cherry pits, now a source of annoyance and expense to canneries, can be made to yield two valuable oils and also a meal for feeding cattle, according to specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. In addition the 105,000 gallons of cherry juice now wasted in seeding cherries can be turned into desirable jelly and syrup, or even into alcohol, says the Popular Science Monthly for December. A saving of these valuable by-products, if cherry canning may make possible the domestic manufacture of substitutes for almond oil and bitter almond oil, now imported, and at the same time establish a new industry in the cherry packing districts of the North Atlantic, North Central, and Western States.
