YEAR OF WONDERS SEEN IN REVIEW

Ellis Shows Lessons of 1916 as Seen in History of Early Church

(By William T. Ellis.)

In history's long calendar some years are printed in red. Red for emphasis and red for blood marks the year 1916. As the annalists compile the records of the twelve months now passing they will crowd their columns with a diversity of unique and significant events...

Unheeded by all the general chroniclers, a factor of deep import in the year that is gone is the twelve months of the Sunday school spent by more than a score of millions of persons, here and abroad, in a week-by-week study of the history of the Apostolic Christian Church.

"Absurd!" cries some critic, who boasts that he will not believe anything he cannot see, even though that stupid creed would deny the existence of his own soul...

No so fast, my skeptical friend. All the world has learned afresh that "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." The ideals of people are today the determining force in history...

Leaving its implications and consequences to the reader's imagination, the simple fact is to be stated that this year of study of the rise and growth of the Christian Church, with its sweep over the then entire known world, has peculiarly prepared the minds of a host of persons to consider the large movements of history in our own time.

The Crusaders, in turn, carried the West into the East, and effected a social change in the world that was greater than their military achievements.

Then came a group of nonmilitary triumphs, the invention of printing, the discovery of America, the Reformation, all of which events were its fruits.

Overtopping all of these era-making factors, however, is the effect of the rise of the Christian Church, which has been made immeasurably quickened by the year which, the Sunday schools of the world have spent in the Book of the Acts.

Great Events That Changed The World. This gift of seeing things in the large is not common, although it is the first quality of the historian.

QUICKLY RELIEVED STOMACH CATARRH

Local Railroad Man States That Tanlac Put Him Right Back on His Feet

FEELS FINE NOWADAYS

R. W. Welker, a railroad man, living at Mechanicsburg, Pa., is a mighty nimble and there's nothing he enjoys more than a fresh venison steak broiled over a bed of hot coals, but...

While he was out deer hunting he landed a fine buck and in the excitement of setting his prize back to camp and properly dressed he neglected necessary precautions and caught a cold that hung to him like grim death.

He simply couldn't shake it and it pulled him down until he was so weakened that his ordinary catarrh of the stomach got the better of him.

Mr. Welker says: "I sure was miserable. Didn't have a bit of appetite, even venison didn't appeal to me and I was so weak and listless that a fine eight-pony buck could have walked right by me without getting me excited. I just didn't take any interest in anything."

"To cut a long story short, I came to the point where I knew I had to do something and do it quick and I had heard so much talk about Tanlac that I decided to give it a try out."

"Well, sir, that sure is some 30-30 tonic for it fixed me up in jg time. Just sent old stomach catarrh scuttling for the tall timber, chased that cough over the hills and far away and brought my appetite back to its little chair by the old fireside."

to the east of this line, the southern flank of which is thus threatened. From Wallachia northward, Field Marshal von Mackensen's advance has been pressed on the west nearly 15 miles north of Rimnik-Sarat, and new progress also has been made near the center, in the next important point in the line of the Teutonic progress.

The Petrograd statement reveals that Rumanian troops are again in the northwest of Verdun, admitting penetration of but one French trench south of the latter eminence. Berlin claims that German troops transferred from the Somme front penetrated into the second and third French lines, captured more than 200 prisoners and seven machine guns, and repulsed several counter attacks.

The delivery will be made at Paris, after which the communication will be forwarded to Germany through American channels. The reply is a very long document, much more lengthy than the German note. This point has been one of the matters of discussion during the conference, the objection having been raised that it is too long, and should be short and sharp.

Explains Peace Note. Rome, Dec. 28, via Paris, Dec. 29.—United States Ambassador Page has issued an explanatory statement to the press in regard to President Wilson's note, answering criticisms caused through misinterpretation of its wording. The statement emphasizes the difference in the circumstances under which France offered President Lincoln its services as mediator between the north and south in the present situation.

Only close friends were present and knew of the wedding. Miss Eleanor McClelland, a former teacher in the high school here, attended the ceremony. Miss Ewing was a Y. W. C.
