Few Persons Know Lumber

And therefore are unable to properly inspect or identify the lumber called for.

When buying lumber you should tell the dealer what the lumber is to be used for so that the proper kind and grade is recommended.

Unless the suitable kind is bought it may not fully serve the purpose intended and must be replaced in a year or two — which means added expense.

Don't put too much dependence on cheap price lumber — it's the quality of the stick that counts.
