PAPERS DIVIDED ON WILSON'S TALK

Address on Peace Called Bold One as Press Gives Praise and Censure

The American press is divided in its opinion of the address delivered yesterday by President Wilson before the United States Senate. Some of the comment follows: Baltimore (Md.) Sun: "It is a bold utterance in its assumption that peace, if it is to be lasting, must come without victory. It conceivably will irritate both groups of contending nations."

COUNTERFEITERS TO GET "THIRDS"

Ferry Declares He Never Received His Share; Wants to Know About Weaver

"That was a pretty poor investment and I guess I'll get about four years in the penitentiary in the bargain," declared Joseph D. Ferry yesterday afternoon shortly after he pleaded guilty to his part in the counterfeiting scheme unearthed here by Secret Service men.

USE OF THE BIG STICK

The Providence (R. I.) Journal: "The college professor dies hard. If there is anything in Mr. Wilson's address to the Senate which is understandable, it is the point of view of any proposed action which would like to know what it is. The pronouncement might have been delivered from the platform of some Lincolnian, but it means nothing and less than nothing, for the Black and white and the present world situation, both call for some definite and unmistakable declaration."

RETRIBUTION

The President's appearance in the Senate yesterday and his reading of an address solemnly proposing the most radical of revolutions not only in the government of the United States, but in the government of the world, marks the climax of the sensational series of verbal carousals which have characterized his administration almost from its beginning.

BRYAN LAUDS WILSON

Madison, Wis., Jan. 23. — "The President's message is a wonderfully eloquent appeal to the nations at war," William J. Bryan said in an interview here to-day. "Insofar as the President's message suggests terms of agreement it is entirely sound and reflects what I believe to be an almost unanimous sentiment. But I dissent entirely from the proposition that this nation should join in a movement to affect peace in Europe."

TOKYO STREETS ARE A JAPANESE PUZZLE

Tokyo is made up of a group of small towns which expanded until, like the old lady's two teeth, they hit. It is the most conservative city in Japan, and is the one most lacking in unity of spirit. Each district has its own market and its own shops. Homes and stores are mixed together in bewildering confusion, and even old residents find it hard to find their way about the crooked streets.

On my motorcycle, the only way I have mastered the problem is by memorizing the numbers of the tram lines and then riding till I see a car. Then I know where I am. The city is grouped around the Imperial Palace, and segments, like doorned pieces of pie, radiate from the center of the cobweb. As one cannot start from the center of this mixup, due to the fact that that is where the sacred person of the Emperor holds court, he must play "ring around the rosy" at some distance from the center. If he is near the outer circumference, two miles on his speedometer mean one thing. If he circles the inner moat, they mean another. — Maynard Owen Williams, in the Christian Herald.
