

NO NEED TO FEAR BALDNESS

Tells How to Make Hair Grow Thick and Lustrous on Bald and Thin Spots

Thousands of men and women are growing bald every day and don't know the reason why. This is indeed a pity, says a hair specialist, who states that baldness usually comes from carelessness, and that anyone who gives the hair just a little attention should always have an abundance of good, healthy hair.

"I FELT ROTTEN," SAYS FRED WOOD

Munition Worker Was Harassed by Stomach Trouble That Gave Him No Peace

FEELS FINE NOW

"I felt rotten," says Fred F. Wood, of 103 Locust St., Harrisburg, Pa., an expert munition worker at one of our local plants. "I felt bad all over," he says, "my head ached all the time; I was constipated; I had no appetite; and my stomach was all out of whack, chuck full of gas all the time and I always had a nasty, nagging, gnawing pain on both sides of it."

"I didn't have any get-up or gump-up and I couldn't seem to get good night's rest no matter how tired out I might be and I'd wake up in the morning feeling like the day after."

"Well, that kind of a make-up didn't suit Mrs. Wood's little boy so I began looking round for something that would make me feel like a human being instead of something the cat dragged in. A friend of mine told me about Tanlac and what he said sounded so good to me that I got a bottle and began taking this medicine."

"Well, sir, it is some tip-top little rejuvenator for it fixed me up in great shape. Brought back my appetite, fixed up my stomach so it didn't bother me any more, rid me of those headaches and made me feel fine all over. I sleep like a top and wake up in the morning feeling like a regular fellow once more. Great stuff, Tanlac, and I'm saying a good word for it whenever I get a chance."

Tanlac, the famous reconstructive tonic, is now being introduced here at Gorges' Drug Store, where the Tanlac man is meeting the people and telling them of the merits of this master medicine.

Mothers! Croup and Whooping Cough Are Always Dangerous

No need to dose delicate little stomachs with nauseous drugs and alcoholic syrups that not only do no permanent good but in addition upset the stomach. Simply get from your druggist a small quantity of Famous Forkola--it will not cost more than 25 cents and rub a little over the throat and chest.

If Mothers only knew that an application at bedtime not only soothed and healed the little one's tired, aching throat and chest but also insured a good night's rest, they would not hesitate to get a jar of Famous Forkola today. Every sufferer from croup, whooping cough or throat in any form should give Forkola a trial.

Your druggist or H. C. Kennedy can supply you.—Advertisement.

McCLAIN PLEADS FOR FEWER LAWS

In Address Before Senate Asks "Close Season" For "Business Baiting"

LIEUT.-GOV. McCLAIN In opening the session of the Senate to-day Lieutenant-Governor McClain delivered an address in which he said:

"The General Assembly of Pennsylvania has again met, and it is undeniably a fact that a large element of our Commonwealth's citizenship, as a result of past experiences, look upon our meeting with more apprehension than satisfaction."

"The United States census reports tell us that during the past five years more than sixty thousand laws, other than appropriation measures, have been enacted by the Federal Congress and the legislatures of the various States of the union, and I make no exaggeration when I say that of this number Pennsylvania has contributed its full share."

Perfect Horde of Laws

"In both nation and State the surging tides of theoretical reform have fiercely beat about us. Along with the many useful laws promoting human rights and providing proper regulations of corporate power and corporate advantage, we have enacted a perfect horde of laws to regulate everybody and everything. We have had an overdose of the didactic, and to my mind the time has come to 'throw in the reverse' particularly in application to laws and regulations discouraging industrial development and commercial expansion."

Prosperity Abnormal

"We should not be unmindful that the unparalleled prosperity which Pennsylvania at present is enjoying is abnormal and must necessarily, in the natural course of events, be ephemeral. Burdens of taxation and regulation borne to-day with seeming ease will tax, perhaps overtax the bearer's ability to carry when normal conditions command. Therefore let us not make them heavier. Let us not do that which may ultimately 'kill the goose that lays the golden egg,' instead let us inaugurate in this branch of the general assembly, at least, 'a closed season' for 'business baiting.' Let us keep in mind as well that we are met here as the servants of the people and not as the masters of the people. Partisan bigotry and factional bitterness should have no place in the performances of our duty. We should be Pennsylvanians, for Pennsylvania."

"The founder of our Commonwealth, William Penn, truly and wisely said: 'Governments depend upon men rather than men upon governments. Let men be good and the government cannot be bad. Though good laws do well, good men do better. For good laws may lack good men and be abolished or evaded by evil men, but good men will never lack good laws, nor suffer ill ones.'"

Suffer From Over-Legislation

"The people of Pennsylvania are suffering from 'over-legislation' rather than from 'too little legislation' and I can conceive of no more useful service that we can give at this session than to promptly, intelligently and effectively devote our energies to these enactments made necessary by increased urban population and changing conditions in municipal life, together with such enactments as are absolutely essential to social welfare, wage earning and 'business opportunity. Having done these things it would seem to me to be the part of wisdom to repeal laws now on our statute books that have become obsolete and really are more honored in the breach than in the observance, and then amend the useful statutes enacted at recent sessions of the General Assembly in which experience has demonstrated errors and inequities exist. After these achievements, which should be taken long to accomplish, we can with propriety and good conscience 'put up the shutters,' turn the key in the lock, go back to our daily home occupations, and the people with heartfelt joy say amen."
