Governor Gives Hospital Superintendents Some Ideas About Purchases

Following yesterday's prolonged meeting of the Economy and Efficiency Commission and the superintendents of the State Institutions and the Board of Public Charities, it was unanimously suggested by the superintendents that they confer as to their uniform needs and the best method of standardization of supplies in order to increase their efficiency and produce greater economy.

It was suggested that the commission consider the advisability of a co-operative system of purchasing, which would enable the superintendents of the various institutions to standardize their wants and get the benefit of large purchases and the elimination of the middleman. It was also suggested that a State Central Board be established to supervise the purchases and if found advisable to make the purchases direct, subject to delivery at the various institutions. Committees were named to look after details.

The economy commission was requested to furnish all various institutions with a list of the prices paid each month for staple articles so as to give the widely-scattered superintendents an opportunity to compare their prices with those of other institutions. It was contended by those present that the insane asylums with their large population were more uniform in their needs than the smaller medical institutions and that the latter could purchase as a group to better advantage than when classed with all State institutions as a whole.

While no definite action was taken by either the superintendents or the commission, it was generally agreed that the great variation in prices paid by different institutions for the same commodities was poor business and should be discontinued. The question to be solved is—what system will best meet the demand of all institutions and eliminate to the greatest extent the extravagance caused by variations in price?

The Governor's Idea

Governor Brumbaugh, who is chairman of the Economy and Efficiency Commission, was introduced to the superintendents by the solicitor, Harry S. McDevitt, and in his opening address indicated to the superintendents that the commission was not criticizing but trying to help all the institutions. He emphasized the need of co-operation, both in purchasing supplies and adopting standardization and specifications. He called attention to the apparent inefficient production of the land connected with the State institutions and announced that plans were being formulated for making a careful study by the Agricultural Department experts of the soil, crops and livestock connected with the institutions. He stated, unconditionally, that no institution could have too much land and that the land of no institution could yield too much in crops. In addition to standardizing supplies, he called attention to the need of a uniform system of accounting for all the State institutions, and advised closer co-operation between Harrisburg and the institutions.

Attorney General Brown in his remarks dwelled upon the importance of a central purchasing system that could purchase standard supplies in maximum quantities at minimum prices, and stated that in his investigations along this line he had become thoroughly convinced that central purchasing was the best method for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

At the conclusion of the conference, the superintendents agreed among themselves to make a careful study of the needs of the individual institutions and to report to the Economy and Efficiency Commission what in their opinion would be the best method to improve existing conditions.

The Commission Plan

Harry S. McDevitt, solicitor of the Economy and Efficiency Commission, outlined to the superintendents the scope of the commission's work and invited the superintendents to avail themselves of any information on file in the office. He submitted the figures compiled during the past twelve months dealing with purchases of staple supplies and showed not only the fluctuation in prices paid by the same institution, but the great variation in prices among all the institutions. He indicated the desire of the commission to remedy local defects as well as general defects and stated that an examination of the specifications prepared by the institutions shows that all the institutions were asking for practically the same quality of articles. He emphasized the necessity of anticipating needs of standard articles rather than emergency purchases and stated that a system would be recommended that would enable the institutions to interchange what they produce individually.

The value and variation of crops produced by the institutions was submitted to the superintendents and an analysis made of the land of each establishment.

Managers, what have I to say about managers, I know too much about managers. It is so hard to get a good manager and poor ones are such a nuisance. Until two years ago I never had a really good manager. Miss Leginska continued. While in Harrisburg Miss Leginska will visit local points of interest.

Philadelphia, Dec. 13.—Formation of a league of nations to prevent future world wars, all to bind themselves to attack with military and economic force any member of the league attempting to start hostilities, was recommended by the Universal Peace Committee of the Pennsylvania State Grange at the second session of the forty-fourth annual convention here today. The grange was urged to go on record as favoring the plans of the League to Enforce Peace.

TRUE ARTIST ALWAYS GETS STAGE FRIGHT IN PUBLIC

"A true artist never appears in public without an attack of stage fright," declared Ethel Leginska, the noted pianist who is to appear at the Chestnut Street Auditorium to-morrow night, to the Telegraph's club reporter, who was hurried over to the Senate to interview the pretty world-famed artist because the staff "star" (get this stuff) was busy writing color stories around the murders now in the Dauphin county court.

A GOOD WINTER HABIT

Many people dread winter because the sudden climatic changes bring colds, grippe, rheumatism, tonsillitis or bronchitis. But thousands of well-informed men and women today avoid much sickness for themselves and their children by taking a few bottles of Scott's Emulsion to make richer blood, fortify the membranes of the throat and chest and create body-warmth to resist sickness. Soldiers at war receive cod liver oil; it will also strengthen you.

which the 'bourgeois' never learn to appreciate.

"What advice would you give to the young pianist who hopes to attain success?" Miss Leginska was asked.

"Ah, that is a question to answer. Suffice it to say that the young musician who has ambition to some time become world renowned will find no rosy path before him.

"Boys, in particular—unless they have assurance that theirs is an unusual talent—should not plan to make the public concert stage their life's work. For when the 'One Girl' comes into a boy's life, he will realize it is better to be a good plumber with an assured income than a mediocre musician with no future prospects. No career, however famous, can ever compensate for having missed the great opportunity that comes but once to every man and every woman."

As quickly as her playing can change one's moods, her own mood changed and she spoke reminiscently of the time when a child at Hull, a seaport town of England, she made her first public appearance at the early age of six years.

"Managers, what have I to say about managers, I know too much about managers. It is so hard to get a good manager and poor ones are such a nuisance. Until two years ago I never had a really good manager." Miss Leginska continued.

While in Harrisburg Miss Leginska will visit local points of interest.

The Mouthpiece

The Bell telephone mouthpiece is a rather commonplace looking thing, but science and the experience of years have combined to fix its shape and curves and size and material.

It is designed to gather the sound-waves from lips that are about half an inch from its edge and directly in front of it.

When speech is directed to it from an angle or from five or six inches or a foot away, the transmission cannot help but be far below "standard."

You can help to safeguard the high quality of your Bell Service by speaking close to the transmitter, always, in a clear, not-too-loud tone of voice.

$1,600 Bet on Election Is Seized For the Poor

Butler, Pa., Dec. 13.—Dr. E. L. Wason, former member of the Legislature and treasurer of Butler county, wagered $1,000 to $600 that Hughes would be elected, and I. G. Smith, wealthy oil man, took the short end.

Smith died before the election result was known, and the money was paid to the administrator of his estate.

Knowledge of the bet came to the ears of the county commissioners, and proceedings under the anti-bet law, which provides that the authorities may collect all bets, and, if necessary, enter suit to do so, in this way collecting double the amount, a penalty of a sum equal to the bet being provided for in the act.

The commissioners notified the stakeholder and the administrator of their contemplated action, and rather than stand suit, the administrator agreed to pay the $1,600 to the treasurer of the poor district.

Accused of Spending Brother's $300 Savings

Reading, Pa., Dec. 13.—Charged with obtaining by forgery and spending $300, the entire Christmas savings of his brother, who is an ironworker in one of the mills at Lebanon, Pa., Daniel Spangler, 19 year old, of that place, was arrested here and committed to jail.

Spangler has been in Reading about four weeks, and when the police were informed about the case, they were immediately attracted to him because of his lavish spending of money. They say that after his arrest he confessed to having drawn his brother's savings from a Lebanon bank, deposited the amount to his own name in a Reading bank, from which he has been checking it out until only $12 remains.
