

O Prunes!

(From an article by the advocates of the manual telephone system defending its service to the Dear Public in The Star-Independent of January 4.)

"Another woman frantically inquired if the operator knew how to keep prunes from burning. The operator did not, but she flashed the request to the others in the exchange and they decided that the surest way was to remove the prunes from the fire."

A good joke—but on you when you are patiently (?) waiting your turn for the operator!

Cincinnati authority tells how to dry up a corn so it lifts out.

You corn-pestered men and women need suffer no longer. Wear the shoes that nearly killed you before, says this Cincinnati authority, because a few drops of freezeone applied directly on a tender, aching corn stops soreness at once and soon the corn loosens so it can be lifted out, root and all, without pain.

A quarter of an ounce of freezeone costs very little at any drug store, but is sufficient to take off every hard or soft corn or callous. This should be tried, as it is inexpensive and is said not to inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue or skin.

THIRD DEATH FROM TYPHOID
Enterline, Pa., Jan. 12.—John Herman, aged 19 years, died at his home here yesterday from typhoid fever, traced back to the Enterline picnic last summer, when impure ice cream caused many cases of typhoid. His father, Charles Herman, and a sister died from the disease several months ago. His mother and a sister survive.

The New Remedy Now Known as Ironized Paw-Paw The Tonic of the Twentieth Century, the Muscle Builder for Old and Young—Makes Beautiful Women and Strong Men

THE FIRST DOSE PROVES ITS WORTH

"Iron Man" Receiving Orders

For years PAW-PAW was the only vegetable Pepsin known, and everywhere it was welcomed for indigestion and stomach trouble and has a record of 20 years of established dependability.

Then the chemists discovered that IRON and NUX produced rich, red blood and steadied the nerves. After many trials IRON and NUX were combined with PAW-PAW, the result being a tonic of wonderful body-building qualities, plus a nerve stealer and a muscle developer. In other words, IRONIZED PAW-PAW is a combination of three well-known ingredients of real merit, and instead of getting the three you get the same results—if not better—in one dose of IRONIZED PAW-PAW.

Don't be groggy, run-down or ruin your disposition by poor health. IRONIZED PAW-PAW is a constructive stimulant and can be taken by young and old. Call and get a free test and be convinced.

WAR WILL BE PUSHED WITH RENEWED FURY ALLIES SAY

While the formal reply of the Allies is that through France, it represents the united stand of the Allies. Its announcement of peace terms, severe though they are, was viewed as a hopeful sign by President Wilson.

Aside from the definite announcement of the extreme terms on which the Allies would consent to consider the outstanding future of the two notes is the diplomatic alliance to the presumed lack of relation between President Wilson's move and the German peace proposals, as well as the exact realization which they have of the gravity of the hour and by the sincere friendship which attaches them to the American people.

ALLIES GIVE PEACE TERMS IN NOTE TO PRESIDENT

The translation of the French text of the entente note as cabled by Ambassador Sharp at Paris, follows: "The allied governments have received the note which was delivered to them in the name of the government of the United States on the 11th of December, 1916. They have studied it with care upon them, both by the exact realization which they have of the gravity of the hour and by the sincere friendship which attaches them to the American people.

"They recognize all the advantages for the cause of humanity and civilization which the institution of international agreements, destined to avoid violent conflicts between nations, would prevent—agreements which must imply the sanctions necessary to insure their execution, and thus to prevent an apparent security from only facilitating new aggressions.

"But a discussion of future arrangements for assuring a durable peace presupposes a satisfactory settlement of the present conflict; the allies have as profound a desire as the government of the United States to terminate as soon as possible a war for which the central empires are responsible and which inflicts such cruel sufferings upon humanity.

"The allies are fully aware of the losses and suffering which the war causes to neutral, as well as to belligerent, and they deplore them; but they do not doubt that it is inevitable for them, having in no way either willed or provoked this war.

"It is with satisfaction, therefore, that they take note of the despatch of the American communication in no wise associated in its origin with that of the central powers, transmitted on the 13th of December, 1916, by the government of the United States. They did not doubt, moreover, the resolution of that government to avoid even the appearance of a support, even moral, of the authors responsible for the war.

"The allied governments feel it their duty to challenge in the most friendly but also in the clearest way the analogy drawn between the groups of belligerents. This analogy, based on public declarations of the central powers, is in direct conflict with the evidence as regards their responsibility for the past and guarantees for the future. President Wilson, in alluding to this analogy, did not, of course, intend to adopt it as his own.

"If there is an historical fact established at the present date, it is the willful aggression of Germany and Austria-Hungary to invade the territory of neutral nations, their economic domination over the world. Germany proved by her declaration of war, by the instant violation of Belgium and Luxembourg, and by her methods of warfare, Germany has proved that she systematically scorns every principle of humanity and all respect due to small states. More and more, as the struggle has progressed, has the attitude of the central powers and their allies been a constant challenge to humanity and civilization.

"It is necessary to recall the horrors which accompanied the invasion of Belgium and of Serbia, the atrocious regime imposed upon the invaded countries, the massacre of hundreds of thousands of innocent civilians, the barbarities perpetrated against the population of Syria, the raids of Zeppelins on open towns, the destruction by submarines of passenger steamers and of merchantmen even under neutral flags, the cruel treatment inflicted upon prisoners of war, the juridical murders of Miss Cavell, of Captain Pratt, the deportation and the reduction to slavery of civil populations, et cetera? The execution of such a series of crimes, perpetrated without any regard for universal probations, fully explains to President Wilson the protest of the allies.

"They consider that the note which they sent to the United States in reply to the German note will be regarded to the questions put by the American government, and, according to the exact words of the latter, constitutes a public declaration as to the conditions upon which the war could be terminated.

"Allies Lay Down Their Terms
"President Wilson desires more. He desires that the belligerent powers openly affirm the objects which they seek by continuing the war; the allies experience no difficulty in replying to this request. Their objects in the war are well known; they have been formulated on many occasions by the chiefs of their diverse governments. Their objects in the war will not be made known in detail, with all the equitable compensations and indemnities for damages suffered, until the hour of negotiations.

gium, is a bitter attack upon the Central Powers, their good faith and their manner of conducting the war. All the atrocities of the Central Powers are set forth as evidence that the war must go to a conclusion.

The fact that the Allies have publicly announced that they will not consider the terms of the entente note on the basis of the retirement of the Central Powers from all captured territory and the surrender of provinces, such as Alsace-Lorraine, taken in previous wars, with reparation and heavy indemnities, apparently has not discouraged the Washington administration.

It was said in administration circles that the Allies still left the door open; that President Wilson could now ask the Central Powers to state their peace terms with the same detailed specifications.

The Allied note says that "The objects in the war will not be made known in detail, with all the equitable compensations and indemnities for damages suffered until the hour of negotiations," but it is pointed out by administration circles that, as a matter of fact, the terms of peace have plainly been announced, and that the Central Powers should show their readiness to accept the terms which the administration is looking for an opening to continue the peace negotiations.

The translation of the French text of the entente note as cabled by Ambassador Sharp at Paris, follows: "The allied governments have received the note which was delivered to them in the name of the government of the United States on the 11th of December, 1916. They have studied it with care upon them, both by the exact realization which they have of the gravity of the hour and by the sincere friendship which attaches them to the American people.

GERMANY PLACES BLAME FOR CONTINUANCE ON ALLIES

Berlin, Jan. 12.—Germany is ready to fight on and places on the heads of the Entente Allies "full responsibility for the continuance of the bloodshed."

Such is the purport of a note handed the neutral governments concerning the reply of the Allies to the German peace proposal.

It is declared that the Teutonic Powers shall continue the struggle "in quiet confidence and firm trust in their right, until peace is gained with guarantees to their nation's honor, existence and liberty of development, and which to all the nations of the European continent gives the blessing to co-operate in mutual respect and under equal rights together for the solution of the great problems of civilization."

The note further declares that Germany and her allies have made "an honest attempt to terminate the war and open the road for an understanding among the belligerents." Further, it is asserted, "that it merely depends upon the decision of the Entente nations whether the road towards peace shall be entered upon or not."

well as to the generous Americans eager to relieve the misery of the Belgian population. Finally, nowhere more than in the United States have the abductions and deportations of Belgian civilians provoked such a spontaneous movement of protestation and indignation.

These facts, entirely to the honor of the American nation, allow the government of the king to entertain the legitimate hope that at the time of the definite settlement of this long war the voice of the entente powers will find in the United States a unanimous echo to claim in favor of German ambition and covetousness, the rank and the place which its irremediable past, the valor of its soldiers, its fidelity to honor and its remarkable facilities for work assigned to it among the civilized nations."

GERMAN PROPOSAL FORESEEN

The author of "The Pan-German Plot Unmasked," which the Scribners are about to publish, anticipated and prophesied the German peace proposal. In this book by Andre Cheradame the French publicist says that Germany had a scheme whereby, after certain events which have now occurred, the Germans would step forward with an air of magnanimity and would offer what appeared to be a generous peace and acknowledgement of defeat; that they hoped thereby to get the most important part of what they had fought for in the idea that it would be a stepping-stone to final world dominion. The author, whose theory Lord Cromer indorses in his introduction, believes that this plan was devised before the war was undertaken and produces the most impressive evidence in support of his view.
