8,000 SIGNERS ON PETITIONS

Remonstrances Against and Requests For Licenses Received by Cumberland Court

Carlisle, Pa., Jan. 29. — Marked by intense interest, the Cumberland county license court for 1917 opened here today. In all 26 applications for license were presented and against eight of these there were remonstrances. Delegations of church workers and Women's Christian Temperance Union members crowded the court room.

The petitions for and demurrances against license have been signed by nearly 8,000 residents of the county. On the original applications there were about 400 signers. For the remonstrances against the eight places, all of the Mechanicsburg hotels and a wholesale place, the Central Hotel at Newville, a hotel, saloon and wholesale store here there were slightly over 4,300 signers.

Supplemental petitions for all of these were filed late Saturday here. Mechanicsburg voters numbering about 100 signed these petitions, and in Newville the number was about 200 more. Carlisle had the largest number, about 2,700, of these 2,300 being for the retention of the Low wholesale store. As the remonstrants alleged "No necessity," the supplemental petitions spoke of such necessity and also commended the fitness of all applicants.

The following are the applications against which no remonstrances were filed and which will probably be granted:

Carlisle — Hotel Wellington, Geo. A. Dougherty; Cumberland Hotel, William E. Kline; wholesale, William N. Zinn; Farmers Hotel, Edward Westfall; restaurant, William Lins; Mansion House, Joseph E. Einstein; St. Charles Hotel, T. J. Crowley; Thudium House, U. G. Eppley.
