PEACE RUMORS BASIS OF SELLING MOVE

Shipping Stocks, Motors and Variety of Issues Regarded as War Shares Pressed For Sale at Extreme Declines; Prominent Industrials and Equipments Lower

New York, Jan. 27. — Peace rumors, originating in overnight advices from abroad, were made the basis of a moderate professional selling movement in to-day's brief session.

Shipping stocks, motors and a variety of issues more or less remotely regarded as war shares were pressed for sale at extreme declines of 2 to almost 4 points. United States Steel also yielded a point with other prominent industrials and equipments.

Rails were completely ignored, aside from a three-point advance in Minneapolis and St. Louis. Some of the prominent transportation stocks were not quoted at all. Partial rallies, due to short covering, attended the later dealings. The closing was heavy. Sales were estimated at 250,000 shares. Bonds were irregular.

POULTRY CULTURE AN IDEAL FIELD FOR WOMEN

RED LACE D CORNISH

Cornish fowls, white game-like in character, are classed as English fowls, because they were originated in Cornwall, Wales, about 60 years ago. The original Cornish was produced by crossing Aseel (imported from India) with Derby Black Red Game of England and a later addition of Malay blood. This produced a large, heavy, full-breasted chicken with heavy thighs, yellow legs and skin, and which was esteemed for its table qualities both in the country of its origin and later in America. Its Great Britain and in America. Its originators gave it the name of Indian Game; and within a few years it has become known as Cornish, either Dark, White or Red Laced.

The Whites are sports from the dark variety crossed with White Aseel, and the last, Red Laced, are of Yankee origin, using both the Dark and White varieties with some infusion of White Georgia Games.

In color they are rich red, each feather edged with white. The main tail feather in both sexes and the sickles in the male should be solid white. Legs, skin and beak are deep yellow, and the fowls when dressed are most inviting to the American housewife.

The Red Laced Cornish are a hardy variety, strong and vigorous as foragers and moderately good layers — easily the best of all Cornish in this respect. They become broody, sit and are indifferent mothers. The chicks are rugged and good hustlers, growing rapidly and to the best advantage when given free range.

Most of the Farm Flocks Are Taken Care of by Women With Marked Success

Poultrymen Will Do Well to Take Their Wives Into Partnership

By Michael K. Boyer
Poultry Editor of The Farm Journal.

It has been demonstrated that from 50 to 100 hens kept by an energetic woman will yield a profit of $2 per head, and there will still be plenty of eggs and poultry left for the home demand. As a "pin-money" enterprise hens have no equal.

On many of the farms, especially in the West, the poultry is given in charge of the women of the household. It is well naturally adapted to women; it calls for patience and attention, and at the same time kindness and gentleness—traits that do not always dwell in the sterner sex.

There is no event in connection with poultry culture during the year, which has not its interest for those who care for innocent creatures of the farm yard—whether it is feeding the stock, gathering the eggs, hatching the chicks, or culling the flocks in the Fall to meet the capacity of the winter quarters. They all have their charm, and excite the interest and sympathy of those who have a love for the feathered family.

Physiologists tell us that our American women lose health and beauty earlier than they should, for want of sufficient out-of-door air and exercise. Whether or not this is true, we may be certain that the poultry business has among its other benefits the the Newell Hotel. The Park building, the oldest skyscraper in the city, also was threatened, as were a number of moving picture theaters.

Explosions Spread Embers

At one time the flames leaped across Diamond street and damaged the Solomon department store and the Harris Theater, but were soon extinguished. It then became evident that if the firewall which formed the west and south sides of the Grand Opera house would hold the fire could be confined within bounds that would permit the saving of no less than half the square.

The buildings were among the oldest in the business section with the exception of the Grand Opera House which was modern in every way. The principal losses, it is stated, will fall on the Frank and Seder Company, the Hilton Company and the Davis enterprises which owned and operated the opera house.

The roof of the Grand Opera House collapsed, carrying with it the walls of an adjacent building and immediately afterward a number of explosions scattered burning embers in all directions.

Captain John Snider, of one of the downtown engine companies, was struck by a falling brick when the walls of the Frank and Seder building collapsed and was seriously injured. Other firemen who were injured were hurried to a drugstore outside the fire-zone where their injuries were dressed by police surgeons.
