FATE OF NEGROES IN JURIES' HAND THIS AFTERNOON

Both Elwood Wilson and Cornelius Shepherd Murder Trials Finished

Whether or not Elwood Wilson and Cornelius Shepherd shall pay the law's penalty on the electric chair for the murders respectively of City Patrolman Lewis C. Hipple and Henry Walker, was given to Dauphin county juries late this afternoon to determine.

The final efforts of both men to save themselves from the chair were made by the convening of December criminal court this morning, and by the noon recess the attorneys for the defense in each instance had finished their arguments to the juries.

Attorney Harvey E. Knupp handled Wilson's case in No. 1 room before President Judge Kunkel and Attorney W. J. Carter argued for the defense before Additional Law Judge McCarrill in No. 2 room.

President Judge Kunkel declined to permit the jury to visit the scene of the shooting to-night in order that the surroundings might be viewed by moonlight. This was because all of the evidence has been given to the jury.

For a few minutes to-day James White, who is accused with Wilson of the murder of Patrolman Hipple, and Wilson himself, strolled about the courtroom together while the jury watched interestedly. The men walked over to the window—while vigilant deputies looked warily on.

The headgear, "the murder cap," as it has been generally referred to during the trial, is the cap that was taken from Wilson the night of the shooting and which is identical, according to witnesses with the cap that was worn by the man who fired at Patrolman Hipple.

In his own defense Shepherd took the stand in No. 2 and admitted that he had shot Henry Walker during a crap game at the Brownstone quarries near Hummelstown. He did so, however, because he feared for his own life as he declared Walker had repeatedly threatened him.

BAKERS CONFER ON QUESTION OF SIX-CENT LOAF

Question of Whether Price Shall Be Raised Here Still Unsettled

FLOURING EXPERT TALKS

Throws Light on Variance of Prices During Last Several Years

To raise the price or not to raise it? That is the question uppermost in the minds of Harrisburg bakers.

The Pennsylvania Master Bakers' Association has advised the six-cent loaf. Bakers all agree that they need the money. But City Sealer Reel says, "It's an attempt to gouge the public"; State Sealer Sweeney declares the bakers are already getting "all that's coming to them"—and so there you are!

The status-quo is this—bread is still five cents. Conference are being held by the bakers to decide the momentary question of a raise.

The Flour Situation S. S. Miller, representative of one of the big flouring industries of the country, with offices in the Telegraph building, to-day gave out a statement on the wheat and flour situation which throws considerable light on the proposal of the bakers to raise the price of bread. Mr. Miller shows how prices have varied during the past several years and says the end is not yet. His statement follows:

"The newspapers have given considerable space recently to the prices of foodstuffs and especially the bread question," said Mr. Miller.

"The bread question has been discussed from the bakers' standpoint and from a standpoint of the sealer of weights and measures for the State and the city, these departments operating as a safeguard to the buying public.

"It is admitted that articles of all kinds, regardless of the fact as to whether they be foodstuffs, wearing apparel or manufactured goods, used in large building operations, by railroad companies, etc., have advanced in price to considerable extent.

"Since the bread question has become an important subject for discussion, I thought it would be well to give to the public some facts concerning flour. Flour, which represents the greatest item of expense in a bread bakery, has advanced in price from December 5, 1915, to the present date approximately 100 per cent. On December 5, 1915, the quality of flour as used in the large bakeries was sold for $4.10 per barrel; on December 5, 1914, $5.85; December 5, 1915, $6.05; December 5, 1916, $9.35. All delivered f. o. b. Harrisburg. This same flour within the last 60 days has been as high as $16.25 per barrel.

"Being interested in the sale of flour, it is natural to suppose that I would have no particular interest in any controversy the buying public might have with the baker, but it is my opinion that the public should be dealt fairly with and in the thought of advancing the price of bread, I am of the opinion that the information with reference to the cost of flour, covering a period of four years is of interest not only to the public, but to those who operate the departments of weights and measures in the city of Harrisburg, and the State of Pennsylvania.

"The above figures are correct in every detail and the only conclusion that can be reached from the baker's standpoint is that some adjustment will have to be made with reference to the selling prices of this commodity.

"Flour is not the only article which has advanced in price, but every commodity which comes into a bakery for the manufacture of the finished product has had considerable advances; paper, spices, fuel, labor and articles necessary for the maintenance of delivery.

"My purpose as a flour merchant in advancing this information is to let the public know exactly what conditions are at the present time, and I believe after all that the only way to operate a business successfully is to take the public into its confidence and give it the conditions as they exist. The making of bread is not done under any secret process and any housewife can testify to the fact that the cost of homemade bread has advanced in great proportions, because of the higher prices of articles used in baking.

"In conclusion it is the opinion of the miller and of large bakers, that the flour market is going to maintain its high prices for some time to come and among many reasons they advance for this thought is that the mills will be compelled to discontinue manufacturing for some time if traffic conditions do not improve. All sales of flour are being made, at present, subject to shipping delays. Embargoes are being placed by some of the railroads and the question of moving grain is one that is very perplexing.

URGES USE OF SCHOOLS Urging the use of public school buildings in the city for social service work, and a complete survey of Harrisburg, Dr. Carol Aronovici, director of the Bureau of Social Research of the Seibert Institute, Philadelphia, gave an interesting talk last night in the Harrisburg Public Library, on "What Social Workers Should Know of Their Community."

CARMEN VOTE TO-NIGHT Close Decision in Wilkes-Barre Labor Trouble Is Expected Wilkes-Barre, Dec. 14. — Indications point to a close vote on the peace proposal made by the miners when the striking carmen meet to-night. It is the general belief that if the strikers turn down the plan and vote to continue the struggle the strike will have to be carried on without the support of the laboring masses.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
