PENN HIGHWAY BOARD TO MEET

Will Elect New Directors at Annual Meeting Here Monday

Only routine business will be transacted at the annual meeting of the William Penn Highway Association to be held in this city Monday afternoon, beginning at 1 o'clock. Several new members of the booard are to be chosen, however—for Lehigh, Northampton, Lebanon and Montgomery counties.

Present members of the booard are as follows:

President, William Jennings, of this city; vice-president, E. M. C. Africa, of Huntingdon, and Frank M. Graff, of Blairsville; treasurer, David Barry, of Johnstown; Edward McDonald, MacDonald, Washington county; J. W. Donahey, Pittsburgh; S. H. Jackson, Murraysville, Westmoreland county; Dr. J. D. Findlay, Altoona, Blair county; W. H. Manbeck, Mifflin, Juniata county; James Macklin, McVeytown, Mifflin county; J. G. H. Rippman, Millerstown, Perry county; George F. Eisenbrown, Reading, Berks county, and W. L. Plack, Philadelphia.

Organized Year Ago

A year ago next Tuesday the William Penn Highway Association was organized at a meeting in Fahnestock Hall attended by delegatess from various central-titer counties of Pennsylvania. Headquarters were opened in Harrisburg last June by M. H. James, the secretary. Since that time the membership has grown so that to-day the William Penn Highway Association has more bonafide members than any other road promoting organization in any State in the Union. The first of this year saw publication started of a monthly magazine called the "Bulletin of the William Penn Highway," which goes to all members of the association and to a large outside mailing list. The Association has inaugurated a touring bureau from which its members can secure any information desired. A great many agriculturists are included among members of the association; and in this connection it is interesting, to know that a third of all the automobiles owned by Pennsylvania farmers are in counties along the William Penn Highway, as well as half the total number of automobiles in Pennsylvania.

"La Bella Napoli" of Gay Deys Before the War Has Ceased to Be

Naples, March 23. — "La Bella Napoli" of the days before the war has ceased to be. The tourist hotels along the water-front and on the heights overlooking the crescent of the bay are virtually empty. Many have boarded up their windows and gone out of business entirely. The army of guides, interpreters, hotel runners and money changers has become an army of soldiers, scaling the mountains of the Carso hundreds of miles to the north, where eternal snow replaces the eternal sun of southern Italy.

The quays are deserted. When a year ago 260 ships were plying between Naples and the United States with a tonnage of 1,300,000, there now are eleven, with a total of less than 60,000 tons. Of ten companies, not counting the German and Austrian ones, running 37 trans-Atlantic passenger ships, one Italian line now runs the boats, one British line two, and a French line one. That is all. Before the war, the traveler to America had a choice of some 60 ships from Naples; to-day he has choice of five. Passenger rates have gone up, but as there are virtually no first and second class passengers the increase makes little difference to the steamship companies, because the steerage rates are about the same.

Seldom does one now see curtains of drying spaghetti screening the narrow ways between the houses in Naples. There is a scarcity of food. Thursday and Friday of every week are "meatless days," when no meat may be purchased or sold in restaurants, and the Neapolitan is forced to live on fish, macaroni, rice or more vegetables. Friday, Saturday and Sunday of every week are "sweetless days" when neither sugar nor cakes of any kind can be served, at least in public. Every day is a butterless day, and even cream is a rarity entirely out of reach of anyone but the most luxurious.

In Naples 80 per cent. of the inhabitants lived directly or indirectly by the sea, or by the tourists the sea brings them. There are no more tourists, and the activities directly connected with shipping have so fallen off as to leave 80 per cent. of the Neapolitans in a bad way. In the bay of Naples, no more boys dive for pennies. The raucous-voiced postcard sellers now listen to the sterner voice of a drill sergeant up any one of the side streets in the newer quarters of the town, where rudimentary military training goes on constantly. There are plenty of men in Naples, as in all of Italy, but almost all in uniform — bersaglieri, with their cock-feathered hats and hob-nailed boots, tripolini, with red, rimless caps from which blue tassels hang by a long string, officers with capes thrown over their shoulders like Spanish grandees and swaggering carabinieri, the terror of evil doers. The system seems to be to call one class after another, brush up their military training, then give them leave of absence, thus keeping them under martial law and subject to military orders.

FORMER CZAR IS CAPTIVE IN PALACE

branch line outside Alexandrovsky Park. On leaving the train Nicholas entered an automobile, accompanied by his adjutant, Prince Dolgoroukoff, the only courtier of the first rank who accompanied him, and by the four Duma commissioners. They were driven to the palace.

Holds Himself Erect

Nicholas was met at the door in the left wing of the palace by Count Benckendorff, who was his marshal of the court and is now under arrest. The former ruler held himself erect, looking calm and indifferent, although he stepped from the automobile with nervous haste. A battalion of the First Rifle Guard regiment was at the railroad depot. The commander at Tsarskoe-Selo is Colonel Kobuilinsky, formerly commander of the Petrogradsky regiment, stationed in peace time at Warsaw. To him the Duma commissioners announced:

"Our mission of handing over the Emperor is finished. We now go to Petrograd to announce this fact to the Duma."

The correspondent drove to the old Tsarskoe-Selo palace, which is entirely deserted and without guards, and then to the new palace where the former imperial family is interned. The palace lies in a large park which is surrounded by a plain spiked fence five feet high, coated with silver paint. From the corner nearest the old palace the new palace is partly visible through the thick wood, the chief facade, facing the north, being entirely in view. The first noticeable sign of the revolution was that no imperial standard floated from the roof.

Deserted by People

Within the park over the broad expanse of snow, not a single person was visible. Apparently there were no guards within the park, but outside the fence, every fifty yards along the roadway were double sentries from the Petrogradsky regiment, in long blue coats, with fixed bayonets.

Astonishing circumstances in view of the attitude of Nicholas toward the population of Tsarskoe-Selo which lived entirely upon imperial favor, was the lack of public interest. During a drive of three miles along the palace fence the correspondent saw no civilians and with the exception of the guards none but two of the gigantic black-bearded Caucasians of the famous "Convoy of His Majesty" who though now fallen from favor, and destined to be sent as soldiers to the front, were allowed to peer through the fence.

In regard to the conditions under which Nicholas was being held in the palace, officers declared they knew nothing. Concerning Alexandra and other members of the family the following information was given:

"All the five children are in bed with the measles, for which reason Alexandra has not been outside the palace walls for two days. So far as is known no order has been issued preventing her from walking about the grounds. She has been forbidden to use the telephone and telegraph or have any communication with the outside world. This morning she requested permission to telephone to Princess Baratoff, a friend, asking as to her health. The request was refused. Twice yesterday permission to use the telephone was denied her.

Stomach Relief! Stop Indigestion Gas, Sourness—Pape's Diapepsin

In five minutes! Neutralizes stomach acidity, relieving dyspepsia, heartburn, distress. Read!

Time it! Pape's Diapepsin will sweeten a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach within five minutes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is usually a sign of acidity of the stomach.

Get from your pharmacist a fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches or dizziness. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin helps to neutralize the excessive acid in the stomach which is causing the food fermentation and preventing proper digestion.

Relief in five minutes is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large fifty-cent cases contain enough "Pape's Diapepsin" to usually keep the entire family free from stomach acidity and its symptoms of indigestion, dyspepsia, sourness, gases, heartburn, and headache, for many months. It belongs in your home.

GIRLS IN SUICIDE PACT KILL EACH OTHER

had occupied Wednesday night and Thursday, indicated that they had agreed to commit suicide together.

Miss Spalding was 18 years of age and Miss Stanton was 22. The girls came here Wednesday. After a night and a day spent at the hotel where Miss Stanton had registered in her own name and Miss Spalding as "Rose King," they went to the cafe for dinner. They spent more than two hours over the meal, prolonging it by repeated calls for black coffee.

Just before 11 o'clock the waiters and the few remaining diners heard two shots. They rushed to the booth where the girls had been seated and found Miss Stanton dead, lying half across the table. Miss Spalding lay on the floor unconscious and died shortly afterwards. Each girl had a bullet wound in the temple. Miss Stanton's fingers were closed about a .32-calibre revolver.

Were Close Friends

The police express the opinion that each girl held a revolver at the other's head and fired. The note found in the girls' room was addressed to Miss Spalding's mother. Through inquiries made at her home in Newton it was learned that Margaret Spalding was a graduate of the Newton High School, where she had been a prominent basketball and hockey player. Since last fall she had been a teacher-pupil in the gymnasium department of the Garland School, in Boston.

Miss Stanton was a pupil at this school until two weeks ago, when she began studies at the Dana Hall School in Wellesley, Mass. The young women had been close friends for some time.

No definite reason was given in the note for the girls' act. It said they had decided it was better that they should die and asked their parents not to be grief-stricken because "they would all be happy and peaceful when reunited in a better world."

BASEBALL, WAR OR NO WAR

Brunswick, Ga., March 23.—A declaration of war will not interfere with the plans of the American League for the 1917 season, President Ban B. Johnson said yesterday.

"The American League will open its championship race according to schedule," said Johnson. "We can make no departure at this late date."

How Russian Revolt Will Help Allies Win the War

The crucible of war has produced the Rusian revolution, and others are apparently expected by observers who note that the peoples of all the belligerent nations are taking stock of their ruler with a clear-eyed vision induced by the stern reality of suffering and death.

"The Russian people," says Russkoye Slovo (New York), "are opposed to war and to militarism, but they believe that their own success as revolutionists will mean revolution on the part of the Germanic peoples. Then they hope and believe there will come a consolidation of all the revolutionary peoples, Russian and Germanic, a combination that by its very force and weight will compel the militarists of Europe's warring nations to cease their strife. And so, out of revolution will come the great peace.

You should read THE LITERARY DIGEST for March 24th to form an accurate opinion of the cause and result of the Russian Revolution, and the effect it will have in deciding the fortunes of war for the Entente Allies.

What is Good for the Child Should Be Good for the Parent

In educating our children we do not follow the policy of insisting that they shall confine themselves to a narrow and one-sided view of things. Rather do we insist that their training shall be broad and comprehensive and that they shall be told what all thinkers, and not merely a certain group of thinkers, have to say on a given subject. We all recognize this as a sound policy in matters educationial, yet how many of us follow it in relation to our personal thinking on the great questions of the day? Very few, if the truth be told. To the man or woman who wishes to see both sides, to get an intelligent view of life and all its interests, at home and abroad, THE LITERARY DIGEST offers each week an intensely interesting and wholly impartial summary of all that is going on in politics, art, science, religion, finance, etc., leaving you to form your own conclusions from its unbiased presentation of the facts. Read it and think along broad lines for yourself.
