Cured His RUPTURE Has Great Record For Killing Dangerous Animals

Chambersburg, Pa., March 15 .-Probably no other person in the cen-tral part of Pennsylvania has as coma marrow variety, surrounded with thick woodland.

Among the game that is sheltered in these forests are a number of wildcats, and Wright has developed a hobby for hunting them in preference to the less dangerous game. With a high-power rifle and one of his fearless dogs, this man of the open is off on a quest of game and seldom returns without a killing. He has captured in traps and killed with his rifle more catamounts and wildcats than any other Central Pennsylvania hunter, and for this reason he has become known among the north county people as the "Wildcat King."

Not long since Mr. Wright arrived here with one of the largest catamounts that has been shot down in this section. Two yard sticks were secured from a local dry goods store and fastened to a stout pole. The catamount was then tied to the pole and found to measure four feet in length. "Wildeat Bill" is shown in the picture exhibiting his quarry and the riffe he uses on all his hunting expeditions. Although nearly seventy years old, the veteran farmer-hunter is a true shot and fearless of any animal,

Where There Are Boys and Girls Growing Up

"The Philadelphia Record" is a newspaper published to satisfy those who are as particular about what their children read as they are about the character of their friends.

Although the best of us enjoy a bit of gossip or a little excitement now and then, we do not care for it as a steady diet, nor do we fancy having the spicy details of the latest scandal poured into the receptive ears of our children.

3rd St.

Equally is it true that while we want and have a right to expect a newspaper to give us all of the NEWS, there is but little satisfaction in wading through a mass of misinformation for the sake of getting it.

Those of our readers who know "The Record" best have termed it "Always Reliable," and turning back over the files it is not difficult to bring to light instance after instance of "Record" reliability. Which is not said a spirit of boastfulness, but as confirmation of the point at issue.

In the matter of those affairs "about which the less said the better, it is the policy of "The Record" to present these without embellishment or "heart throb" hysteria, leaving it to others of more excitable temperament to amplify the non-essentials to a point beyond all misunderstanding. "The Record" is a clean, sane, dependable newspaper, admittedly one of the six great newspapers of this country, and it is quoted far and near as an authority on matters of public '

Altogether it is a newspaper for "worth-while" people.

If you want a newspaper that will keep you correctly informed on the news of the day, tell your newsdealer to deliver "The Record" to you regularly, or notify us and we will arrange the matter for you.
