"MOTHER CAREY'S CHICKENS"—GREAT

A Play of 100 Per Cent. Wholesomeness, Charm and Beauty Shown at the Orpheum

There comes a time to each of us when we feel the utter inadequacy of language to express the thoughts that fill our minds, or rather, when we feel that a combination of words cannot hope to, even to the smallest degree, convey the true meaning of thoughts, just as in one confronted when one attempts to describe the unutterable sweetness and charm of "Mother Carey's Chickens," the new Katie Douglas Wiggin and Rachel Crothers play, presented last night (and which will be repeated tonight) by John Cort. A few words may in a meager sense describe the effect the play leaves with the audience—it's useless to attempt to put into words its wonderful beauty, its sweetness, the simplicity and its charm. "Mother Carey's Chickens" is the type of play that grips, takes hold of the finest sensibilities, the highest and the noblest in man and woman; strikes a responsive cord in the heart of those who seek the highest ideal in life; teaches its lesson and sends one away with a message, both for one's self and for the world. And what a mission does such a play perform. And there are moments when one's eyes involuntarily become moist, for a hardened individual, indeed, he who can sit through this play and not live it along with the characters. The story concerns "Mother Carey's children—they are her chickens. But others are added to her flock—those whose lives are touched with her tender sweetness and love and guidance. She has dreamed of, which not all of us have known, for how the world does need such mothers to-day. And what an interpretation does Marion Barney give! The audience won't forget her tender, sweet "Mother." The story has a most charming plot, but plot is but a small part when compared with the intangible something which comes to each one as they see the play unfold. "Mother Carey's Chickens" is essentially a play of type. Contrast it sharply with the city-bred, type of finer sensibilities is the rural New Hampshire type. And to the latter goes the humor of the piece. Not an exaggerated humor, but one which relieves the tenacity of the plot with a genuineness which impresses one as being real rather than studied. To every one in the cast there belongs honor for his or her part, there belongs credit to the interpretation, there belongs thanks for the joy brought from the lines. Well-balanced and well-chosen is the cast. "Mother Carey's Chickens" is the type of play of which the stage needs more. It is the type which has a message for thousands who find life a drudge and best of all "Mother Carey's Chickens" is 100 per cent. wholesome, clean, entertaining and instructive.

MAX ROBERTSON.

HARRISBURG GUARDSMAN TO BRING EAGLE HOME

When Company D, Eighth Pennsylvania Infantry, comes home from the border, the boys will bring back with them the only pet of its kind captured by Pennsylvania troops in Texas. Lawrence Schreck, 1644 Fulton street, who is with Company D, while on a hike in the mountains near camp caught an eagle and brought it back with him. Since then the bird has become tame, and eats at mess with the other boys in the company.

AN EXPERT ON COLDS
Comparatively few people realize that a cold is a signal of physical weakness. To treat a cold with weakening physics, alcoholic syrups or drugged pills, may smother the cold but they also reduce the body powers still further and invite more serious sickness. Scott's Emulsion has always been an expert on colds, because it peculiarly enriches the blood, quickly tones up the forces and strengthens both throat and chest. Try Scott's Refuse Substitutes.
