

SORROWS OF WAR BROUGHT HOME

Women in Mourning Garb Before Post Office Windows Silent Reminders

Washington, Dec. 8.—Women in mourning garb and men with solemn faces, waiting in line these days all over the United States before post-office windows where foreign money orders are issued, tell a wordless story of the sorrows of war's destruction reaching across the seas to America. A third Christmas-time of world conflict has seen long lines of happy folk, radiant with holiday spirit at the prospect of sending something "home to the old folks," turned into silent parties of mourners, sending back money to alleviate suffering and filled with anxiety and distress with the uncertainty of its safe arrival. There is also the grave uncertainty that when a gift reaches its destination no one will be there to receive it.

Postal clerks have been quick to note the change. Veterans in the service who have been issuing Christmas money orders to all parts of the globe for years say they no longer hear eagerly told stories of the gifts the money was to buy. They hope only that it may arrive safely to provide food, clothing and fire or perhaps medicine.

The line is a little shorter and the people average much older this year than formerly. Its decreased numbers is attributed to the fact that the government, despite determined efforts, is unable to guarantee safe and speedy delivery of money orders in the war zone. Old age has taken its place in line because the sons of many are now across the seas on the fighting fronts.

U. S. As Santa Claus. Through the postal money order department the United States will be Santa Claus to far more people of the Entente Allies than of the Central Powers this year. Delivery of orders in England and France have been interfered with by the war. No delivery is being made in Austria, and German points receive their orders late, if indeed, they get them at all.

Prisoners of war will receive many money orders this Christmas. This is particularly true in England, where delivery is guaranteed by agreement made several years ago in a convention of various countries to effect a postal agreement. It was arranged that orders to prisoners of war should be transported free of charge, and the United States is living up to the agreement scrupulously.

Submarine activities have had much to do with decreasing the Christmas business in foreign orders, and if the total for this year falls below that for 1915, as it probably will, the underses liners can be blamed for much of the decrease, according to Third Assistant Postmaster General Dockery.
