4 MURDER TRIALS CONTINUED UNTIL AFTER CHRISTMAS

Misko, Yovanovic, Christley and White Go Over Until January Sessions

KOTUR'S SECOND TRIAL

Gouglar in Court Leads to Belief That He Will Be Called For Sentence

One by one four prisoners charged with murder learned definitely this morning that they may see the dawn of at least another Christmas, when John Misko, James White, Vlada Yovanovic and John O. Christley were brought into Dauphin county criminal court and told that their trials will go over until January quarter sessions.

Immediately afterward the selection of a jury to try Nick Kotur, the Steeton foreigner, for killing his fellow-countryman, Joso Backie, just a week less than a year ago, was begun.

With the trial of Kotur and the postponement of the other four cases, the calendar of December's "red week" of murder hearings has been disposed of. Nine jurors had been selected up until the noon recess.

Wilson and Shepherd Convicted

By to-morrow evening at the latest it is confidently believed that Kotur's fate will have been decided a second time. Months ago he was convicted of murder in the first degree, but the court granted a new trial.

With the conviction last evening of Elwood Wilson, who, with James White, a fellow negro, had been charged with the murder of Patrolman Lewis C. Hipple, and Cornelius Shepherd, charged with the murder of Henry Walker, and the pleading guilty a few days ago of William Jackson to the "murder in the second degree" of Charles Brown.

Seven cases in all were on the calendar for the week and these cases were disposed as follows:

The Roll of "Red Week"

Elwood Wilson, who, with James White had been charged with the murder of Patrolman Lewis C. Hipple, convicted; Cornelius Shepherd, charged with the murder of Henry Walker, convicted; William Jackson, charged with the murder of Charles Brown, pleaded guilty to "murder in the second degree" and sentenced to eighteen and a half to twenty years in the Eastern penitentiary.

The appearance of Benjamin T. Gouglar, convicted last week of enticing 13-year-old Josephine Crawford, led to a report that he was to be called for sentence into to-day, but it was unofficially intimated that sentence would scarcely be imposed until after Kotur's trial is under way.

Court Overrules Challenges

Forty-one talesmen were called to get the nine jurors which had been picked by the noon recess and in several instances the defense challenge "for cause" was overruled by the court. Both foremen of the Wilson and the Shepherd juries were among those who were challenged.

While counsel for both Elwood Wilson and Cornelius Shepherd asked for the customary four days' time in which to file reasons for a new trial, the belief was expressed in legal circles to-day that no application will be made to the court for either case declined to talk, but the impression got about that no further effort to save the two negroes from the chair will be made—and that they will likely be called for sentence Monday morning.

The Voice of the Juries

The Shepherd jury returned first, having deliberated about an hour and forty-five minutes. It was 4:55 o'clock when the twelve men reported to Additional Law Judge McCarrell who was on the bench with President Judge Kunkel in No. 1 courtroom at the time.

Only once did the prisoner show any sign that he was moved at all by the low-voiced answers to the jury's poll. That was when Assistant District Attorney Frank B. Wickersham moved for sentence. Shepherd started perceptibly and he eyed his own attorney, W. J. Carter, a bit anxiously. He heaved a big sigh when Mr. Carter asked for the customary four days' time in which to file reasons for a new trial.

In the Shadow of the Chair

Shepherd has been a resident of Hummelstown and nearby districts for close to fifteen years. During the summer he coolly stepped into a circle of craphooters at the Brownstone quarries near Waltonville and shot down Henry Walker as the latter was kneeling in prayer.

Wilson learned of his fate about 6:20, the jury having retired a little after 4 o'clock. Only when the foreman of the jury quietly answered "guilty of murder in the first degree"—and finding that means the inevitable penalty of death on the electric chair—did the negro wince. He swallowed hard and often.

To Try Again?

Wilson's attorney, H. E. Knupp and Horace A. Segelbaum, followed the same formalities as Attorney Carter. They asked four days' time in which to file reasons for a re-trial and President Judge Kunkel granted the request.

Wilson is a West Indian and is one of several thousand brought here dur-

Man Outdistances Bear When He Finds Gun Empty

West Milford, N. J., Dec. 15.--John Fly, of this town, chased a black bear for more than a half-mile. The exercise finally became too strenuous for the animal and he came to a stop. As he did so Fly pulled the trigger. He discovered he had forgotten to load his rifle and returned home, covering the course back in about half the time he made going and minus his hat and gun.

Fly had been awakened by the barking of his six dogs. From a window he saw them giving battle to the bear, which was trying to get into the henhouse. The battle lasted long enough for Fly to dress. Then he grabbed his gun and when the animal saw him the chase down the road began.

"I never got close enough to fire until we reached some woods," Fly said, "when the bear stopped. But when I found I had forgotten to load my gun I learned home was the place for me, and started. The bear made after me, but gave up after he saw the speed he was up against."

Mrs. Fly said the only manner in which she could account for her husband's loss of his hat was that his hair stuck up on end and lifted it off.

HOLLAND FEELS SAFE

London, Dec. 15.--Premier Cort van der Linden, addressing the lower house of the Dutch parliament yesterday, said that the Dutch government still believes that there is danger of Holland being dragged into the war, according to a dispatch to Reuters from The Hague. The premier was speaking on the budget and said that the country's munitions supply had considerably increased and was daily increasing and that, in view of the international situation it was unavoidable that sufficient military forces be kept in the immediate disposal of the government.
