

Reading for Women and all the Family

THE HONEYMOON HOUSE

By Hazel Dale

By Hazel Dale.

Jarvis was a man to whom platitudes and conventions meant nothing. Not that he did not observe most of them naturally, but those that society has set up for itself, or most of them, he ignored entirely. He was impetuous, warm hearted, and deeply in love with Janet, but he took for granted the fact that she knew that no other woman existed for him, and in the main she did.

Janet, however, was no different from thousands of other women in one respect. She was willing to accept things as they were meant, she was broad, she was above average intelligence, but she secretly if not openly resented another woman's coming into her husband's life. That did not mean that Janet was jealous, but she was a woman who constantly boasted of the beautiful relations existing between themselves and their husbands, particularly among the couples where both husband and wife work. These women tell with perfect composure of the times they lunch and dine with other men, and add carefully that of course they expect their husbands to adopt the same principles.

This is all very well, and may be managed with perfect propriety and with no other basis than the interest prompted by sincere friendship, but no woman actually in love with her husband is entirely willing for him to adopt these measures even occasionally. Not that she is jealous, but she naturally resents the fact that her husband can see anything in another woman that she herself lacks. Naturally her pride would force her to the same measures, and gradually she may grow to look upon these things as second nature, but there is always a little hurt somewhere generally so carefully concealed that no one, not even the husband, suspects its presence.

And so it was with Janet. Janet protested that she was willing for Jarvis to have as many women friends as he wanted, and she was but she hoped he would not want to, and so far he hadn't, and that meant that she saw none intimately where Janet herself was not included.

One night Jarvis was hurrying home from work when he spied a girl walking alone a little ahead of him. She was not at all remarkable, in fact she looked like a worker tired out with a long, hard day's work. Her black hair threw her slender face into sharp contrast with the pale, rosy and red and lovely with the way she carried a joyous nature, dropped a little at the corners.

JUST WHAT IS A DANGEROUS GIRL?

There Are Various Points of View, According to the Attitude of the Judge

There never lived a woman whose heart would not flutter in delighted response to a masculine voice exclaiming tenderly, (or bitterly or sadly or angrily—as the case might be) "You're a dangerous girl!"

To be told that she is "dangerous" makes a girl feel like a choice combination of caviar, dynamite, Havana cigar, submarine U-boat, strawberry shortcake in January, absinthe, automobile cup race, two dollars a pound marmos and ticket to heaven, Ltd.

And so it is only natural and altogether to be expected that the clever new song, "You're a Dangerous Girl," now being sung all over the land, on the stage and off, should make a tremendous hit. It tells a real human-nature story in sparkling words set to a lilting melody. The tune and swing of it bubble right up to your lips—and the truth of it strikes right down to your heart.

Your eyes twinkle when you hear "A DANGEROUS GIRL." And your busy brain goes a tip-toeing right after the amusing philosophy of it.

"Danger"—says the Dictionary—"Hazard, peril, exposure to injury."

"Dangerous girl," says Man—and his eyes add, "Hazard in life's game which I mean to win; injury to which my heart has been exposed and which can be cured only by more of the same red injuries from the same dangerous injurer."

Stimulating, effervescent, unusual, precocious and altogether desirable bit of femininity—all of that and more a girl feels a man has called her when he tells her that she is dangerous. And she has the youthful and joyous feeling of being lovable and loved. So all of life seems decidedly worth while and her response to her clever wooer is a giving of her best and sweetest.

Old-fashioned folk of the guaranteed narrow-minded school might think a "dangerous girl" and an unscrupulous siren one and the same. But they are very distant relatives!

The "Little Winner" of the dangerous girl type is charming and desirable to one man—the one she loves and does not propose to bore and tire by letting him win the race for her favor too soon.

The "Lorelei" of the siren type is a deliberate and unscrupulous lure to all men. Her joy is to steal the husbands and lovers of other women, to swerve men from the path of duty and to conquer and make weaklings of men who are slaves to her power.

But the "Dangerous Girl" of our modern day—the girl of the lilting melody which takes its name from her stimulating charm—urges a man on to be his strongest self and to do his best deeds. For how else can he be worthy of her?

"The Dangerous Girl" is the great prize of life's handicap race. She is all-desirable, she demands a man's best. She isn't to be won and cast aside; she cannot be wooed today and forgotten to-morrow; she has to be fought for with all a man's weapons of success and understanding and love.

"She keeps a fellow guessing"—and so she keeps him from settling down to self-satisfied, snug, un-ambitious mediocrity. She keeps him stimulated—and so he is in turn stimulating. She asks the best and gives it and brings it out. She offers the gift of unending interest and so of Eternal Youth to our age.

Here's to her—"The Dangerous Girl" who charms and eludes and colors life! The wooing of her is a delight and the winning of her a triumph. Some day when she is a dear old gray-haired grandmother she will still be sweet and winsome enough to bring the glory of Youth Eternal to the singing heart of the man who is "granda" to the youngsters—but her Boy, her "beloved boy" to his sweetheart-wife—"THE DANGEROUS GIRL."

Copyright, 1913, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

(Continued.)

I am not going to describe that most turbulent afternoon. The details are unessential to the main point, which was our decision. Counsel was appointed by the court from among the numerous ex-lawyers. The man who took charge of the defense was from New York and had served some ten years in the profession before the gold fever took him. I happen to know that he was a most sober minded, steady individual, not at all in sympathy with the rougher elements but, like most of his ilk, he speedily became so intensely interested in plying his profession that he forgot utterly the justice of the case. He defended the lawless element with all the tricks at his command. For that reason Woodruff was prevented from testifying at all, except as to his ownership of the cattle, so that the effect of his pathetic story was lost. Dr. Rankin had no chance to appear.

We retired to Randall's little room to deliberate. Not a man of the twelve of us had the first doubt as to the guilt of the prisoners. We took a ballot. The result was eleven for acquittal and one for conviction. I had cast the one vote for conviction.

We argued the matter for three hours.

"There's no doubt the men are guilty," said one. "That isn't the question. The question is, dare we declare it?"

"It amounts to announcing our own death sentence," argued another. "Those fellows would stand together, but who of the lot would stand by us? Why, we don't even know for sure who would be with us."

"This case ought never to have been tried by a jury," complained a third bitterly. "It ought to have been tried in a miners' court, and if it hadn't been for those soft heads who were strong for doing things 'regularly' instead of sensibly we'd have had it done that way."

"Well," said an older man gravely, "I agree to that. I am going to be governed in my decision not by the merits of the case, but by the fact that I have a family back in the states. I consider my obligations to them greater than to this community."

I reasoned with them for a long time, bringing to bear all the arguments I had heard advanced at various times during our discussions in Danny Randall's back room. At last, seeing I could in no manner shake their resolution, I gave in. After all, I could not blame them. The case was to them only one of cattle stealing. They had no chance to realize that it was anything more. Without solicitation on my part they agreed to keep secret my opposition to the verdict of acquittal.

Our decision was greeted by wild yells and the discharge of pistols on the part of the rough element. The meeting broke up informally and in confusion. It would have been useless for the presiding officer to have attempted to dismiss court. The mob broke through en masse to congratulate the barkeepers were overwhelmed with work. Here and there I could see a small group of the honest men talking low voiced, with many shakes of the head. Johnny, Old and Cal, who had attended with his arm slung up, had their heads together in a corner. Danny Randall, who, it will be remembered, had not appeared publicly in any way, stood at his customary corner of the bar watching all that was going on. His gamblers were preparing to reopen the suspended games.

After conferring together a moment the three express messengers made

Prominent Republicans Pledge Their Support to President Wilson

By Associated Press

New York, March 12.—Governors Edge, of New Jersey and Holcomb, of Connecticut, former President Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, Major General Leonard Wood, Ellihu Root, J. P. Morgan, Mayor Mitchell, M. Murray Crane, Robert Bacon and others of prominence attended a dinner given here last night by Cornelius N. Bliss at which they pledged themselves to support the national administration in any measure that may become necessary for the protection of American interests and the honor of the flag in the present international crisis.

The dinner, which was informal, was arranged by Mr. Bliss for patriotic motives, it was said. There was a general discussion of preparedness but no definite program was outlined.

The Biggest Problems in most homes are fuel and service.

When the servant leaves and the fuel is low, happy is the housewife who knows Shredded Wheat Biscuit, the whole wheat food that is ready-cooked and ready to eat. With these crisp little loaves of baked whole wheat the housewife may prepare in a few moments a delicious, nourishing meal at lowest cost.

Made at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Pine Shipments Into Pennsylvania Held Up

Shipment of the five leafed pine into Pennsylvania has been forbidden by a general order of the State Department of Agriculture because of the presence of the dreaded white pine blister disease in New England and other Eastern States. The pest is one of the most destructive to trees and because of the fact that it is impossible to inspect absolutely for this disease and to determine freedom of trees presented for shipment from infection the State authorities will make the embargo effective immediately.

State Agricultural authorities say that havoc might be wrought among the State's white and other pine by the disease and that pine seedlings brought from Europe have caused much loss in New England, infected pine trees in many parts of New York and also affected forests in States as far west as Wisconsin and Minnesota. Thus far only six centers of infection have been found in Pennsylvania and they are scattered. Rigid inspection is now in progress in the infected districts in this State.

Legislature Forms Own Baseball Team

Announcement was made to-day of the formation of a legislative baseball team to be composed of men who won fame on the professional and college diamond and practice will start as soon as the island grounds can be put into shape and the Susquehanna gives guarantees for good behavior.

James Franklin, member from Philadelphia, is talked for manager with David Thomas, of Wilkes-Barre, as officer of the day and Chief Clerk Garvin as scorer and Adam Schaeffer as umpire from Schuylkill.

The teams includes, tentatively: John S. Eby, Perry, catcher; William J. Brady, Philadelphia, pitcher; M. S. Bennett, the old University player, first; W. W. Jennings, Bradford, second; "Flick" Sites, former captain of the University, third; R. T. Vodge, Philadelphia, shortstop; D. J. Neary, Philadelphia, right field; R. F. Golden, center; and C. C. A. Baldi, Jr., Philadelphia, left.

Amazing Power of Bon-Opto to Make Weak Eyes Strong

Doctor Says It Strengthens Eyesight 50 per cent in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses, and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overworked tired eyes, which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years, both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years I've looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them more will be able to strengthen their

Fashions of To-Day - By May Manton

THE pretty little square neck of this frock is eminently charming and childlike and at the same time it gives a new and up-to-date touch. The skirt is a simple straight one box plaited, but the belt with its pockets gives it distinction and individuality. The pretty revers on the blouse are interesting. Mothers will find this one of the easiest dresses in the world to make and one of the most satisfactory when complete. The color effect illustrated can be copied in wool or in silk or in cotton, or, if you like you can make the dress all of one material and embroider the trimming portions, to afford contrast. On wool material, the embroidery would be done with wool threads, but on cotton material with mercerized threads and there are wonderful colors to be obtained in both.

For the 10 year size will be needed, 3 1/2 yards of material 36 inches wide, 2 3/4 yards 44 with 3/8 yard 36 inches wide for the trimming.

The pattern No. 9306 is cut in sizes from 6 to 12 years. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of fifteen cents.

DAILY DOT PUZZLES

Trace from one to forty-four. See a — not shown before. Draw from one to two and so on to the end.

12	13
15	14
9	10
11	17
16	18
20	19
21	23
22	24
25	26
27	28
29	30
31	32
33	34
35	36
37	38

WANT NO PARTY WRANGLE

New York, March 12.—Letters calling upon party organizations in New York State to "Join in a coalition movement for the organization of the House of Representatives on lines which will enable it to get down to business without weeks or months spent in wrangling over the speaker-ship or committee chairmanships," were mailed to-day to Republican and Democratic State and county chairmen.

Master James L. Hyman, of Chambersburg, Pa., and his "Bodyguard."

PHOTO BY GIBBONS

This Little Chap Is Never "Dosed" For Colds

The Hymans Now Use the "External" Treatment for Croup and Cold Troubles

MR. PAUL S. HYMAN, of 438 E. Washington Street, Chambersburg, Pa., is the father of this fine baby boy. Sometime ago Mr. Hyman tried the Southern method of treating colds externally—Vick's VapoRub Salve, and was so delighted with the results that he has given us permission to reprint his letter as follows:

"I had a very bad cold on my chest, and coughed very hard. I rubbed Vick's VapoRub on my chest for about five or six times and the results were wonderful. Also, I have a fifteen months old baby boy who had a very bad cold in his head. My wife simply rubbed some on his nose and forehead, and the cold was loosened in no time at all. We have used a great many other remedies, but yours is best so far."

Vick's VapoRub is quicker and better than internal medicines for cold troubles and is particularly recommended for children, as it does not disturb their digestion. The heat of the body releases a soothing pine tar vapor that is inhaled with each breath, and, in addition, VapoRub absorbs thru the skin, taking out the tightness and soreness. Mothers will find it a "true Bodyguard for the home". Three sizes, 25c, 50c or $1.00.

Keep a little Body-Guard in YOUR home

VICK'S VAPORUB SALVE

RUB YOUR BACK! STOPS LUMBAGO

Don't drug kidneys! Rub the pain right out with old "St. Jacobs Oil."

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica, or maybe from a strain, and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Lumber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle from any drugstore, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years. Stop drugging kidneys! They don't cause backache, because they have no nerves, therefore can not cause pain.

—Book Binding—
The Telegraph Printing Co.

MCCASKEY SERVICE

I KNOW WHAT MY CUSTOMERS OWE

This man KNOWS because every charge account is posted to date each time a sale is made. McCaskey Service sees to that.

He does not run a chance of slow paying customers getting into him for more credit than they are entitled to. He doesn't have to wait for monthly statements to go out before he gets his money. McCaskey Service collects out standing accounts without itemized monthly statements.

The McCaskey Method is installed on the easy payment plan. Find out more about it by dropping a card or phoning to—

The McCaskey Register Co.
C. L. Sawtelle, Sales Agent
Harrisburg Office, 211 Locust Street