DINNER DANCES ARE INAUGURATED

Interesting Western Features Prove a Success at Colonial Country Club

Members of the Colonial Country Club enjoyed the first of the season's dinner dances at the club on Saturday evening, receiving the western features so novel in this part of the country as a delightful part of the event.

Small tables, each seating six guests, were placed all about the ballroom with an open space left for the dancers. The Updegrave orchestra played such enticing selections that the diners were quite willing to leave the tables between courses and "trip the light fantastic." Gay balloons were blown up and tossed through the air with pretty effect among the dancers.

MacFadden, a former Harrisburg and a boyhood friend of the first three men.

Peggy Alerts Christmas Chat

To give just the right touch to your new frock, or as a most delightful gift for a friend of good taste, the new georgette collars shown at the Woman's Exchange, Third street at Herr, are most appropriate. An especially smart design is a very deep sailor collar of white georgette made with a few dainty tucks and hemstitched hem, which is an exceptional value for just $1.00, for I have seen the same thing elsewhere at a higher price. A pretty idea is to add one of the daintily colored ties of rose, green, blue, or mauve silk, also shown at this shop, to give a gay note of color to a most acceptable gift.

One of the loveliest of decorative schemes for the Christmas table is suggested by the Studebaker Grocery Store, (now owned by Mr. George Barnes) Second street at the crossing of State. In the center of the table, one of their lovely Japanese baskets, in deep mahogany tones, or woodland browns, is heaped with the season's choicest fruits, — golden oranges, luscious white grapes, and red-cheeked apples, — while a dish of candied fruit and a box of nuts, each side add beautiful touches. The table is lighted with four of the lovely Christmas candles, also shown at this shop, in a most attractive combination of Christmas greens and reds, and many other similar suggestions are offered by this store.

THE CHANGING SEASONS
There is certainly some ground for the belief that the seasons are changing, for of late years March is invariably colder than December, and the people who buy furs at Christmas time have the longest and coldest part of the winter in which to enjoy them. The Astich Store, Fourth and Market, shows a splendid assortment of holiday furs and designs are remarkably low. While many of the best furs, genuine mole, cross fox, ermine, &c., are offered, they also show a big line of inexpensive furs, made in newest styles, which are very attractive, and the advantage of buying at this store is that furs are always called by their proper name, — French cone is French cone and Chinese is Chinese, and the Chinese dog and not "lynx," and prices are accordingly from $3.98 to $10.00 for furs that are sold elsewhere at much higher prices.

THE LADY OF THE SLIPPER
If Prince Charming cannot find the "Lady of the Slipper," he can nevertheless find the slipper of the lady, at the Walk-Over Boot Show, 226 Market street, where the daintiest of bedroom slippers for the most exacting of fashionable ladies is shown. It is a lovely design in delicate pink silk, which is one of the very few bedroom slippers I have seen which combines common sense with a charming appearance of dashing frivolity, for it is made with a medical heel, and built up in the back to fit snugly about the ankle, so that there is no danger of slipping off, and the silk is quilted and padded for warmth. It is offered in all sizes at $3.50.

THE SYMBOLISM OF JEWELS
A delicate band of solid gold, and a simple but beautiful Tiffany setting in which is placed the jewel of your birthstone, is the "Christmas ring" shown at the H. C. Claster Jewelry Shop, 302 Market street, which they are offering at the special holiday price of $3.00, if of course you know that every jewel has a meaning, and it is a pretty idea to use the symbolism of jewels to express your Christmas thought, while so lovely are the emeralds, topaz, turquoise, rubies, sapphires, and amethysts shown that any of these would make the loveliest of gift rings, aside from their value as a birthstone, and the price ($3.00) for rings of this character is remarkably low.

A REVIVAL OF OLD SONGS

The Yuletide season seems indeed the most appropriate for a revival of the quaint old airs which charmed an older generation and at the J. H. Troup Music House, 15 S. Market Square some delightful songs of this kind may be heard, wonderfully sung by such artists as Gluck, Caruso, Farnese, and others like rank. There are so many Christmas records offered at this store, which will help you to select just the right gift for every member of the family, provided there is a talking machine in the home. These songs would delight the old folks at home, while popular dance music for the younger people, and the records of children's stories, and songs make the best of Christmas music for the little tots.

A GIFT UNIQUE

A gift to delight someone who has everything, — a gift to express the real Christmas spirit, — a gift that is easy to buy, and easy to send, — now guess what it is? You never could guess it must tell you that it is a Christmas box packed with ten desirable little individual Christmas trees, potted so that they will last for weeks, and arranged with an appropriate favor. The shop where I found these Christmas boxes packed with ten desirable little individual Christmas trees, potted so that they will last for weeks, and arranged with an appropriate favor. ## THE CRICKET ON THE HEARTH

One of the prettiest scenes I ever saw was in a musical show several years ago, showing a charming little wife helping her husband to don a comfortable house coat, and warming his slippers beside the fire, while "The Cricket on the Hearth," sang on! This cheeked scene came very vividly to my mind when I saw the handsome new house coats, and the warm, comfortable baronies with slippers to match, which are shown at the Dutrich Store for Men, 804 Market street. I heard some men who were looking at them speak of their beauty and usefulness and of the number of women who I have noticed purchasing these. I believe many homes will picture the scene of the "Cricket on the Hearth," on Christmas Eve.

THE COMPACT TRAVELING SET

I remember distinctly how I struggled to find a place for a very large leather writing set which a friend had just given me as I set out on a journey, and though I was very eager to take it with me, — for a traveling set is really indispensable on a journey — I was finally obliged to take the needed articles and from the case, and leave part of the set at home. After that experience I am especially able to appreciate the compactness of the new traveling sets shown at Cotterell's, 9 N. Market Square, for each set so cleverly condensed that all the needed things are held conveniently together in the smallest possible space, and the sets are of beautiful leathers, reasonably priced for Christmas giving.
