GREAT LUTHERAN RALLY RESULTS IN OVERFLOW

So large was the crowd of Lutherans attracted to the Reformation memorial services last night in the Chestnut street auditorium that an overflow meeting had to be held in Zion Lutheran Church. An hour before the services started the auditorium was crowded to the doors. The audience in the auditorium was estimated at 2,100 and in the church at 500.

tion the diocese had owned in Harris-GROWTH RECORDED burg a valuable property, finely located on an eminence overlooking the Capital City and the beautiful Susquehanna river. Here Bishop Jeremiah Shanahan had established an ecclesiastical seminary, but lack of means, after a few years, brought this project to an end, and from the time of the first Bishop's demise Sylvan Heights had served as an episcopal residence. But the second Bishop Shanahan, finding the manor house on the property too spacious for his needs, came to the resolution to transform the structure into an orphanage. The only thing he needed to carry out this puropse was funds, but the one-matter about which the third Bishop of Harrisburg never worried was money. For the mammon of iniquity he personally cared nothing—when he died less four hundred dolars, more than half of which had just come in, was found in bank to his credit. This indifference to the root of all evil does not mean that the Bishop did not realize that money has its legitimate uses; on the contrary, he so well knew how much good could be done with it that he expended his own as fast as it came to hand. And he expected other, if not to go quite so frespectable portions of their worldly possessions, for the common cause. Noither did his diocesans, both lay and clerical, disappoint in this regard his high expectations: in a few months after his appeal for the wherewith to remodel Sylvan Heights, and to pay off the large debt on the property, the means for both purposes was at hand, and a well-equipped orphanage, capable of accommodating eighty children, was opened, November 21, 1901. Subsequently a wing was added which greatly increased the accommodation, but unfortunately, in December, 1915, two months before the Bishop's death, and to his great grief, the main building was destroyed by fire. But, neverlosing courage, he at once had plans drawn for its reconstruction as a fire-proof edifice, and the last official act of his life, while he lay on what proved to be his deathbed, was to give directions for the contract to be signed. The new cathedral was dedicated with the usual solemnities, May 16, 1907, and, although, for the resources of the diocese, it cost the considerable sum of $185,000, a hundred thousand of this amount had, in three years, been raised by the united efforts of the Bishop, the diocese and the cathedral parish. It need only be added that in the intervening years, to the time of Bishop Shanahan's death, more than three-fourths of the remaining indebtedness has disappeared.

Guyane off the coast of France on January 22 the submarine was sunk, according to officers of the freighter which arrived here to-day from Bordeaux.

The Guyane was one day out from port. At 3.30 p. m. Captain Rousselot said, the U-boat was sighted some distance to port and apparently endeavoring to cross the freighter's bow in order to stop her. The submarine fired a shot which fell short and the Guyane then turned sharply to starbard so that her big 65-millimetre gun mounted at the stern could be trained on the approaching vessel.

The submarine fired a second shot which fell considerably short, and a third shot which struck the water close by the freighter.

Meanwhile the Guyane's gunner had sent one shell which failed to bit but struck very near its mark. A second shot from the Guyane, Captain Rousselot said, hit the U-boat squarely and the underwater boat was seen to collapse.
