THREE CROPS GAIN 38 PER CENT.

Potato, Hay and Tobacco Yield Worth $106,965,615; Due to High Prices

The potato, hay and tobacco crops raised in Pennsylvania during the past season have a total valuation of $106,965,615 according to the estimates just announced by the Bureau of Statistics of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. A year ago the same crops were valued at $77,541,300 and the increase of $29,424,315 shows a gain of thirty-eight per cent. in the value of the 1915 crops. The potato production was almost two million bushels less than last season's crop but the average price per bushel has been $1.30 for a crop estimated at 18,564,000 bushels while last year's crop of 20,502,000 bushels sold for an average price of 80 cents a bushel. This shows an increase in the value of the potato crop of from $16,401,000 to $24,133,300. The average price obtained at this time covers the period of the past year and with thousands of bushels still being held and in many places selling at from $1.60 to $2.00 a bushel it is very likely that the value of the present season's crop will be much larger than the present estimate.

The hay production during the past year was the largest ever known in this State, the estimate placing the yield at 5,241,270 tons as compared with 3,558,000 tons in 1915. There were 3,195,000 acres of hay harvested against 3,015,000 a year ago and the average yield was 1.64 tons to an acre against a yield of 1.18 tons an acre last year. In 1908 the average per acre was 1.5 tons but the bumper crop this season was far ahead. While the average price per ton was $15.90 last year the immense production has brought an average price of $14.50 in the State and the value of the crop is $75,998,415 as compared with $56,572,200 for the 1915 crop.

The tobacco production is estimated at 45,569,000 pounds on 34,000 acres as compared with a production of 45,675,000 pounds on 31,500 acres a year ago. The average was 1,340 pounds to an acre against an average of 1,460 a year ago. The tobacco crop which is principally grown in Lancaster county suffered from the worms, several severe hail storms and some was caught by the early frosts. But tobacco that averaged ten cents a pound a year ago has brought an increase of fifty per cent. in price and the average price per pound for 1916 was raised to fifteen cents. The 1916 crop is valued at $6,834,000 as compared with $4,567,500 for the 1915 crops.

Congressman Bailey Intimates There Is Plot to Keep Paper Up

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4. — Intimating strongly that there is a conspiracy of the "special interests" to secure control of the paper supply of the country and thereby to put independent newspapers out of business, Congressman Warren Worth Bailey, in a statement issued at this time covers the investigation into the cause for the rapid advancement in prices of paper.

In his statement asking support of his resolution demanding an inquiry, Mr. Bailey says he has little doubt that a conspiracy between paper manufacturers and dealers exists. This agreement, he intimates, is fostered by "big business" for the suppression of the small and independent newspapers. This statement does not take into consideration, however, the fact that the largest newspapers and magazines in the country have been protesting against the high price of paper for the past few months and "independent" publications.

MOHMANDS ARE TROUBLESOME

British Troops Round Up Turbulent Tribes For Interment

Peshawar, Northwest Frontier Province, India, November 11 (correspondence of the Associated Press).—The Mohmands, a nominally independent and ever turbulent tribe, whose country borders on administered British territory in this region, having made themselves generally objectionable during the last few months, have come in for considerable attention at the hands of the British recently. The latest phase of the punishment being meted out occurred to-day, when thousands of troops engaged in a drive which resulted in the rounding up for internment of 400 Mohmands who were scattered in villages just inside the provincial domain.

The Mohmands have always been among the most troublesome of the tribesmen living in the independent territory between the northwest frontier province and Afghanistan. A year ago they made raids and committed murders in the Peshawar district. As a penalty they were forbidden to enter the province to trade. Angered by this, they began to threaten war, and several fights actually did take place.

At this time there were a number of Mohmands living in British territory. After the declaration of hostilities by their brothers at home most of these government guests were sent across the border. Sir George Roos-Koepfel, chief commissioner for the northwest frontier province, then put up along the Mohmand border a line of barbed wire entanglements, intersected with strongly guarded blockhouses. The government of India at the same time imported a number of aeroplanes, the latest ever seen in this part of the world, and manned them with experienced aviators fresh from the western theater of war.

Driven Into Trap
For a time the new methods of warfare puzzled and worried the Mohmands and they kept to their hills, but recently they became more bold, and last night succeeded in cutting the barbed wire at one or two places and committing small thefts. Then it was that Sir George Roos-Koepfel played his trump card by ordering the installation of a live wire, which has been strung along the whole Mohmand frontier, a distance of seven miles. The fact that this wire carries 4,500 volts and means instant death to anyone touching it has become known to the tribesmen, and at present they are contenting themselves with holding powder in the mountains and making threats.

To-day's drive is said to be unique to this section of the world. "Barramta" is the name the natives give it, this being Hindustani for "reprisal." It was the privilege of a correspondent of the Associated Press to ride with the troops and witness this unusual hunt, which was for the purpose of rounding up all Mohmands of a fighting age who had not previously been driven across the border. The Barramta was divided into two sections, one being in the narrow angle formed by two branches of the Kabul river and the other between one of these branches and the barbed wire entanglement which forms a junction with the river at the point where it divides. The rivers and the wire thus made two V-shaped traps, toward the points of which the drive was conducted, nothing in its path being able to escape, for the Mohmands could neither swim the river nor force their way through the guarded barbed wire. Several battalions of infantry and a large number of cavalry took part in the hunt, which began about ten miles below the apex of the traps. A solid line of troops was thrown across, forming a triangle, whose base ever moved forward, gathering everything in its way.

great fields of growing sugar cane. In addition numerous villages lay in the path and all these had to be invaded and thoroughly searched. It was a curious sight to see the scores of Mohmands scurrying like rabbits for the cover of the cane fields and villages ahead of the advancing troops.

Straight through the heavy barrier of cane with its razor-like blades went the Tommies and lancers, emerging on the farther side with their catch of Mohmands, who were herded together under guard and brought along in the rear.

The villages were more difficult, for here the hunters concealed themselves in all manner of queer places. But one and all they were dug out of their hiding places. For the most part the Mohmands gave no trouble beyond trying to escape. The four hundred Mohmands were brought back to Peshawar, from which place they were to be sent to an internment camp until more peaceful times.

Farmer's Week Sessions at State College End
State College, Pa., Jan. 4. — Many notebooks filled with fertilizing formulas, prize feed mixtures, seed tests and general information along the lines of the "new agriculture" were the cherished possessions of the 900 farmers who returned to-day to their homes all over Pennsylvania after attendance at Farmers' Week sessions conducted by State College authorities and visiting experts since last Wednesday. The course of lectures and demonstrations was brought to a close at noon to-day.

Left here for another week are only county agricultural agents, who help in the work of disseminating farming knowledge. There are thirty of them, with E. K. Hibbsman, of State College, leading their activities. Big rural problems confronting these trained agriculturists will be discussed for the next few days, and they will go back to their districts better equipped to give their patrons a postgraduate course in the science of progressive farming.

Cured His RUPTURE
I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no time, no expense. If you have a rupture to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation. If you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 305 1/2 Marcellus avenue, Mansaque, N. J. How to Be Rid of Disgusting Dandruff
The only way to be permanently rid of disgusting, untidy dandruff is to correct its cause. Shampooing merely cleanses the scalp for a few days, then the scales form again as thick as ever.
To destroy the dandruff germ and get rid of dandruff for good, part the hair and apply a little of the genuine Parisian Sage directly on the bare scalp, and rub it in with the finger tips for a few minutes until absorbed by the scalp. You will surely be amazed at the result of even one application, for your hair and scalp will look and feel 100 per cent. better.
Only a few days' massage with Parisian Sage are needed to destroy the germs that cause the dandruff to form. The scalp becomes healthy, the hair will grow better and show more life and vitality, and you need never be troubled by dandruff again. Faded, dull or lifeless hair is quickly restored to beauty by this simple process, which is absolutely harmless, and will not stain the hair or make it greasy.
Parisian Sage can be obtained from H. C. Kennedy and druggists everywhere. It is not expensive.
