WIDE VARIETY OF MOTORCYCLE USES

Ray Heagy, of Heagy Bros., Harley-Davidson Distributors, Tells Interesting Story

In the days of '49 the settlers of California, with those of the western plains, expressed warmest praise and spoke with great pride of the speed of the "Rony Express." To-day we speak with equal pride and admiration of our wonderful "Transcontinental Limited," which gives to the west the products of the east, and vice versa, and affords the traveler all the luxuries and comforts of the most modern home. We also dwell with great emphasis on our present "Motor" progress, and point to the endless procession of automobiles, motor trucks, motorcycles, motorbicycles and other vehicles propelled by motor power, which are today a necessity in order that we may maintain our position, as the "Greatest Nation" of the earth. Everywhere, in all places of business, is heard "When you can furnish this?"

"When and how will you deliver my order?" Thus the greatest problem we face to-day is that of delivery, and one big factor in the solving of this great problem, in a practical, efficient way, is the motorcycle. With the side delivery van attached, the motorcycle is for merchants in all lines; for the use of quick repairmen and trouble-shooters of the telephone and telegraph companies, and the electric power and public service companies, by the Police Departments on emergency calls, in enforcing motor laws, and in patrolling suburban home districts. The fact alone that the motorcycle-patrolman can give the suburban home better protection is a deciding factor why municipalities are adopting the motorcycle as part of their equipment. The fire departments use the motorcycle that they may "get the strangle hold" on a fire. In other words, a fireman with a motorcycle, equipped with several small extinguishers, capable of putting out a gasoline fire, can be dispatched; then, if necessary, turn in a second alarm for additional equipment. With this facility very frequently an entire block of valuable city property will be saved. When you detach the delivery van and attach the side-car to the motorcycle, you have an ideal pleasure vehicle, insuring comfort and ease of covering a journey of any distance at the lowest minimum cost of motor operation. These are only a few of the many fields in which the motorcycle can be successfully used. In this there should be a distinct appeal to the interested citizen of Atlantic City, who possesses even the smallest amount of civic pride. This was very forcibly outlined by P. W. Stierhoff, eastern traveling representative of the Harley-Davidson Motor Co., Milwaukee, Wis., during a few hours' visit with Mr. Ray Heagy, of Heagy Bros., of this city, to a reporter from the Telegraph. Mr. Stierhoff has used a 1917 model Harley-Davidson with sidecar attached in covering his territory, making record-breaking time, over approximately 3,000 miles of every kind of roads throughout New Jersey, lower New York, eastern Pennsylvania and Maryland. A record, covering the entire distance traveled, shows that the new model consumed on an average only one gallon of lubricating oil to each 1,000 miles and developed 43 miles to a gallon of gasoline. "If there is anything more convincing, as to the practicability of the motorcycle than a record like this, I would like to see it," said Mr. Heagy. Neither is the pleasure end to be overlooked. You may know of a fine place to hunt, fish or picnic, some thirty miles away. There is perhaps a special excursion and rates, but you generally have to arise early, make the trip under conditions anything but comfortable, and leave for home just when the sport is at its best. All this takes some joy out of the day. With Her

The Disqualification of the Salesman

Visiting on the many the sins of the few is too much the way of the world. But the world has a right to expect better of an organization such as the Amateur Athletic Union, which exists for the promotion of sportsmanship, which is supposed to be another word for fairness; and the same is true of the National Lawn Tennis Association which is moving toward the same narrow and twisting path.

In view of the fact, its new A. A. U. rule, which, without distinction, herds together all salesmen of sporting goods and forever places them outside the pale of amateur sport, is too much for our understanding. There was a time, in England, at any rate, when the only sportsmen were those "gentlemen" whose hands were unsoiled by labor, but as the world has advanced, it did not seem probable that any considerable number of men, least of all in democratic America, could now be induced to discover in any means of livelihood such offensiveness as would lead to the placing of the brand "Unfit" on one class of the world's workers, so far as concerns their relation to sports and few of whom have an' fame to capitalize. It is perfectly clear why men, whether they be employers, or book-

Prince of Wales Cranks Woman's Stalled Car

London, March 8.—The Prince of Wales, who was in London on leave recently, was walking with a brother officer when he found the woman driver of an official car in difficulty owing to a breakdown. The two young officers came forward to help her, and the Prince of Wales spent nearly twenty minutes in energetic efforts, which happily ended in the engine again running smoothly. As she was thanking her unknown assistants, the Prince looked at his wrist-watch and remarked: "Heaven! I shall be late." So the young woman said: "Jump in, and I'll take you anywhere you like. It's the least I can do after the trouble you've piled me out of. Where do you want to go?" "Thanks awfully," was the reply. "Home, please." "Where's home?" she inquired, smiling at the way he had naively imagined his address would be known. It was only when he replied: "Buckingham Palace," that she realized that her principal mechanic had been the With Her

German Plot to Foment Indian Revolution Ended

Washington, March 8.—German plots to foment revolutions in India which date back many years before the European war were said at the State Department to be entirely under control as far as operations in this country are concerned. San Francisco, which, with Germany and China, was used during the first part of the war as one of the three main bases of operation, but the activities of the person who directed operations there whose name the department will not disclose, is stated to have been curbed. A smaller junta at Manila against which the British government had protested, is also said to have been broken up.

WOULD MARRY HIS STEPMOTHER Pottsville, Pa., March 8.—Frank C. Ball, county register, refused to grant a marriage license to a Pottsville young man to marry his own stepmother, who is said to be twenty years older than the would-be-bridegroom. The register says his decision will not be changed unless the Orphans' court orders him to do so. The officials refuse to divulge the names of the couple.
