NOTE ASTOUNDS ENGLISH PAPERS

Many Attribute Wilson's Action to Pro-German Propaganda in United States

London, Dec. 22.—President Wilson's note is given the honor of the biggest display in the morning papers, relegating the war news to a minor place. Headlines such as "President Wilson's Strange Peace Essay," "President's Peace Feeler," "Amazing Note," indicate in slight measure the astonishment caused by the communication. Much speculation is indulged in as to the motives or causes which inspired the President to send such a note after his assumption of the attitude that he would not meddle unless invited by both groups of belligerents.

One section of the press, utterly rejecting any idea of the possibility of peace negotiations as the outcome of the recent German note, justly attributes the President's action to the success of propaganda conducted by Count von Bernstorff in America and what they describe as the masterly inactivity of the late British government. The more general impression is that the agitation in America for an embargo on exports had much to do with Mr. Wilson's action. It is also suggested that the President may have received special information from German government and is aware of the extent to which Germany is prepared to go toward "reparation, restitution and guarantees." This is the view expressed by the Daily Chronicle. Some discussion is also devoted to the chances of Congress passing food export measures and possibly an embargo on cotton and war materials.

Quoted Lincoln: "It is an issue which can only be tried by war and settled by victory. The war will cease on the part of this government whenever it shall have ceased on the part of those who begin it." It says peace while Germany "is in possession of her plunder would rivet her fetters on the world for generations."

The Daily Telegraph in an editorial in common with the other newspapers says nobody will impute anything but the worthiest of motives and sincerest desire for impartiality to the combatants to President Wilson, but considers his note inopportune. The Times credits President Wilson with the greatest sincerity, but fears that his suggestion will be misunderstood, and has no doubt whatever regarding the reception the note will have at the hands of every allied government and nation. They, according to the Times, will unquestionably treat it as a declaration of war and will not be deterred by Seward's treatment of all suggestions of European interference in the Civil War.

pointed out that at first the opinion prevailed that the note itself was merely a "feeler" and that the measure immediately contemplated in issuing it was the receipt of some sort of definite of the various warring nations. That the President should have known indirectly to the diplomats for their guidance, that he went even farther than that and counted on an absolutely frank reply from the belligerents which would lead to an actual opportunity for negotiations proved only less surprising than the actual result itself.

This feeling was increased by Secretary Lansing's authorized statement yesterday that no soundings had been taken of the attitude of the belligerents addressed and the note had been sent entirely regardless of the Congressional proposals or of the reply of Lloyd George.

The question very much to the fore to-day was whether the European neutrals would present a united appeal. The Spanish and Swiss representatives here have been at the State Department regarding since those proposals came out and probably know fully the plans of this government. It is pointed out that the European neutrals have suffered beyond any other nations not actually involved in the war and that peace is more essential to them than to any but the actual belligerents. In addition they have none of the bitterness of war and none of the animosity which usually more for the coming of peace than for the accomplishment of any other purpose. Nevertheless their geographical position between the two contending forces has been an advantage that up to now they have been able to do no more than maintain their neutrality without mixing in the struggle.

Several hundred telegrams congratulating President Wilson on his note to the belligerents arrived to-day at the White House. Practically all of them construed the note as a pro-German move. They came from individuals and organizations. The White House telegraphers were kept busy for hours receiving the messages.

King George Makes No Mention of Peace Note in Message to Parliament

London, Dec. 22.—Parliament was prorogued this afternoon without the members being given any further information regarding President Wilson's note or what action the government contemplated with respect to it. None of the note nor the German peace proposal was mentioned in the

BRITISH START TOWARD BAGDAD

Egyptian operations for some time, but the British are known to have been making somewhat elaborate preparations to protect the canal region from further incursions such as that of last summer, and their defensive lines have been pushed far out on the Sinai peninsula.

Apparently there has been a recent effort still further to extend the defensive zone, of which the character of El Arish constitutes an important development.

The taking of El Arish establishes the British front at this point well toward the border of Palestine and marks the furthest eastward penetration by British forces in this area, since the Turkish raids began.

El Arish has been the object previously of attacks by British aviators

Had to Stop and Rest Every Hour

Mrs. Freysinger Was So Weak and Run Down She Could Scarcely Do Her Work

TANLAC QUICKLY HELPED

"I had long been a sufferer from chronic stomach trouble," says Mrs. Harvey Freysinger, of Penbrook, Pa. "I don't know whether to call it indigestion or dyspepsia but I do know that it had played sad havoc with my health and strength until I had come to the point where it was next to impossible for me to be about and when I tried to do my household I was so very, very weak that I had to stop and rest every hour.

HAD TO STOP AND REST EVERY HOUR

Mrs. Freysinger Was So Weak and Run Down She Could Scarcely Do Her Work

TANLAC QUICKLY HELPED

"I couldn't eat for I had no appetite and the very thought of food was distasteful to me and what little I did force myself to swallow caused me terrible distress. For besides the burning sensation that always followed I was sure to become so filled with gas that it would press up against my heart causing it to pound and palpitate and giving me a suffocating sensation."

"My sleep was very poor and I was disturbed by the most horrible dreams so that I did not rest and morning after morning I would get up feeling as if I could not drag one foot after the other."

"But thanks to that wonderful tonic, Tanlac, all my misery is a thing of the past and I am happy once more. My appetite has come back wonderfully and I can eat anything and everything without a particle of distress afterwards; I sleep soundly and restfully all night long and wake up feeling just fine; rested, energetic and strong."

"My husband is also taking Tanlac and he is feeling its good effects too." Tanlac, the famous master medicine is now being introduced here, at Gorges' Drug Store, where the Tanlac man is meeting the people and explaining the merits of this premier preparation.
