

BUSINESS HERE PUTS FOOT DOWN ON DRINKING MAN

Big Industries Have No Place For Employee Who "Goes on Spree"

SAY "NO BOOZE" PAYS

"Genial Johns" Will Soon Be Unable to Get Street Cleaning Jobs Prediction

The men who fire and hire—heads of the large industries that furnish work to the men of Harrisburg—have unqualifiedly declared themselves against the use of liquor by their employees. Every man interviewed by the "Telegraph" declared in essence: "Men who use liquor can expect no sympathy, much less good jobs, if under my control."

David E. Tracy, president of the Harrisburg Pipe and Pipe Bending Works said: "We have no use for the men who are inveterate drinkers. To come to work just once under even the slightest influence of drink is to receive a warning. The second offense is to draw the 'pink slip.'"

"Despite the size of our works and the number of men who employ, we never waste time with drinkers," is the way Quincy Bent, general manager of the Pennsylvania Steel Company, speaks of the booze problem. Mr. Bent emphasizes the fact that in modern industry with the use of complicated machinery and powerful forces such as steam and electricity, only men with brains undimmed by "a night out" and bodies unweakened by the effects of alcohol can be trusted as high class operatives.

"No Booze?" The officials of all the railroads that touch Harrisburg have declared their opinion on the liquor question before and yesterday declared the experiment of "no booze" started several years ago has proved a good thing in every way.

The Central Iron and Steel Company and the Lalancé-Grosjean companies both take the same stand on the question. While not endeavoring to hold control over the personal habits of the men while not on duty, neither company permits its workers to go on duty under the influence of liquor.

Loy Hickok of the Hickok Manufacturing Company, said: "The non-drinking man has always been preferred by us. We have a perpetual embargo on liquor."

Men in banking circles who employ men for positions of trust and responsibility said they believed the drink evil is slowly taking care of itself because of the "no booze" day are following in the steps of the "souses" of the last several generations. Several of the men declared that at the present time they had employees who were good except for their periodic sprees.

One businessman said: "I have at least five young men who will soon supplant older men who are addicted to the liquor habit. I have trained the young men for the express purpose of filling the jobs that will be made vacant when I can no longer stand the worry caused by the absence of one of my men accustomed to little drinking bouts."

"The newspaperman of intemperate habits has long since passed into legendary lore along with setting of type by hand. The man who wrote feature stories in the daytime and slept in a drunken stupor on the desk for the night and next morning in the morning is a thing of the past," said a prominent publisher to-day.

"The 'genial John' is doomed. The time is not far distant when a man addicted to the booze habit will be unable to get a job as a street cleaner."

ULTIMATUM SENT TO GARBAGE COLLECTOR

ing on the appointment of inspectors to accompany each gang of ash and garbage collectors now at work in the city.

Inspectors Start Monday These will be named before the end of the week and will start to work on Monday, taking complete charge. The plan arranged for the men is a clean-up from one end of the city to the other. This was promised more than two weeks ago at an informal meeting of Council but the situation was only slightly improved, and complaints from all sections continued to pour into all city offices.

Much of the trouble is the result, Commissioner Gross declared, because the Reduction Company does not pay high enough wages to the men, and can not get a force large enough to carry out the provisions of the contract.

The inspectors who will start on Monday will be paid by the city to oversee the work. The plan will be to keep a force of men working both sides of the streets in each section until the accumulation of ashes and garbage has been removed.

If this is not done, the city will take over the work at once, and make the bonding company pay the bill, in addition to using money from the appropriation of $31,500 for garbage and ash collections.

No Relief Although the system of collecting refuse was rearranged by Edward P. Bailey, of the American Surety Company, headmen for the Reduction Company, no noticeable relief has followed.

Organizations all over the city, and individuals, have besieged city officials by phone, mail or in person, demanding action. After the death of Commissioner Harry F. Bowman, who had supervision over the garbage and ash collection work through the Health Department, Commissioner Gross was placed in charge.

No time limit was fixed for the clean-up, but the inspectors will report daily the progress that is made for improvements.

Police Charity Fund Swelled by Big Ball

Six hundred people in addition to the Police Department last evening gathered at the police ball in Winterdale hall last night. More than $1,000 value was poured into the coffers of the "Police Quick Charity Fund."

The ball started at 9 o'clock and the last unwilling stragglers were leaving the hall early this morning. When Captain Thompson was asked this morning when it began to snow, he replied, "Oh, about 2 o'clock; I was just getting home from the ball."

Not a man on the force missed the ball. Relays and a little extra hustling enabled every man on the force to get there at some time before the event was over.

Three "drunks" who did not have the necessary fifty to get in, endeavored to keep time with the music by adapting three different songs in as many different voices. Pat Hoffman couldn't find any more tickets to sell and he didn't like the melody, so he rounded them up. "That was the end of a perfect day," said Pat this morning.

MANY FLOCK TO NAVY

Washington, Feb. 22.—A net gain of 1,413 recruits have been added to the navy in the last twenty days compared with a total net gain for the whole of January of approximately the same number. The full enlisted strength has now reached a total of 58,300. Appropriations are available for a strength of 74,500, but the increase so far made has been possible only by a vigorous recruiting campaign.
