CUMBERLAND COUNTY'S "CREAM PUFF KING"

JOHN A. LINDSEY, JR.

Carlisle, Pa., March 14.—Out in a neat little bakeshop along one of the country roads that thread eastward from this city is being daily baked little hollow cakes filled with a cream that are creating for their maker the title of "Cream Puff King." The baker is John A. Lindsey, Jr., and from his little place of business are turned out several thousand tasty puffs weekly. Mr. Lindsey began business on his little country property only a few years ago, and now turns out a hundred dozen of the toothsome cream puffs at one baking. He is in a rather novel situation, as it might be said he raises his raw materials, creates them into a manufactured product, and markets them himself. Eggs, milk and flour are the principal ingredients of these famous cakes, and this country dough-mixer keeps his own chickens and cows, and can raise his own wheat. Literally he is an independent person.

In the making of cream puffs, there is a by-product and this Mr. Lindsey turns into another toothsome morsel known everywhere as "Angel Food," a fluffy white cake. He finds ready sale for nearly 3,000 puffs weekly in addition to his other oven articles.
