Half Strides

All pacifists are not cowards. But the pacifist banner affords a wonderful alibi for an extremely pronounced case of chilled feet.

One of the chief causes of trouble is that it is so much easier to start a thing than it is to finish it.

The entry who gives the game his best hasn't time to worry about the aspects of the final score.

The Washington ball club came within a half jiffy of establishing a wonderful record last season. If Grif's team had won one more game, or had suffered one less defeat, it would have been the only club'in baseball to finish in seventh place with a mark of .500. As it was, we doubt that any seventh place array ever had a mark of .497, Washington's finishing figures.

The Best Infielder

Mention has been made of this or that star as the best all-around infielder. This honor belongs exclusively to one man—Charles Lincoln Herzog. Herzog is the only ball player we know of who proved to be a star of first magnitude at second, third and short.

Herzog was the best fielding third baseman in either league last season while at work upon that assignment. The year before he had been one of the three best shortstops. Moved over to second, in the opinion of John Mcgraw he was as good an infielder as £ddie Collins, and McGraw always figured Collins as one of the great ball players of the game's history—the most valuable since Wagner began to drift.

If Herzog could bat only .220—if he was only an ordinary infielder—he would still be one of the most useful members of the cast through the vast amount of pepper he spills up and down the field.

"Princeton banks on Chaplin in the box." We always figured that a fel-count of wet played to-day.

Great Spring Sport

There's a big revival, they say, For sport in the spring; But stifling the standing broad yawn Is a wonderful thing.

Russia, paying her soldiers six cents a day, comes as close to the true mateur spirit as any nation we know of just at this moment.

Reports from the Coast indicate that McLoughlin looks in better shape this season than for several campaigns. There is always the chance that Eric the Red will reach the crest for one more trip, but he probably came closer to it two years ago when he went to the final round with Johnston than he will ever come again. Passing years are not likely to add to the speed and punch that are a good part of tennis success.

Darcy and Fate

Darcy picked a tough time to enter America as a conquering hero. A year ago and he might have gotten by very nicely. But with America itself on the verge of entering the battle smoke, there came a sudden feeling against enriching a runaway from military duty. Darcy's case happened to be peculiarly flagrant. And what little chance he had to get by he wrecked himself by his first activities in this country. He may be a wonderful boxer, but the odds are that no one in this country. Overton, Yale Sprinter Breaks World's Mile, Indoor Track Record

Philadelphia, March 12.-W. Over-Philadelphia, March 12.—W. Overton. Yale's greatest distance runner of the present generation, turned the fastest mile ever run on an indoor track at the annual games of the Meadowbrook Club, on the Commercial Museum track Saturday night, when he defeated Ivan Meyers, of the Illinois A. C., the national mile champion, by a matter of inches in the world's record-breaking time of four minutes sixteen seconds.

Abel Kiviat's old figures of four minutes eighteen seconds have withstood the test of active competition since 1913, but when Overton and Meyers left, the three-quarters of a mile post astern at 3:12 4-5 it was a foregone conclusion that Kiviat's magic mark, barring accidents, was doomed to pass into oblivion.

Overton led the way over nearly the entire trail, with Meyers and Mike Devanney, of the Milrose A. A., the only other starters, close on his heels. Meyers jumped to the front after passing the half-way mark, but again relinquished the pathfinding job to Overton led the only other starters, close on his heels. Meyers jumped to the front after passing the half-way mark, but again relinquished the pathfinding job to Overton led; a series of intermittent sprints that carried through the two following laps.

The 12-pound shot uncovered an intervollegiate point-winning prospect in the person of D. C. Sinclair, of Princeton, who heaved the lead ball an actual distance of 51 feet 8½ inches, for a new Middle Atlantic District and Meadowbrook games record. The old mark of 50 feet 3 inches was formerly listed among the personal effects of Wallace Maxfield, late of Lafayette. Sinclair was presented with a handicap of one foot six inches, and consequently won the event hands down.

Apparently inspired by these performances, the timber toppers also got on, Yale's greatest distance runner

Although handicapped by the use of girls' rules the local tossers gave a fine exhibition of teamwork and defensive plays and won out. The visiting team was blanked from the field. The summary:
