Plumpness Makes Health.

Thin People Need This.

If you are too thin; if you are pale and sallow; if you eat seems not to strengthen you; if your lips and cheeks are colorless, it is because your blood is deficient in red corpuscles and disease can easily overcome you, as you have no reserve strength or nourishment to uphold you.

A pharmaceutical product, called 2 grain hypo-nutrine tablets, is much prescribed for these conditions, and if taken for several months, rapidly increases weight and improves the color. Buy in sealed package of any well stocked apothecary shop.—Adv.

MUST SIDE WITH ALLIES OR FIGHT GERMANY

Washington, March 14.—President Wilson has selected the following men as members of the Tariff Commission: Professor Frank W. Taussig, of Harvard University.

Now on Brink of War He declared that the United States was on the brink of war, that "no American knows what is going to happen next, nor need be surprised if the government should be found impotent in case of war."

"Let us face the facts," he continued. "We do not know when our soldiers will be ordered into the trenches. If we go to war, it will not be singly, for, if we do not join issues with the Allies, where will we stand? We must get ready not only to defend our own shores from a bluntly described assault to send men abroad to help those with whom we must ally ourselves if we are not to be found fighting alone in some great crisis which the future now has hidden from us."

The hearing at which the Adjutant General spoke was conducted after he and other members of the State Armory Board had previously agreed that at least $3,000,000 must be provided by the Legislature for the construction and equipment of adequate quarters for the National Guard of Pennsylvania if it was to be placed upon a basis of genuine military preparedness.

The Adjutant General announced that a bill providing for such an appropriation would be drawn up and introduced in the Legislature at the earliest possible moment.

Resided the Adjutant General, there were present Brigadier General Albert J. Logan, of Pittsburgh; Major General Charles Bowman Dougherty, of Wilkes-Barre; Brigadier General William G. Price, Jr., Colonel Louis A. Watres, of Scranton, former Lieutenant Governor of Pennsylvania; and Colonel George C. Rickards, all prominent officers of the National Guard and all members of the Armory Board, of which Governor Brumbaugh is the president.

Adjutant General Stewart cited facts and figures to show that the government had already invested vast sums to bring the National Guard of Pennsylvania up to its present war strength and that the State would be certain to receive a substantial return upon the $3,000,000 asked for in case the Legislature provided that amount for State armories and stabling accommodations for the government horses belonging to cavalry and artillery.

He sounded a note of warning that if the "call to arms" comes that no State would require more military preparedness than Pennsylvania if only because of her great munitions making and other industrial plants.

"None of us can tell when somebody is going to do the most damnable things right in our own State," declared the Adjutant General. "I have only just received from a certain corporation information that it alone possesses twenty-eight magazines which are veritable arsenals."

"No State is better prepared from a military standpoint than Pennsylvania. We should be proud of our National Guard but we should take proper care of it. These are serious times and it behooves Pennsylvania to set an example to the rest of the country in proving its military preparedness. Upon such a State as ours the national government depends. Let us not be unworthy of the confidence in us. She has shown that confidence in the vast sum she has expended upon our Guard. Why should we not do our share?"

"If our house is in danger the first thing we do is to care for it. We might as well realize that we could not afford, as a State or as a nation, an independent peace between the Allies and Germany. No greater military prize exists to-day than our own country. In the event of war with Germany we would have to not only guard that prize but join with the Allies in helping to make war."

General Dougherty, reading from a letter from Major Moseley, U. S. A., quoted that army officer as saying that the National Guard of Pennsylvania was "the marvel of all the United States army officers who saw it."

"It is time to come up to the scratch," said the General. "It is time to serve notice on the rest of the Union that Pennsylvania stands for real military preparedness and is willing to properly house and care for her citizen soldiery. Why the State of New York has $26,000,000 invested in armories alone and I do not hesitate to compare our Guard with hers."

As the hearing drew to a close, Senator Buckman remarked that the State "must have money to appropriate before it can make appropriations."

"We trust that we will receive your support in the event of our deciding upon certain revenue measures in order to meet urgent financial requirements," asked the Senator.

"You certainly will have mine and that of every member of the Armory Board," declared Adjutant General Stewart—and there the hearing closed.

Baldwin Bars Floor of House to Lobbyists

Speaker Richard Baldwin this morning banished the lobbyists from the floor of the House and admonished the chief sergeant-at-arms to see that his deputies kept the aisles clear and the members free from activities of "those who should be behind the rail."
