A New Idea in Fashionable Corsetry Is the "TREO" Elastic Girdle

The Treo girdle is the ideal corset for the woman who works about her home as well as for the woman who is a devotee of outdoor sports.

While it is not so well suited for the stouter woman for dressy occasions yet it is the one garment most needed by that type when occasion permits. The stout woman is the one who suffers most from stays and she will invariably discard them the moment she enters her boudoir. She will be comfortable and always presentable when she wears the "Treo" and when stays must be worn the fact that she has been wearing a "Treo" will make her rigid corset the most easily borne.

The Treo is made with four hose supporter straps of substantial elastic with padded loops and rubber buttons which prevent tearing of the hose.

On sale at our Corset Department $1.50 to $7.00

S. P. C. A. Notes

The regular monthly meeting of the directors of the Harrisburg Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals for January, has been postponed several weeks because the newly-elected president of the society, J. Harris Bell, is quarantined. Dues for December are now payable to Robert McCormick, the treasurer of the society, at the Duquesne Deposit Bank. As the running expenses of the society must be largely met by the membership fees a prompt remittance is desired.

An animal lover of England writes of the effects of shell fire on animals in the war zones. He says:

"The proverbial sphinx-like imperturbability of cats is once again demonstrated by the fact that pussy is the only quadruped known to face shells without natural feeling of trepidation. Even after two years of devastating bombardment, Ypres, the dead city of the Flanders plain, still boasts a number of cats which prowl and flourish in this wilderness of calcined debris.

"Horses are more human, inasmuch as they are afraid of shells, but endeavor to show a bold front. Dogs are the greatest cowards and the sound of a 'Jack Johnson' sets them running as fast as their legs can carry them from the danger zone.

"Perhaps, however, the most unafflicted of all natural life within sound of the guns are larks and sparrows. These birds treat a hurricane fire with aloofness and contempt, singing and chirping through all the din as if the uproar were but an unwelcome accompaniment to their song.

"There is a bill pending in Congress to regulate shipping of poultry. While conditions are improved, there is still much suffering for helpless fowls. John B. Thompson, of Missouri, says the long-distance shipments are the worst sufferers. There are long waits on open trucks, exposed to hot sun or driving sleet, and dreadful overcrowding, especially where the farmer makes his own crates. In an express car geese suffer more than other fowls, because of their habit of sticking their necks through the slats of the crate continuously, with the result that they are frequently injured by having crates piled upon their heads. Though messengers as a rule are humane, lack of space in the car and hurry add much to the sufferings of the geese.

The first work of the Japan Humane Society, established in 1914, was to erect drinking troughs for horses in Tokyo. This was such a novelty that they were treated as freaks and much damage was done to the troughs. Now the feeling has changed and more than twelve drinking fountains have been established in the city.

In the rapid industrial and commercial advances in Japan in the last fifty years Japanese horses have been called upon to do work for which they are not physically capable. In Europe there has been evolved by grading up, special types of horses adapted to heavy draft, like the Shire breed of England, the Clydesdale in Scotland, the Percheron in France. In Japan no such type has been bred.

This causes great suffering to the horses and a huge economic loss to the nation in the shortened service of the horse, which cannot do really efficient work in its short life. The humane societies are working with the Government to regulate the loading, driving and treatment of horses.

PROHIBITION ATTITUDE IN THE SENATE

One reason for the remarkable progress that prohibition is making can be found in the attitude of men who themselves take a tolerant attitude toward the use of liquor, but have been impressed by the wreck which is wrought up by alcohol all around them.

Typical of this is a statement made by Senator Smith, of Georgia, when announcing that he was going to vote in favor of prohibition for Washington:

"With me opposition to the use of spirituous and intoxicating drink has been a gradual growth. When I leave myself free to think about it and realize the skeletons found in almost every home as a result of its use, I have reached the place where I am willing never to have it on my table any more, although I enjoy a glass of wine myself; and I am willing in my State and hope in the State this next summer to help make it absolutely dry."—From Collier's Weekly for February 3.
