FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

AMAZING BUT RARELY SUSPECTED TRUTHS ABOUT THE THINGS YOU EAT

By ALFRED W. McCANN

CHAPTER 191

There is no economy in preparing head rice with tomatoes, onions and cabbage. The recipes contained in the Free Rice Bulletin are extravagant. The folly of substituting standard head rice for potatoes is determined by the obvious fact that there are no substitutes for onions, tomatoes and cabbage. The Paris bread regulations, which went into effect March 11, 1917, should be enforced in all communities of the United States, where food is so scarce that it becomes necessary to substitute standard head rice for potatoes.

Standard grade head rice, as we have seen, is not a substitute for potatoes. Potatoes contain a vast excess of base-forming substances, whereas standard grade head rice (polished rice) contains an excess of acid-forming substances. They bear no more resemblance to each other than an undenatured ripe banana bears to highly milled patent flour.

On the banana monkeys and human beings can live indefinitely. On an exclusive diet of patent flour they are doomed to tuberculosis and collapse.

The rice bulletin, issued for free distribution among the poor, urges as a matter of "economy" the use of rice with cheese, peas and beans, all of which now happen to be among the most expensive foods on the market.

The bulletin also publishes a number of recipes which call for the use of tomato sauce, now a luxury; cabbage, which for a time threatened to be seen only in museums of natural history; onions, which since the civil war have never been so high and kidney beans, which happen to be the most costly aristocrats of the bean family.

In passing it might be said that beans of any kind are cheap at any price. They have never been properly appreciated in the United States since the practical extinction of the American Indian, who ate them in great quantities.

But no real economy is achieved in exploiting the sham virtues of standard head rice when such expensive foods are included in the preparation for the table. Fresh tomatoes, in the principal cities of the United States during the first week of March, 1917, were quoted at 25 cents a pound wholesale for prime quality and 15 cents a pound wholesale for seconds.

At retail these tomatoes sold at from 25 to 35 cents a pound. Such tomatoes are, of course, hothouse tomatoes. Standard canned tomatoes No. 2 are now worth $1.25 a dozen wholesale or approximately 15 cents a can retail. They contain 99 per cent water, and estimated on a dry solid basis are worth $9.60 a pound, at which price we might as well eat the expensive potato.

Certainly in preparation with tomatoes is essential to the finished dish of standard head rice the argument of economy falls flat and all reason for substituting rice in the place of the potato vanishes.

During the first week of March old onions were worth $12 a hundred wholesale, and were bringing 25 cents a pound in the market at retail. One year ago onions sold at 25 cents a peck. Ten days ago they sold at $2.40 a peck. Any recipe calling for onions in order to complete a dish, the base of which is standard grade head rice, results in the production of a finished dish far more expensive than the potato even at prices twice as high as they now are.

It may be that the recipes calling for the use of these luxuries with rice were worked out when the so-called substitutes for potatoes were cheap. But to make rice palatable and at the same time as cheap as the rice bulletin asserts it to be, we are reduced to the painful necessity of finding less expensive substitutes for onions, tomatoes and cabbage. There are no such substitutes.

The free rice bulletin declared, "Many people do not like rice." It remained silent as to the reason behind the fact.

People do not like head rice because it has no flavor. It is one of the denatured foods which in itself is so insipid and characterless that it must be drenched and disguised under a mass of gravy, soups, sauces or other condimental or succulent treatment in order to make it palatable.

Natural brown rice possesses a flavor of such character that it needs no such drenching or disguising.

Growing children on a diet of natural brown rice will continue to grow. On the same diet mothers can bring forth their offspring and nurse their infants indefinitely. On a diet of standard grade head rice they go to pieces.

If there ever was a time when all foods entering the larder of a family forced to subsist on a small income should be whole, complete, and entire, that time is now.

Natural brown rice, with its regulations of March 11, 1917, enforcing the use of whole meal bread, where heretofore white rolls were common, has set the example. The cities of the United States, with profit to themselves, would do well to follow it.

Honest whole meal bread (not the molasses-stained fraud that masquerades as graham bread in the bakeries of our large cities), with whole wheat breakfast foods, natural brown rice, whole oatmeal, whole cornmeal, unpeeled barley peas, beans, lentils, and whole pure pasteurized milk, would stiffen the nation's backbone and help to put real preparedness on firm feet.

The rice bulletin was designed to meet what was said to be an emergency. No such devices can meet an emergency when, hastily put together, they ignore fundamentals, forget the simplest facts of the market place, and misstate the truth.

The rice bulletin calls for milk in the preparation of the rice dishes which it suggests as an inconsequential incident of minor importance. Yet milk is to-day the cheapest animal food purchasable in the United States.

Scheme to Save 6 Cents

Chicago, March 29.—Under a plan which has been tried in Austin, a section on the West Side of the city, and which will be adopted by grocers there next Monday, housewives who go to market, pay cash for their purchases and carry them home, will save six cents. The grocers have decided on a fixed charge of five cents for delivery of purchases and one cent for charging them.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 395c Marcellus avenue, Massachussetts, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.
